Your guide to our new qualifications

AS and A level
English Literature
from September 2015
Hello and welcome

Our new Edexcel AS and A level English Literature qualifications have been created to engage learners in literature from the canon to today.

We have worked with experts, such as Professor John Mullan, University College London, and a range of contemporary poets to produce resources that not only support exam preparation, but also expose students to different ideas and perspectives. This will give students the opportunity to hear from people for whom literature is their passion, and to broaden critical perspectives.

This guide gives you an overview of our new AS and A level English Literature specifications. You can also learn more about the comprehensive help and support we are planning for you.

Take a look through our specification guide to find out more about:

- AS and A level English Literature is changing: what should you expect? 3
- The key features of Edexcel AS and A level English Literature 4-5
- A level assessment at a glance 6-7
- AS assessment at a glance 8
- Approaches to co-teaching AS and A level English Literature 9
- A level Sample Assessment Materials 10-13
- AS Sample Assessment Materials 14-17
- What you can expect from us 18-19

We’re here to help you understand the changes to AS and A level English Literature so you’re ready to teach the new specifications from September 2015. Whether it is on the phone, by email, or in person at a training event, we’ll support you as you plan and teach the new qualifications.

We look forward to meeting you at our Getting Ready to Teach events, and answering any questions you may have.

AS and A level English Literature is changing: what should you expect?

- AS and A level English Literature are linear qualifications; assessments for each qualification will take place at the end of the course.
- AS will become a stand-alone qualification and will not contribute towards an A level.
- There will be a 20% coursework weighting at A level.
- 100% examined assessment at AS.
- Number of texts to be studied reduced from 12 to 8 at A level, and from 6 to 4 at AS, to facilitate in-depth reading.
- A level texts must include at least 3 pre-1900 works, including one Shakespeare play, and a post-2000 work.
- New compulsory requirements for students to be assessed on their response to an unseen text, at A level.

Our new Edexcel English Literature:

Key features at a glance

- Same texts at AS and A level.
- No AS Shakespeare.
- Only modern poetry options at AS.
- Co-teachability is weaved throughout the specifications to ensure AS and the first year of A level can be taught at the same time.
- Precise and direct question structures.
- Scaffolding in the AS for extra support for accurate and fair assessment.
- Holistic mark schemes.
- Equal Assessment Objective targeting.

The key features of Edexcel AS and A level English Literature

For our new AS and A level English Literature qualifications, we’ve created courses to engage and enrich students’ learning, providing them with the expertise to actively explore the world around them. We’ve consulted with those that know the most about the subjects: teachers, subject associations and our partners in Higher Education, in order to produce specifications that will prepare students for the research and study skills required of them in higher education and the workplace.

The literary text is at the heart of the qualification

For many of us, our relationship with our own A level texts was the catalyst for our choice of university course and subsequent career. Therefore, the literary text is at the heart of our AS and A level English Literature qualifications. We have selected literature we know works well with students, as well as offering fresh new options that have been recommended by teachers and academics.

There is a clear focus on the three main genres

Each examined component focuses on one of three main genres: poetry, prose or drama. This gives students the time and space to develop their knowledge and confidence through breadth and depth of study.

Meaningful comparisons

- There is no cross-genre comparison in any of the examined components. This avoids forced or artificial comparison between disparate texts.
- Comparison is only ever based upon two equally important texts, with no supplementary texts, or requirement to refer to multiple texts in a superficial way.

Maximising choice

Within each component, a wide range of text options are offered, allowing you to select texts that will best appeal to your students.

- There is the flexibility to choose tragedy, comedy, or one text from each genre (see pages 6 and 7).
- It’s also possible to teach the work of a named poet, or instead, a range of poetry within a movement.
- Thematic study of prose allows not only a choice of theme, but also a choice of texts within the theme.
- For the coursework component, students choose two texts to analyse, allowing students plenty of opportunity to pursue their own interests.

A clear and distinctive approach to criticism

The study of literary criticism is rooted firmly during the study of the A level texts. Students will have the opportunity to read critical essays on either the genre of tragedy or comedy, as well as essays on their studied Shakespeare play. This allows students to engage with the text, perhaps considering:

- What has been said about my play at different times?
- Which other perspectives could I bring to bear?
- How do these readings differ from, or support my own?

