General marking guidance

- All candidates must receive the same treatment. Examiners must mark the last candidate in exactly the same way as they mark the first.
- Mark schemes should be applied positively. Candidates must be rewarded for what they have shown they can do rather than be penalised for omissions.
- Examiners should mark according to the mark scheme – not according to their perception of where the grade boundaries may lie.
- All the marks on the mark scheme are designed to be awarded. Examiners should always award full marks if deserved, i.e. if the answer matches the mark scheme. Examiners should also be prepared to award zero marks if the candidate’s response is not worthy of credit according to the mark scheme.
- Where some judgement is required, mark schemes will provide the principles by which marks will be awarded and exemplification/indicative content will not be exhaustive.
- When examiners are in doubt regarding the application of the mark scheme to a candidate’s response, a senior examiner must be consulted before a mark is given.
- Crossed-out work should be marked unless the candidate has replaced it with an alternative response.
Passage 1

Les salaires en France

F1 L'inégalité des salaires entre hommes et femmes est la plus forte chez les cadres et donc parmi les salaires les plus élevés.

M1 Les écarts de salaires ont nettement baissé. Mais depuis les années 1990, le rattrapage s'est interrompu, en partie parce que la plupart des femmes demeurent à l'écart des postes à responsabilité les mieux rémunérés, et qu'elles sont plus souvent employées dans des rôles où les salaires sont bas tels que serveuse ou vendeuse.

F1 Les femmes occupent plus souvent des emplois de mauvaise qualité à temps partiel. Les femmes demeurent largement défavorisées sur le marché du travail. 8 % des femmes salariées sont en situation de temps partiel, contre 2,8 % des hommes.

Passage 2

Le Front national

F1 Nombreux sont les artistes à avoir pris parti contre le Front national, parti d'extrême droite. Certains affirment leur intention de ne plus vivre où le parti de Marine Le Pen a gagné.

Jean-Marie Le Clézio déclare :

M1 « Je renoncerais à la nationalité française en cas de victoire du Front national. Quand je vois le Front national monter, je me sens plus Mauricien que jamais. Si Marine Le Pen gagne, je rendrai mon passeport français, et je ne garderai que mes papiers mauriciens. »

F1 Il n'est pas seul. À l'occasion de la campagne des européennes en juin dernier, Jean-Marie Le Pen a provoqué un scandale en déclarant :

M2 « Yannick Noah s'est engagé à ne plus chanter en France si le Front national arrive en tête de l'élection... on verra bien, je ne le crois pas. »

Passage 3

Les festivals sont en train de disparaître

Comme d’autres villes en France, Bayonne, au pays basque, a vu disparaître deux de ses grands rendez-vous culturels. Terminé cette année le Festival de la musique Black et Basque, fini aussi le théâtre de la troupe américo-latino Translatine, porté depuis trente ans, faute de subvention de la mairie de Bayonne. En avril, elle a brusquement retiré la subvention de 60 000 euros. Jean-Marie Broucaret est Directeur du théâtre des Chimères:

Il y avait bien sûr des circonstances économiques à considérer mais il y a des choix que la municipalité a décidé de faire. Il y a d’autres activités qu’on aurait pu arrêter de subventionner. Elle n’a pas pris le temps de réfléchir à cette décision: nous embauchons exclusivement des travailleurs locaux. Dans le contexte d’une crise économique, les élus devraient être sensibles au fait qu’une subvention n’est pas de l’argent gaspillé. Par contre elle est un investissement rentable qui fait vivre notre région.

Mais Yves Ugalde, Adjoint à la culture, défend la décision de la mairie:

Il est évident que quand je dois faire une réduction de cinq pour cent de mon budget culturel, je dois réévaluer la dépense du fond dont je dispose. Cela supposera un vrai débat sur la capacité qu’on aura et il faudra dire à certains artistes qu’on ne les subventionnera plus.

C’est pourquoi la ville a préféré le nouveau festival culture-sport, un festival plus populaire et plus apte à attirer des subventions privées, cette fois auprès d’un constructeur automobile.

On aura marié deux thèmes extrêmement importants, le sport et la culture qui sont les véhicules de communication d’enormément de marques.

Passage 4 (a)

La Résistance en France en 1944

Au début de l’année 1944, la Résistance intérieure est bien mieux organisée et ses adhérents sont bien plus nombreux qu’à ses débuts en automne 1940. Depuis mai 1943, elle est unifiée au sein d’un Conseil de la Résistance. Les réseaux sont de véritables organisations paramilitaires créées pour la plupart par les services secrets britanniques et ceux de la France libre. Leur objectif prioritaire est le renseignement. Ils mettent également en place des filières d’évasion de prisonniers de guerre et de soldats alliés, en particulier des aviateurs britanniques abattus au-dessus de la France et de la Belgique.

Les réseaux sont structurés en services de plus en plus différenciés (propagande-diffusion, groupes paramilitaires, faux papiers, filières d’évasion…) ; ils cloisonnent leurs activités pour être moins vulnérables en cas d’arrestation de leurs membres.
Les maquis

F1 Les premiers maquis apparaissent dès décembre 1942, de manière indépendante, des mouvements de la Résistance. Ils sont composés de ceux qui veulent échapper à la mobilisation de la main-d’œuvre et qui ne veulent pas aller travailler en Allemagne. En février 1943, l’instauration du Service du Travail Obligatoire (STO), leur donne une accélération décisive, principalement dans les massifs montagneux mais aussi dans certaines zones forestières. Leur intégration à la Résistance est progressive: il faut les encadrer, les prendre en charge, les armer sans perdre le soutien des populations.

M1 Début 1944, les maquis voient leurs effectifs diminuer. La répression conjointe de Vichy et des Allemands a été brutale, et l’hiver rigoureux suscite une forte détérioration des conditions de vie. Cependant, à partir d’avril 1944, un nouveau souffle anime les maquis qui se renforcent lorsque l’espèr que du débarquement reprend corps. C’est d’ailleurs le Jour-J qui lance la grande montée au maquis.

Margaux et le redoublement

Ses nouvelles camarades de classe ont l’âge de sa petite sœur. « Elles sont très sympas, et elles sont aussi douées que moi. Mais mes amis sont en fac et moi je suis encore au lycée », regrette Margaux, qui fait sa première rentrée en terminale au lycée parisien Jules-Ferry.

« C’est la troisième fois que je redouble, ça commence à faire beaucoup. Mes parents l’ont demandé, car je ne maitrisais pas bien le calcul », retrace Margaux, qui souhaite devenir juge aux affaires familiales. Élève sérieuse, elle avait pourtant travaillé l’an dernier pour préparer son bac, mais elle l’a raté de quelques points. Malgré tout, la jeune femme entame cette année pleine d’espoir. « L’an passé, après mon redoublement, j’ai dû aller dans un autre lycée où mes profs étaient des étudiants à peine plus âgés que moi. On était quasiment livrés à nous-mêmes. Cette année, j’ai été admise dans un vrai lycée. »
Choisissez la bonne fin pour les phrases. Cochez les quatre phrases correctes.

(i) En comparaison avec ses camarades de classe, Margaux est…

(ii) À l’avenir, elle veut…

(iii) Elle médite sur la prochaine rentrée scolaire avec…

(iv) L’année dernière, ses professeurs…

Le Fest-Noz breton

Le Fest-Noz, rassemblement festif fondé sur la pratique collective des danses traditionnelles de Bretagne, a été réinventé dans les années 50 par les amateurs du mouvement folk. Cette réinvention était due à un regain d’intérêt pour la musique et les instruments traditionnels. La première fois que l’on se rend à un fest-noz, on remarque d’abord son côté collectif et multigénérationnel.

Les Bretons aiment la danse avec passion depuis longtemps. Dans la société rurale bretonne d’avant 1930, les grands travaux agricoles étaient la principale occasion de danser. Le repas convivial, où étaient seulement invités les travailleurs agricoles, était accompagné de concours de danse récompensés de tabac pour les hommes et de rubans pour les femmes.

Autrefois, l’église interdisait les danses kof-à-kof (ventre contre ventre) mais tolérait qu’on se tienne par le petit doigt. Pendant l’occupation, les nazis, ayant interdit l’organisation de bals publics, des bals clandestins se multiplièrent dans les villages.

Astérix

Astérix est une série de bande dessinée franco-belge créée par l’écrivain René Goscinny et le dessinateur Albert Uderzo.

Astérix chez les Bretons, qui présente des éléments spécifiques liés à la culture britannique, a particulièrement plu aux Anglais. Les Bretons du récit ne concernent pas les habitants de la Bretagne actuelle, mais ceux de la Grande-Bretagne. Bien que Goscinny soit arrivé aux États-Unis en 1945 sans connaître un seul mot d’anglais, au fil des années il a réussi à maîtriser cette langue. Dans cet album, il se moque systématiquement des tendances linguistiques propres à l’anglais en traduisant des expressions mot à mot en français.

Il ridiculise aussi les traditions britanniques. Par exemple, à cinq heures de l’après-midi, les Bretons boivent de l’eau chaude, il s’agit bien sûr de la célèbre tradition du thé. En plus, ils arrêtent le combat vendredi soir et refusent de se battre avant lundi matin, référence à l’idée française à cette époque du week-end anglais.

(a) Comment Goscinny et Uderzo ont-ils collaboré pour produire les albums d’Astérix ? Donnez deux détails.

(b) Pourquoi Astérix chez les Bretons a-t-il eu un tel succès en Angleterre ?

(c) Pourquoi quelques lecteurs français pourraient avoir des difficultés à apprécier certains aspects humoristiques de l’album ?

(d) Pourquoi Goscinny a-t-il trouvé son premier séjour en Amérique problématique ?

Lisez cet article d’un journal des années quarante, où Le Maréchal Pétain, chef d’État pendant la deuxième guerre mondiale, honore une section de la population. Répondez aux questions en français.

Une journée nationale spéciale

Lorsque l’on considère les femmes pendant la guerre, on pense à celles qui servent comme infirmières ou qui travaillent pour la Croix-Rouge. En plus, en 1939, tous les hommes de moins de quarante ans ont été appelés sous les drapeaux et les femmes devaient les remplacer dans les bureaux, les ateliers, les usines et les fermes. L’agriculture française était hélas très en retard dans la mécanisation. Aussi les bras des femmes devaient-ils compenser. Mais c’est dans les gestes humbles de la vie quotidienne que nos mères de famille font également preuve de dévouement et de courage.

« Ta maman a fait tout pour toi, le Maréchal te demande de l’en remercier. »

Partout les enfants ont préparé spectacles, lettres ou dessins pour fêter celles à qui le Maréchal a rendu hommage dans un message radiodiffusé. « Vous seules savez donner ce goût du travail, ce sens de la discipline qui rendent les hommes sains et les peuples forts. Vous êtes les inspiratrices de notre civilisation chrétienne. »

Les matinées organisées vont être l’occasion de la remise de prix et de médailles aux mères de famille nombreuse, cérémonies qui seront suivies d’un goûter qu’en cette période de pénurie les enfants ne manqueront pas d’apprécier.

(a) Un jeune homme de 25 ans en 1939, que devait-il faire ?

(b) Où est-ce que le travail était particulièrement dur pour les femmes et pourquoi ?

(c) À la fin du premier paragraphe, quel genre de femmes le Maréchal Pétain semble-t-il honorer ?

(d) Comment le slogan de Pétain sera-t-il présenté aux enfants ?
(e) Selon le Maréchal, comment les mères de famille aidaient-elles à rendre les hommes sains ?

(f) Sur quelle idéologie Pétain base-t-il cette journée de la mère ?

(g) Pourquoi les enfants apprécieront-ils particulièrement le goûter ?

Mon identité, ma nationalité

Depuis que j’ai quitté le Liban en 1976, pour m’installer en France, que de fois m’ont demandé si je me sentais « plutôt français » ou « plutôt libanais ». Je réponds toujours : « L’un et l’autre ! » parce qu’en répondant différemment, je mentirais. Ce qui fait que je suis moi-même et pas un autre, c’est que je suis ainsi à la lisière de deux pays. C’est précisément cela qui définit mon identité.

À ceux qui me posent la question, j’explique que je suis né au Liban, que j’y ai vécu jusqu’à l’âge de vingt-sept ans, que l’arabe est ma langue maternelle et que c’est d’abord en traduction arabe que j’ai découvert les livres fantastiques de Dumas et Dickens. Mais, d’un autre côté, je vis depuis vingt-deux ans sur la terre de France, j’écris mes livres dans sa langue, jamais plus elle ne sera pour moi une terre étrangère.

Parfois, lorsque j’ai fini d’expliquer tout cela, quelqu’un s’approche de moi pour murmurer : « Au fin fond de vous-même, qu’est-ce que vous vous sentez ? »

Cette interrogation insistantes est révélatrice d’une vision des hommes fort répandue et, à mes yeux, dangereuse. Lorsqu’on me pose cette question, cela suppose qu’il y a « au fin fond » de chacun une seule appartenance qui compte, déterminée une fois pour toutes à la naissance et qui ne changera jamais.

Le fait d’être chrétien et d’avoir pour langue maternelle l’arabe est un des paradoxes fondamentaux qui ont forgé mon identité. Par ailleurs, mon appartenance au christianisme crée un lien significatif entre moi et les quelque deux milliards de chrétiens dans le monde.

Ainsi, en considérant séparément ces deux éléments de mon identité, je me sens proche, soit par la langue soit par la religion, d’une bonne moitié de l’humanité ; en prenant ces deux mêmes critères simultanément, je me retrouve confronté à ma spécificité.

(a) Comment peut-on justifier l’idée que Maalouf est un homme honnête ?

(b) Maalouf dit qu’il est « à la lisière de deux pays ». Expliquez cette phrase.

(c) Quand il était petit, qu’est-ce qu’il aimait lire ?

Parfois, lorsque j’ai fini d’expliquer tout cela, quelqu’un s’approche de moi pour murmurer : « Au fin fond de vous-même, qu’est-ce que vous vous sentez ? »

Cette interrogation insistante est révélatrice d’une vision des hommes fort répandue et, à mes yeux, dangereuse. Lorsqu’on me pose cette question, cela suppose qu’il y a « au fin fond » de chacun une seule appartenance qui compte, déterminée une fois pour toutes à la naissance et qui ne changera jamais.

Le fait d’être chrétien et d’avoir pour langue maternelle l’arabe est un des paradoxes fondamentaux qui ont forgé mon identité. Par ailleurs, mon appartenance au christianisme crée un lien significatif entre moi et les quelque deux milliards de chrétiens dans le monde.

Ainsi, en considérant séparément ces deux éléments de mon identité, je me sens proche, soit par la langue soit par la religion, d’une bonne moitié de l’humanité ; en prenant ces deux mêmes critères simultanément, je me retrouve confronté à ma spécificité.