Produced in collaboration with University College London, free Shakespeare Critical Anthology teaching resources will be provided to all students at the start of the course.

Co-teachable AS and A level

The AS specification has been designed to be entirely co-teachable with the first year of a two-year A level course.

All the AS set texts appear in the A level specification, so there is no requirement to make decisions around AS and A level routes prior to the start of the course.

Holistic assessment

- Holistic mark schemes allow examiners to mark the students’ work in the same way as it was written - as a single cohesive piece of writing, with the response to each Assessment Objective integrated throughout.
- We want students to be able to focus on giving their best response to their exam question, not on trying to remember how many marks are attributed to each Assessment Objective.

Approaches to co-teaching Edexcel AS and A level English Literature

Our specifications have been designed so you can co-teach AS and A level students in the same class, with the same set texts and thematic options. All the AS topics appear in the A level specification, so there is no requirement to make decisions around AS and A level routes prior to the start of the course.

</tbody>
</table>

*For specific poems to be studied, please see Appendix 4 of the AS specification.

Teachers may wish to begin preparation for the coursework with A level students towards the end of year one, whilst the AS students prepare for their examinations. Therefore, the two coursework texts may be covered in year one, year two or a combination of both, as appropriate.

Only teaching A level classes?

Whilst the specifications are co-teachable, if you decide not to enter your A level students for the AS exams, you can approach the course content in any order, as best suits your students.

How are they assessed?

AS and A level content will be assessed to a different standard, appropriate to the level of study. Students who sit the AS exams and then continue to the full A level will be assessed on their AS content again, at the end of their course of study, at the A level standard.

Please see the sample assessment materials for each specification on pages 10-17 for examples of the different question structures.

SECTION A: Post-2000 Specified Poetry

Read the poem on page 2 of the source booklet before answering ONE question. Write your answer in the space provided below.

1 Read the poem Somewhat Unravelled by Jo Shapcott on page 2 of the source booklet and re-read On Her Blindness by Adam Thorpe, from the Poems of the Decade: An Anthology of the Forward Books of Poetry 2002-2011 (page 180).

Compare the methods both poets use to explore the effects of growing old.

(Total for Question 1 = 30 marks)

OR

2 Read the poem Somewhat Unravelled by Jo Shapcott on page 2 of the source booklet and re-read Please Hold by Ciaran O’Driscoll, from the Poems of the Decade: An Anthology of the Forward Books of Poetry 2002-2011 (page 142).

Compare the methods both poets use to express strong emotions.

(Total for Question 2 = 30 marks)

SECTION A: Post-2000 Specified Poetry

Somewhat Unravelled

Auntie stands by the kettle, looking at the kettle and says, help me, help me, where is the keep?
I say, little auntie, the curious and hopscotch grids unfurling in your brain have hidden it from you. Let me make you a cup of tea. She says ah ha! But I do not my crossword, don’t I? Ok not the difficult one, the one with the wasname? Cryptic clues. Now that I say, little auntie, we were never cryptic so let’s not start that now. Please appreciate your straightforward talk, the built-up toilet seats, the way you wish poetry were just my hobby, our curses on the stair lift.
Your concern about my weight, the special seat in the bath. We know where we are. She says, nurse told me I should furniture-walk around the house, holding on to it.
I say, little auntie, you are a lump of wood.
In flight, a kitchen table on a difficult hike without boots, you do the sideboard crawl like no one else, you are a sofa in flight, a kitchen table on a difficult hike without boots.
She says, I don’t like eating. Just as well you’ve got a good appetite. I say littlest auntie, my very little auntie (because she is shrinking now, in front of me) let me cook for you, a meal so wholesome and blimmin’ pungent with garlic you will dance on it and eat it through your feet. Then she says don’t you ever want to go to market and get lost in pots, fruit and random fabric? Don’t you went to entrevista with rain, hide out in storms, cover your body with a layer only one raincoat thick? Don’t you want to sell your nail-clippings online? She says, look at you with all your language. You never became the flower your mother wanted but it’s not too late, come with me and nodle in the earth outside my front window, set yourself in the special bed, the one only wasname is allowed to garden and we will practise opening and closing and we’ll follow the sun with out faces until the cows come home.