(a) Comment peut-on justifier l’idée que Maalouf est un homme honnête ?

(b) Maalouf dit qu’il est « à la lisière de deux pays ». Expliquez cette phrase.

(c) Quand il était petit, qu’est-ce qu’il aimait lire ?

(d) Pourquoi Maalouf dit-il que la France ne sera jamais plus pour lui « une terre étrangère » ? Donnez un détail.

(e) Selon Maalouf, qu’est-ce qui est dangereux ?

(f) Quel rôle le christianisme joue-t-il dans la vie de Maalouf ?

(g) Comment Maalouf peut-il croire qu’il est proche de la moitié de l’humanité ? Donnez deux détails.

SECTION C: TRANSLATION INTO ENGLISH

We recommend you spend around 20 minutes on this section.

10 Translate the following text from Céline Dion's autobiography into English.

J'avais douze ans et ma mère voulait faire de moi une chanteuse capable de remplir les grandes salles de concert. Pour moi c'était un rêve mais Maman avait un plan d'action. « Il te faut des chansons à toi, Céline. Un agent ne voudra rien savoir d'une fille qui ne fait qu'imiter les autres! On ne peut pas juger de la valeur d'une chanteuse qui interprète une chanson déjà bien connue. » Il fallait que je crée moi-même quelques chansons pour qu'un agent sache que je comprenais quelque chose à la musique. Ce que ma mère m'avait dit m'apparaissait comme évident, même si je n'y avais jamais pensé de façon aussi précise.

Paper 1 marking principles for Section A and B

Candidate responses

- For open response questions, the candidate does not have to write in full sentences. If appropriate, they may respond using single words or phrases (with the exception of Question 4(b), summary writing).

  Example of short phrases with two or more words:

  o devenir militaire (verb/noun)
  o Il n’aime pas mentir (verb/negation)
  o (des valeurs) chrétiennes (verb/adjective).

- In Question 4b, candidates must use short phrases but no single words, as this would not be appropriate for summary writing.

- When responding to open response questions, candidates may use words from the listening passage or reading extract but they must not transcribe or copy whole sections where the question requires them to manipulate the language in order to render the response accurate to the question.

  Example:

  Text:
  Je mange surtout des fruits et des légumes pour rester en bonne santé.

  Question:
  Selon le texte, en quoi consiste un régime sain ?

  Rewardable answer:
  Manger surtout des fruits et des légumes.

  Non-rewardable answer:
  Je mange surtout des fruits et des légumes pour rester en bonne santé.

  Candidates who copy the whole sentence, as exemplified above as the Non-rewardable answer, would not be awarded marks without manipulating the verb in the sentence, ‘manger.’ This is because it does not render an accurate answer to the question. However as the exemplified Rewardable answer shows, candidates may still use words from the listening passage or reading extract.

- There are no marks for quality of language in this paper so errors and omissions in spelling and grammar will be tolerated as long as the message is not ambiguous or interferes with communication.

- Consider only as many elements as there are marks, for example for a 1-mark answer, the candidate’s first response is taken for assessment, even if this response is incorrect but the correct information follows as a further element. Where 2 marks are available, award the individual marks discretely but apply the order of elements rule.

- Written responses in the wrong language cannot be awarded a mark.
Guidance to examiners on understanding and applying the mark scheme

- Alternative ways of giving the same answer are indicated with a slash (/) in between the alternative responses, for example: Goscinny écrivait/faisait le texte.

- Where appropriate, responses have been separated with ‘AND’ for compulsory answers and ‘OR’ for possible answers, for example:

  o Aux fermes (1)

  AND

  o Parce qu’il y avait un manque de machines (1)

  OR

  o Il n’y avait pas beaucoup de mécanisation (1).

- Any parts of an answer that are not essential are bracketed and any parts that are key words are underlined, for example: Sur les murs des écoles (de France).

- Candidates are likely to write variants on the acceptable answers listed and these should be considered as acceptable if they convey the correct answer.

- All possible answers have the correct amount of marks appropriate for the information required indicated in brackets.

- Suggested incorrect answers are indicated in the ‘Reject’ column.

Marking principles

Mis-spelling is tolerated as long as it does not lead to ambiguity, for example drought mis-spelled as drowght would be acceptable but mis-spelled as draught would be unacceptable as this would lead to ambiguity.

Learners are likely to write variants on the acceptable answers listed and these should be considered as acceptable if they convey the same intended meaning.

Translation is successful if an English speaker would understand the translation without having understood the text in its original language.

Instructions

• Use black ink or ball-point pen.
• Fill in the boxes at the top of this page with your name, centre number and candidate number.
• Answer Question 1 in Section A. You must answer two questions from Sections B and C – this means either two questions from Section B or one question from Section B and one question from Section C. Write between 300 and 350 words for questions in Section B and Section C.
• We recommend you spend 30 minutes on Section A: Translation.
• Answer the questions in the spaces provided – there may be more space than you need.
• Dictionaries are not allowed in this examination.
• Copies of works are not allowed in this examination.

Information

• The total mark for this paper is 120.
• The marks for each question are shown in brackets – use this as a guide as to how much time to spend on each question.

Advice

• Read each question carefully before you start to answer it.
• Check your answers if you have time at the end.

When the European Union adopted a policy of free movement of people, many citizens of poor countries started to move to France. It is difficult for an immigrant to fit into a new society unless he has friends or relatives there. Even if he speaks a little French, he will have to try to improve the language as soon as possible. Immigrants have been accused of taking the jobs of those who already live there. In fact, they often end up accepting the work which the latter refuse to do. If people were more tolerant, immigrants would have fewer problems.
People often end up accepting the work which the latter refuse to do. If people were more careful, they would have been accused of taking the jobs of those who already live there. In fact, they would not have fitted into a new society unless he has friends or relatives there. Even if he speaks a little French, it would be easier for him to find work.

When the European Union adopted a policy of free movement of people, many migrants moved to countries like France. However, they faced many challenges in integrating into the new society. Some of them had difficulty in finding work, while others encountered difficulties in adapting to the cultural differences. It is essential to ensure that migrants are provided with the necessary support to integrate successfully into the new society.

Paper 2 mark scheme

Section A – Question 1 (translation) into assessed language

This task is a points-based mark scheme in which 1 mark is given for each correct individual section of language. A correct translation is provided in a grid which also outlines the alternative translations that will be accepted or the translations to be rejected. Marking principles for error tolerance with examples are given directly above the grid.

Marking principles

Accents: non-grammatical accent errors are tolerated, for example dangéreux rather than dangereux, unless they cause ambiguity (for example passe rather than passé).

Spelling: non-grammatical mis-spellings are tolerated, for example orreille rather than oreille, as long as they are not ambiguous (for example pure rather than peur) or in the wrong language.

Verb endings must be correct and will not be classed as spelling errors.

Adjective endings must be correct and will not be classed as spelling errors.

Accept any appropriate alternatives that do not already appear in the acceptable answers column.

Sections B and C, Questions 2 to 26 (written response to works)

There are three levels-based mark grids to be applied to each individual essay that makes up the written response to works. The mark grids are:

- Critical and analytical response (AO4)
- Range of grammatical structures and vocabulary (AO3)
- Accuracy of language (AO3)

General guidance on using levels-based mark schemes

Step 1 Decide on a band

- You should first of all consider the answer as a whole and then decide which descriptors most closely match the answer and place it in that band. The descriptors for each band indicate the different features that will be seen in the student’s answer for that band.

- When assigning a level you should look at the overall quality of the answer and not focus disproportionately on small and specific parts of the answer where the student has not performed quite as well as the rest. If the answer covers different aspects of different bands of the mark scheme you should use a ‘best fit’ approach for defining the level and then use the variability of the response to help decide the mark within the level, for example if the response is predominantly band 5–8 with a small amount of band 9–12 material, it would be placed in band 5–8 but be awarded a mark near the top of the band because of the band 9–12 content.

Step 2 Decide on a mark

- Once you have decided on a band you will then need to decide on a mark within the band.

- You will decide on the mark to award based on the quality of the answer; you will award a mark towards the top or bottom of that band, depending on how students have evidenced each of the descriptor bullet points.

- You will modify the mark based on how securely the trait descriptors are met at that band.

- You will need to go back through the answer as you apply the mark scheme to clarify points and assure yourself that the band and the mark are appropriate.
Critical and analytical response (AO4)

- This mark grid assesses students’ ability to respond critically and analytically to the aspect of the literary work or film outlined in the question. To provide a critical and analytical response, students should select relevant material, present and justify points of view, develop arguments, draw conclusions based on understanding and evaluate issues, themes and cultural and social contexts.

- This grid should be applied twice, once for each essay individually.

- When deciding how to reward an answer, you should consult this mark grid as well as the indicative content associated with each question (see below). Indicative content contains points that students are likely to use to construct their answer. It is possible for an answer to be constructed without mentioning some or all of these points as long as students provide alternative responses that fulfil the requirements of the question.

| 1–4 | - Points of view relating to issues/themes/cultural or social contexts are presented with simplistic justification limited interpretation with frequent misunderstanding or confusion; any evidence from the work is descriptive.
- Limited ability to form arguments or draw conclusions.
- Response relates to the work but limited focus on the question. |
| 5–8 | - Points of view relating to issues/themes/cultural or social contexts are presented, with attempts made at interpretation, but they occasionally show misunderstanding or confusion; evidence selected from the work for justification is occasionally appropriate but often descriptive.
- Arguments are made but with inconsistencies; conclusions are drawn but do not fully link to arguments.
- Response relates to the work but often loses focus on the question. |
| 9–12 | - Critical analysis of issues/themes/cultural or social contexts is evident in relation to particular aspects of the question, with some appropriate interpretations and points of view, sometimes justified by appropriately selected evidence from the work.
- Logical arguments are followed through on particular aspects of the question, occasionally detailed and with linked conclusions; some points are made without exploration.
- Response is relevant to particular aspects of the question, occasional loss of focus. |
| 13–16 | - Critical analysis of issues/themes/cultural or social contexts is frequently demonstrated, with some convincing interpretations and points of view, predominantly justified with appropriately selected evidence from the work.
- Generally detailed, logical arguments are made, with some persuasive conclusions that mostly link together.
- Predominantly relevant response to the question. |
| 17–20 | - Critical analysis of issues/themes/cultural or social contexts is demonstrated through convincing interpretations and points of view, consistently justified with appropriately selected evidence from the work.
- Detailed, logical arguments and conclusions are made that consistently link together.
- Relevant response to the question throughout. |
Range of grammatical structures and vocabulary (AO3)

- This mark grid assesses students’ ability to use a range of grammatical structures and vocabulary in order to produce articulate written communication with a range of expression.
- This grid should be applied twice, once for each essay individually.

| 1–4   | Limited variation of straightforward grammatical structures with much repetition, producing writing that is often restricted and stilted.
Limited range of vocabulary resulting in repetitive expression.
Limited use of terminology appropriate to literary and cinematic analysis. |
| 5–8   | Occasional variation in use of mostly straightforward grammatical structures, infrequent use of complex language, producing writing that is sometimes stilted.
Vocabulary is mostly high frequency with occasional variation, expression is frequently repetitive.
Occasional use of terminology appropriate for literary and cinematic analysis. |
| 9–12  | Some variation in the use of grammatical structures, including some recurrent examples of complex language; sections of articulate writing with occasionally stilted phrasing.
Some variation in use of vocabulary, resulting in variation of expression but this is not sustained.
Some use of terminology appropriate for literary and cinematic analysis. |
| 13–16 | Frequent variation in use of grammatical structures, including different types of complex language, producing writing that is articulate throughout the majority of the essay.
Frequently varied use of vocabulary, resulting in regular variation of expression.
Frequent use of terminology appropriate for literary and cinematic analysis. |
| 17–20 | Consistent variation in use of grammatical structures, including in use of complex language, producing consistently articulate writing.
Consistently varied use of vocabulary, allowing ideas to be conveyed in a variety of different ways.
Consistent use of terminology appropriate for literary and cinematic analysis. |
Additional guidance

Variation of vocabulary and grammatical structures: the traits in the mark grid differentiate between the variation of grammatical structures and vocabulary used by students. Examiners should judge in which mark band to place students and which mark to award, based on the effect that the variety of grammatical structures and vocabulary has on the quality of the communication; the wider the variety, the more articulate the communication will become, (see definition of articulate below).

Examples of a variety of grammatical structures and vocabulary are: a selection of different verbs, tenses, adjectives, vocabulary (including to express literary and cinematic analysis – (see further detail below), complex language (see definition below) for a variety of purposes, including to present and justify points of view, develop arguments, draw conclusions based on understanding.

Articulate: articulate communication is fluent, effective and coherent as students control/manipulate the language to say what they want to say rather than what they can say, for a number of different purposes. If students are restricted to what they can say, they may not be able to express themselves for all purposes, for example to develop arguments.

Terminology for literary and cinematic analysis: vocabulary for critical analysis according to the work being studied, for example ‘plot’, ‘character’; figures of speech such as ‘metaphor’, ‘similes’; to describe theme and style such as, ‘camera technique’, ‘hand-held camera’, ‘use of black and white’, ‘first person narrative.’

Complex language is considered to include the following:
- conceptually challenging tenses such as the pluperfect, future perfect
- passive voice
- subjunctive mood
- use of relative pronouns
- using extended sentences to express abstract ideas/convey justified arguments that require a range of lexis and structures, for example conjunctions and pronouns
- using synonyms and a variety of expressions to say things in different ways
- all grammar and structures included in the grammar list that are specific to A Level.

Straightforward language is considered to be:
- simple sentences with limited linking of sentences and clauses
- high frequency grammatical structures and vocabulary.
Accuracy of language (AO3)

- This mark grid assesses students’ ability to apply grammar and syntax accurately.
- This grid should be applied twice, once for each essay individually.

</tbody>
</table>

Additional guidance

Errors: students are not expected to produce perfect, error-free writing in order to access the top band as errors are also made by native speakers. The mark grid describes the frequency of errors and the impact that errors have on coherence.

Errors that do not hinder clarity:
- errors that do not affect meaning, for example gender, adjectival agreements
- infrequent errors that do not distract the reader from the content and which result in coherent writing.

Errors that hinder clarity:
- errors that make writing difficult to understand immediately (even if the meaning is eventually understood)/errors that force readers to re-read in order to understand what is meant, for example inappropriate tense formation, mismatch of subject and the possessive adjective
- frequent errors hinder clarity as they will distract the reader from the content of the writing.

Errors that prevent meaning being conveyed:
- errors that mean the reader cannot understand the message
- errors that convey the wrong message
- errors that make it unclear who is carrying out the action, for example using the incorrect person of the verb
- mother-tongue interference.

NB: these are examples only and do not constitute a finite list.
Indicative content

Indicative content is not exhaustive. Students should be rewarded for any valid response and may draw on a range of relevant examples from the work.

| 3(a)        | La Place – Annie Ernaux
               Students may refer to the following in their answers.
This is a personal narration. It is in the first person, the past is conveyed through the passé composé, i.e. like a spoken narration.
• The relationship is given from her point of view so she has control over what she shares with the reader.
• She uses a matter of fact style, which reflects her detachment from her father, e.g. the description of her father on his deathbed.
• The beginning of the work is very important, e.g. the narrator's teaching certificate changes her social status.
• The ending is equally significant, e.g. it shows we have come full circle, this generation also does not understand the next.
• The narration contains isolated details and memories about her father and the past, e.g. it is deliberately disjointed, a series of allusions evoke the past but not in any chronological order. |
| 3(b)        | La Place – Annie Ernaux
               Students may refer to the following in their answers.
The daughter has done things which the previous generation never experienced, e.g. she has been to boarding school, she has travelled.
• Education is probably the biggest factor of change, e.g. she is lifted by it into a different culture, her experience of social change is intellectual.
• Marriage also affects relationships, e.g. she has married a man from a different class and has moved with him to another part of France.
• The father fails to understand the changes in his daughter's existence. |

| 4(a)        | Le Blé en Herbe – ColetteStudents may refer to the following in their answers. Vinca and Phil have spent many summers together as children, now things are changing, e.g. they are moving into adolescence and this is affecting their relationship.
- Colette skilfully suggests from the beginning that things are altered, e.g. they are more awkward in each other’s company.
- In Vinca she gives a convincing portrait of an adolescent girl, e.g. she is still very much a child but she is developing the charm, grace and maturity of a grown woman.
- Phil is also well depicted as an adolescent boy, e.g. he is strong and active, impatient, he does not know how to react to new situations.
- Mme Dalleray is a catalyst to their changing roles. |
| 4(b)        | Le Blé en Herbe – ColetteStudents may refer to the following in their answers. Mme Dalleray is out of place on the Breton coast, e.g. she is a sophisticated stranger from Paris; she totters along uncomfortably on her high heels. Everyone, including Phil, finds her a fascinating character.
- Phil encounters Mme Dalleray at a crucial stage in his development and in his relationship with Vinca, which is changing in a way that neither of the two young people really understands.
- She acts as a catalyst to events, e.g. she lures Phil into seduction.
- Phil is intoxicated by the exotic nature of Ker-Anna, which has been transformed to fit Mme Dalleray’s character and where she is completely at home.
- She is aggressive, e.g. she dominates Phil and lures him to her on her terms.
- She is a contrast to others in the book, e.g. she rejects bourgeois morality; there is sadness behind her self-interest. At a time when Phil has the natural rebelliousness of a teenager, her rejection of bourgeois morality strikes a chord with him.
- It is flattering for him to receive the attentions of an older, sophisticated, experienced woman. |

| 5(a)            | Le Château de ma Mère – Marcel Pagnol
Students may refer to the following in their answers.

The ending is effective because it comes as a complete shock and a contrast to the rest of the book as after the evocation of a carefree, idyllic childhood the mood is starkly and brutally shattered in less than a page.

- The position is important, as it comes straight after the jolliest episode with the jovial Bouzigue and the family celebrating the end of their troubles. It is completely unexpected, and so highly effective.
- Pagnol’s idealised world is shocking and complete, as almost all those dear to him are dead. This contrasts sharply with everything that has gone before.
- Effective imagery is employed to express the extent of Pagnol’s devastation, e.g. Lili, who knew everything about Provence, is said to lie amongst unknown plants of the northern battlefields.
- There is final supreme irony, e.g. someone procures as a film set for his company the very property that caused his mother so much distress. Therefore, Marcel once more is invited to see his mother, pale and trembling, as she was on that fateful day.
- The deaths lead to a pessimistic conclusion about life, which is out of keeping with the rest of the work. |

| 5(b)            | Le Château de ma Mère – Marcel Pagnol
Students may refer to the following in their answers.
Both men are dear to Marcel and whilst they have some things in common, they also have important differences.
- The father is a rather serious, straight-laced teetotaller. He is caring and supportive and tries to make life easier for the family, e.g. he agrees to take a short cut to the cottage in the hills.
- Jules is more jovial, witty character and something of a bon vivueur. He engages with the family, e.g. accompanies them on hunting trips.
- The biggest difference between the two men is over religion, e.g. the father is a secular republican, Jules is a devout Christian.
- In spite of their differences they both dearly love their families and they work well as a team, e.g. Jules prays for them all at Christmas and the father thanks him for this, taking it as an act of friendship. The father, in spite of his teetotalism, agrees to share a glass with Jules.
- Both are seen, at one stage, as traitors by Marcel, e.g. they are willing and pleased to be going back to town after the long summer holidays.
- Both men are important and influential members of a family whose members all get on well together and who support each other. |

| 6(a)        | Le Gone du Chaâba – Azouz Begag
Students may refer to the following in their answers.
The different educational experiences have a profound effect on Azouz, in different ways.
  - Azouz’s experiences in the first school are rather mixed, e.g. as one of the Arab children he is not given much encouragement by M. Grand until he determines to do as well as the French pupils.
  - Azouz’s initial success in the first school has mixed consequences, e.g. he does well and is praised but his good work arouses resentment in his fellows who say he is no longer an Arab. He has to deal with this hostility while persevering in his determination to do well.
  - His second school provides only a negative experience because of his unpleasant teacher, e.g. Mme Valard constantly tries to belittle him in order to show that he cannot live up to his glowing testimonial from the previous school and he loses some of the self-confidence he previously had.
  - His previous success in bridging the cultural divide suffers as he tries to deny his background, e.g. in the episode outside school he fails to acknowledge his mother because he has lied about his origins.
  - Azouz really prospers in the third school as his pied noir teacher encourages him to be proud of his culture and background. His academic progress is swift.
  - His success in school appears mostly to depend on the quality and personality of the teachers encountered.  |

Le Gone du Chaâba – Azouz Begag

Students may refer to the following in their answers:

The police raid on the Chaâba has a profound effect, e.g. families begin to move away to be rehoused, Bouzid loses the authority he had as head of the Chaâba.

- Azouz’s family is one of the last to move to a flat in a high-rise block. Members of the family have different responses to the changed situation.

- The younger members of the family are positive about the move, e.g. Azouz enjoys his new-found freedom to play in the streets and enjoys watching television. Zohra, above all, loves the cleanliness of the new home and the advantages that electricity brings.

- The women are pleased to have an easier life, e.g. they delight in the new labour-saving gadgets.

- Bouzid has a totally negative view, e.g. he distrusts any electrical appliances, he hates the television, and he ends up returning several times to the Chaâba.

- With the exception of Bouzid, the move is greeted positively for the most part. For Azouz it represents an important step in integration into mainstream society.

- Bouzid loses his authority within the community at large and in the family. The alienation of the head of the household has a destabilising effect on the family at a time when most of them are pleased with their new surroundings.

| 7(a) | Les Mains Sales – Jean-Paul Sartre
Students may refer to the following in their answers.

A flashback technique is used which might seem to destroy tension at first sight, as we know what will happen, but the mystery and suspense remain in the many unanswered questions which unfold through the flashback.

- A deadline is set, e.g. Olga has until midnight to save Hugo.
- Within the flashback the scene of greatest tension is the one between Hugo and Hoederer, e.g. will the former shoot or not? Tension is slackened only to be tightened again several times.
- The last tableau returns to the present and is the most full of tension, e.g. the ticking clock, car headlights, steps on the stairs.
- The melodramatic ending is important in creating tension, e.g. Hugo condemns himself by declaring himself ‘non-récupérable’.
- The tension is important as it turns what potentially could have been a rather arid play into something very watchable which holds the interest of the audience. |
| 7(b) | Les Mains Sales – Jean-Paul Sartre
Students may refer to the following in their answers.

There is political interest in the play amongst other things, e.g. characters who jostle for power, philosophy.

- The whole situation is politically charged, e.g. the power vacuum left after the Germans’ departure needs to be filled.
- The ‘negotiating’ scene is of great importance as the various factions, each led by a distinct personality, jostle for power but Hoederer, who holds all the trump cards, comes out the winner.
- The key scene between Hugo and Hoederer contains political debate, e.g. idealism versus pragmatism, a discussion of ends and means.
- There is implied criticism of communism, e.g. the party line changes and individuals are sacrificed to expediency. Hugo becomes an expendable embarrassment. |

| 8(a)            | Les Petits Enfants du siècle – Christiane Rochefort
Students may refer to the following in their answers.
The novel deals with the post-war period. As France recovered from the effects of war, the population becomes better off and the characters in the novel start to focus on material goods and allowances from the state.
- Demographic rebuilding was necessary due to France’s low birth rate. Couples were encouraged, by generous allowances, to have several children.
- There were marked effects on working-class families, e.g. there was a constant insistence on consumerism, as families acquired gadgets. An extra child often facilitated the acquisition of a food mixer, television or even a car.
- The father and other male figures are obsessed with their newly-acquired cars. His daughter Josyane finds this amusing to the point that she ridicules this behaviour.
- The end of the novel suggests that little is changing, e.g. Josyane is looking forward to the bonus that comes with her first child.
- The state is seen to encourage large families, but then houses them in far from ideal circumstances, e.g. overcrowding leads to promiscuity.
- One family stands out as different – the Lefranc family. They are anti-capitalist and believe that everyone will prosper once a fully socialist system is introduced.
- The Lefranc family is not as large as others – who have children as a way of acquiring goods. The daughter Ethel is allowed to concentrate undisturbed on her studies and her ambition to become a primary school teacher. The boys contribute to household chores. They do not believe that happiness comes through the acquisition of material possessions. |

Students may refer to the following in their answers.

Josyane as narrator no doubt intended to deliver a serious message but there are humorous elements which help to underline this message and shed light on her character.

- Her humour in the book is largely satirical and sardonic.
- She makes fun of the prevailing consumerism, e.g. unborn children are referred to as the gadgets which they might help a family to acquire.
- Her detached view arouses humour, e.g. she makes many withering comments on events and attitudes.
- Males in society come in for particularly critical depiction from Josyane, e.g. the father’s attempts to drive, Patrick’s ineffectual attempts to build a hut.
- There is some humour in the language she uses, e.g. the racy language of both children and adults is reproduced.
- Through the comic elements we receive a view of the narrator as a detached, rather cynical observer. |

| 9(a)            | Le Tartuffe – Molière
Students may refer to the following in their answers.
Molière ridicules the idea of arranged marriages via the different views of the characters in the play.
- Orgon sees it as a commodity to feed his obsession, e.g. one way to reward the unctuous Tartuffe is to give him his daughter in marriage.
- Arranged marriages have nothing to do with love or attraction, e.g. Orgon does not take his daughter's feelings about Tartuffe into account or that she wishes to marry another.
- Tartuffe shares this view, e.g. he sees the marriage as a means of self-advancement.
- Reasonable people around Orgon try to persuade him to drop the absurd idea, e.g. his wife, son etc.
- It is left to the outspoken servant Dorine to express most forcefully the sensible ideas on marriage, e.g. she says that infidelity is bound to follow when incompatible people are forced to marry.
- Eventually the only way to make Orgon see sense is for his own wife to trick Tartuffe into a perfidious avowal of love. |

While the play is couched in what is now limited outdated language, and despite the fact that it reflects the customs and values of a bygone age, it still commands interest with a wide variety of people, which can be attributed to its universal appeal.
• Le Tartuffe deals with universal human characteristics, e.g. there will always be hypocrites, religious or otherwise, and gullible fools.
• Audiences still like to see flawed characters ridiculed.
• It is funny as it has comedy of character, e.g. Tartuffe.
• Visual humour, e.g. when Tartuffe is exposed.
• Use of language for humour, e.g. witticisms such as the servant’s way of putting forth opinions.
• Romance is a universal theme, audiences of any age enjoy romance.
The play deals with the triumph of good over evil, e.g. all audiences like to identify with pleasant people whose happiness is threatened by the misguided views of others. |

| 10(a) | L’Étranger – Albert Camus
Students may refer to the following in their answers.

Marie is a young secretary with whom Meursault has a brief affair soon after the death of his mother.

- Marie is the epitome of conventionality. The stark contrast with Meursault brings out his unconventional nature and his inability to integrate into society.
- Marie shares the values and the attitudes of the society that cannot accept Meursault being different. She would like to be married and settle down in a standard relationship but Meursault rather brutally tells her that such things mean nothing to him.
- Marie brings out the sensual nature of Meursault which is at odds with convention. He has sex with her the day after the funeral of Meursault’s mother and even she is shocked to see that he is in mourning.

Meursault is roundly condemned for his behaviour with Marie and this is stressed at the trial, part of the important thesis that he is convicted, not for what he does but for what he is. |
| 10(b) | L’Étranger – Albert Camus
Students may refer to the following in their answers.

A satirical picture of conventional justice is a major feature in this novel, after the murder of the Arab. The highly-flawed system is highlighted in a number of ways.

- Justice is different for people of different races, e.g. the guard interacts in a friendly way with Meursault. It is even suggested that a white man might expect to get away with killing an Arab, if he plays his cards right.
- Justice is based on untruth, e.g. Meursault’s lawyer tries to get him to lie about the killing but he refuses to do so. This infuriates the legal man, so we can see a very critical portrayal of a highly flawed system.
- Justice is seen as a game, e.g. Meursault does not get off because he will not play the game.
- Justice goes hand in hand with conventional religion, e.g. his lawyer tries to get Meursault to acknowledge a belief in God, the ‘aumônier’ asks him to repent and accept God’s will, but Meursault rejects such invitations.

Meursault is condemned, not for what he does, but for what he is, e.g. at the trial the prosecutor concentrates not on the murder but on Meursault’s unconventional behaviour, particularly in relation to the death of his mother and his subsequent behaviour. |

| 12(a) | Thérèse Desqueyroux – François MauriacStudents may refer to the following in their answers. |

Most of the action of the novel takes place in South West France which is depicted as an isolated and inward-looking area.

- The main source of wealth affects the inhabitants’ thinking, e.g. financial security is achieved by possession of as much pine forest as possible.
- Acquisition of property is the driving force behind some marriages, e.g. Thérèse and Bernard.
- Bernard is a typical product of the area, e.g. he is bigoted and narrow-minded, mistrustful of any disruptive outside influences and lacks social skills.
- Within this society the reputation of the family must be protected, e.g. they cover up the attempted murder, the threat from Azévédo must be removed at all costs.
- Summer heat in the area also affects thinking, e.g. forest fires are feared more than anything, preoccupation with this leads to Bernard taking an overdose.

| 12(b) | Thérèse Desqueyroux – François MauriacStudents may refer to the following in their answers. |

When young, the two girls are extremely close, e.g. they spend school holidays together, Anne is excited at the idea of becoming Thérèse’s sister-in-law. The relationship changes as they move further into adulthood.

- Alienation comes after the marriage and when Anne has become besotted with Azévédo, e.g. she expects Thérèse to support her against the family but she fails to do this.
- Thérèse’s failure to back Anne leads to an irreparable rift, e.g. Thérèse agrees that Azévédo is a threat and must be stopped.
- Thérèse is jealous of Anne’s happiness, e.g. their respective relationships with Azévédo and Bernard.
- Anne virtually replaces Thérèse as mother to the latter’s daughter, e.g. Thérèse is not deemed fit to look after her.

| 13(a)       | Une si longue lettre – Mariama Bâ
Students may refer to the following in their answers.

Much of Bâ’s long letter concerns the question of marriage, her own and that of other people close to her.

- By describing her own situation and the reactions of wives within the family circle to desertion by the husband, Bâ is throwing light on marriage in Senegalese society and the traditions and conventions associated with marriage.

- As the correspondence proceeds and in its treatment of past events, we gradually see the emergence of changing attitudes of both women and men. The account starts with the death of her husband Modou. It is revealed that, under the system of polygamy common in Senegal, he had taken a second, much younger wife and abandoned his first wife and their 12 children. This is seen by most as quite usual.

- Mariama is resentful at being left. She refuses to meekly accept old values but her rebellion does not extend to divorce.

- It becomes clear that her correspondent, Aïssatou, had been in the same position but had rebelled, had divorced and forged a life for herself as a new woman.

- The men, either bowing to family pressures or through their own inclination, accept the old customs of polygamy. The older generation sees arranged marriages as a way of enhancing their wealth and position.

- Towards the end, her daughter and son-in law are seen as a new, modern family in which both partners are seen as equals, a situation thoroughly accepted by the husband.

| 13(b)           | Une si longue lettre – Mariama Bâ
Students may refer to the following in their answers.

The book does not consist of an exchange of letters but of one long letter (hence the title) from the author Ramatoulaye to her friend Aïssatou. Each successive chapter can be seen as an individual letter.

- By using this format, the writer is not describing a situation at one given time but is able to demonstrate how society develops and changes over time – she does this through the treatment of a number of events in the course of the life of her family and friends.
- The death of Modou starts it all off. Ramatoulaye writes of the death and traditional period of mourning to her friend and this naturally leads to reminiscences about their past.
- She recalls how they both studied and became better educated than women in the past.
- Her resentment at being abandoned for another younger woman, a friend of her daughter’s, leads to a natural discussion of changing attitudes to marriage in the emerging, independent country.
- Modern women refuse to be treated as chattels, whereas the older generation sees marriage as a natural way of improving themselves.
- Being courted as a recently widowed woman by an old flame who has become a political figure of some importance allows allusions to independence and the difficult road towards democracy.
- Towards the end, Ramatoulaye confides in Aïssatou, herself a mother, that she is having some problems with her growing, teenage children. This brings a discussion of more liberal attitudes to children over such things as smoking, alcohol and delicate subjects such as contraception.
- There is one disadvantage to the style – we see things only from the perspective of Mamatoulaye.

During the course of their travels, Jo and Maurice come across a range of people, some of whom help them and some wish them harm, thus giving a mixed view of human nature.

- Children can exhibit the ability to abuse and be vindictive, as shown when the Jewish boys have to wear the star at school.
- The most ill-disposed to the boys are the Germans. A cruel and callous side to human nature is revealed when they are arrested and in the Hotel Excelsior.
- Some French people can be equally hostile, e.g. the Mancelier family.
- Many others, however, through their good nature, help and protect the boys, e.g. inexplicably the German doctor, the two Catholic priests and Subinagui who gives most sustained succour at la Moisson Nouvelle.
- At the Liberation some Resistance members want revenge but in saving Mancelier, Jo shows that he has joined the ranks of ‘the good’.

In normal circumstances no doubt their paths would not have crossed, e.g. the Jewish boy Jean Bonnet is introduced into Julien Quentin’s Catholic boarding school to protect him and thus the two are thrown together by chance.
- The relationship does not get off to the best start, e.g. being of the same age, they share a dormitory but at first they are rivals, there is friction between them.
- They come to share a deadly secret, e.g. Julien discovers that Jean is in fact a Jew, a fact which must not be revealed.
- A treasure hunt in which they both take part is a turning point, e.g. they rely on each other in it, they form a bond and a friendship blossoms.
- Some blame may attach to Julien for the unfortunate eventual outcome, e.g. it is his inadvertent glance to Jean which arouses the Gestapo’s suspicions and leads to the arrests.

Students may refer to the following in their answers.

Luc plays a relatively small but significant role in the film and the presence of this character serves to highlight the main themes of the film.

- Luc is an ex-student in a seminary who has become a drifter. He stays with the family after a light aircraft makes a forced landing nearby. The bored wives find him attractive. Part of his charm seems to lie in being rude to everyone.
- He insists on eating with the servants and using their shower, thus distorting the lines of conduct between the classes.
- He makes a pass at Aimée, she is not interested, but he makes public the evident sexual attraction between Aimée and Protée that has been simmering throughout the film.
- There is a fight between Luc and Protée, which results in the latter losing his job as a houseboy. He is banished outside to act as a mechanic, this brings to an end any relationship between him, the mother and the young girl.
- Much of what Luc brings out has been suggested before, in this way he acts as a catalyst. In particular, the erotic tension between Aimée and Protée is brought to the fore by Luc’s behaviour.
- Luc’s intervention has the effect of maintaining the status quo, e.g. in the relationship between the indigenous population and the colonial powers. |

|                 | • France’s father is a colonial administrator who is often away. The innocent eight-year-old accepts the subjugation of the black natives by the white colonists as the natural order of things but gradually grows aware of the social inequalities. |
|                 | • The girl and her mother attempt to move beyond the boundaries between themselves and the native Africans. Only in retrospect, however, does the grown-up heroine realise how cruel the colonial system had been. |
|                 | • The film is about the rules and conventions of a racist society that soon must come to an end. The passengers from the crashed plane represent much which is wrong with society as it existed. |
|                 | • Protée embodies dignity and intelligence in a society that denies him status. |

| 17(a) Cléo de 5 à 7 – Agnès Varda | Students may refer to the following in their answers. The film is largely concerned with what happens to the eponymous heroine in two hours of her life. The outcome of the various encounters and interactions during that short space of time leave her changed, more grown up, with a deeper understanding of life.
- It begins with a beautiful but spoilt young pop star who wanders across Paris while awaiting the results of an important medical test.
- Cléo can be seen as a gamine forced to face the hollowness of her youth by the possibility of serious illness.
- Her boyfriend comes to see her but he is too busy to pay her much attention; her musicians and those behind her success as a pop star come to work with her but they serve only to show the capriciousness with which they treat her.
- She decides to change. She insists on a black dress in summer, takes off her wig and tries to see things from a different perspective. She learns most from her friend Dorothée.
- Finally, she meets a soldier who is off to war next day. He accompanies her to get the result of her medical test and helps her to see how to lead a meaningful life.
- One can say that Cléo starts off the two hours (actually one and a half hours) a spoiled brat but ends up finding love and a certain joie de vivre. |

| 17(b)       | Cléo de 5 à 7 – Agnès Varda
Students may refer to the following in their answers. |

During the course of the film Cléo meets a succession of people: important figures in her life and career and also strangers. Antoine is one of the latter, the last main person she encounters.

- Antoine is a soldier who is going back to the war in Algeria the next day.
- It is from Antoine and her friend Dorothée that Cléo learns most about the meaning of life.
- Antoine accompanies her to the conclusion of the medical test which is in the background throughout. Once they track him down, the doctor assures her that her condition can quickly be resolved with treatment.
- Antoine contributes to some of the major themes of the film which include a discussion of mortality, despair and the way to lead a meaningful life.
- The Algerian war is alluded to throughout the film and with Antoine a conclusive attitude is expressed, as he points to the absurdity of people killing each other over there.
- The episode with Antoine is given quite a lot of prominence at the end, more than most, thus emphasising its importance.

Deux Jours, une Nuit – Jean-Pierre Dardenne, Luc Dardenne
Students may refer to the following in their answers.
They face a choice between personal financial stability and solidarity with a colleague. Sometimes this represents a difficult individual choice, e.g. for Alphonse who is on a temporary contract and whether to keep their bonus or keep Sandra as a workmate.
- Mostly, their decision will affect others too, e.g. it divides family members (Yvon and son), mostly it divides partners, one would vote for the bonus, one for Sandra. Anne’s is the most extreme case, she leaves her partner.
- All the workers are in difficult financial circumstances, e.g. they need the bonus for various projects, they would like to support Sandra but cannot afford to do so.
- The choice divides the workforce, it spoils working cohesion, e.g. the vote is eventually 8:8, the two camps are separated at the end.
- Sandra also at the end has a difficult choice, e.g. accept reinstatement but cause a fellow worker to lose his job. |

Deux Jours, une Nuit – Jean-Pierre Dardenne, Luc Dardenne
Students may refer to the following in their answers:
Manu is Sandra’s partner and they are both are in a difficult situation together.
- Most of the focus is on Sandra and her tribulations but Manu is constantly in the background and could be seen as something of an unsung hero.
- He acts as a stimulus to action, e.g. he constantly has to encourage her to carry on trying to get support from her colleagues before the vote.
- He has to manage the depression of his partner, e.g. he has to stop her taking too many pills, he copes with her suicide attempt, he deals with her mood swings.
- He illustrates the difficulties for couples caused by depression and industrial strife, e.g. he has to look after the children, deal with the requirements of everyday life, their physical relationship is disrupted. |

| 19(a)           | Entre les murs – Laurent Cantet
Students may refer to the following in their answers:
- M. Morin teaches in an extremely difficult inner-city school where social problems abound and this leads to the staff's job being a very exacting one.
- M. Morin does bring some of the problems on himself. In particular, in a fit of exasperation he abuses pupils in the class who then make complaints against him.
- Most of the problems, however, are caused by having to teach such a large and varied set of pupils, many of whom are disruptive.
- Louise and Esmerelda might be counted as a unit, e.g. both are intelligent, they both sit on the school council, they are the objects of the teacher’s abusive remarks. They use their intelligence in a negative way.
- Souleymane is perhaps the best example of a difficult pupil, e.g. he is lazy and cantankerous and is eventually expelled.
- Wei shows most potential but is held back, e.g. he is very clever but he is hampered by language problems and his parents’ difficulties, they are threatened with expulsion from the country.
- M. Morin to some extent deserves censure but there are extensive mitigating circumstances. |

| 19(b)           | Entre les Murs – Laurent Cantet
Students may refer to the following in their answers.

The action takes place entirely within the school and mainly in one single classroom.

- The film focuses on the tensions within the classroom and the interaction between the teacher M. Marin and his pupils. Apart from a few allusions about background we get to know little of the characters and their lives outside the classroom and the school, although it is suggested that several pupils such as Souleymane have generational difficulties with their parents.

- There are other settings within the school: the playground, the staff room, the school council, the disciplinary hearing but the majority of the film is spent in a single classroom with the focus on a disparate mix of difficult pupils from a range of backgrounds in an inner-city school. The title is indicative, e.g. it suggests the claustrophobic atmosphere of a single classroom.

- Problems also arise between pupils. There are racial and cultural tensions. There is mention of the African Cup of Nations in a discussion about football and this gives rise to heated arguments between representatives of different countries. The brightest pupil, Wei, has tensions within himself as he struggles with difficulties and frustrations caused by language problems and his family's precarious social standing. The threat of expulsion from the country hangs over them.

- Marin struggles to involve his pupils, they are disenchanted and see little purpose in what they are doing. Major disciplinary problems arise with Souleymane and Carl.

- The ending is a little enigmatic. The final scene at the end of term in which staff and pupils are seen happily playing football together might suggest that some of the tensions have been resolved, temporarily at least. |

| 20(a)           | Intouchables – Oliver Nakache, Eric Toledano
Students may refer to the following in their answers.
The answer will depend on which minor characters are chosen.
  • The film is dominated by two major characters who forge a close relationship in spite of being complete opposites but there are also some quite important secondary figures, e.g. Magali, the secretary, Yvonne, the housekeeper and aide, Driss’s aunt etc.
  • Their role might include their interaction with the two main characters, e.g. the way in which they tell us more about Philippe and Driss.
  • Other roles, such as providing humour or social comment might be added, e.g. Magali’s response to Driss’s advances, those in Driss’s home circle. |
| 20(b)           | Intouchables – Oliver Nakache, Eric Toledano
Students may refer to the following in their answers.
The film is full of contrasts, including the different backgrounds and personalities of the characters and their surroundings.
  • The two main protagonists are complete opposites, e.g. Driss is young, black, full of energy, from an extremely modest background, Philippe is white, rich, middle aged, a paraplegic after an accident.
  • The worlds they live in are totally different, e.g. Philippe lives in an opulent, fashionable, smart area of Paris but Driss inhabits a drab, crime-ridden, overcrowded suburb.
  • Their backgrounds differ, e.g. Driss came from Senegal aged eight, he has recently been in prison and is currently on benefits, Philippe is an incredibly rich widower, the father of a teenage daughter.
  • The two main characters have widely different interests and attitudes, e.g. in music, art and reactions to paragliding. |

| 21(a) | La Haine – Mathieu Kassovitz
Students may refer to the following in their answers.
The police are depicted as armed, violent and aggressive, e.g. in authentic newsreel of riot scenes.
- They are provocative and racist, e.g. picking on Hubert, racist comments.
- They look sinister, e.g. they are equipped with riot gear and guns.
- They are presented as a nameless mass which contrasts with the protagonist who is portrayed as an individual.
- Abuse of power, e.g. interrogation techniques.
- One policeman is presented more positively to contrast with the others. |
| 21(b) | La Haine – Mathieu Kassovitz
Students may refer to the following in their answers.
The scene serves to show a contrast between where the protagonists live and the opulent parts of Paris.
- The young protagonists do not know how to behave/feel inadequate in a different environment, e.g. in their behaviour towards the girls in the gallery.
- Satirical view of bourgeois circles, exaggerated.
- The protagonists are ejected from the gallery.
- The scene provides some comic relief.
- This is the only foray into the bourgeois world and is a catalyst for their alienation from mainstream society. |

| 22(a)       | La Vie en Rose – Olivier Dahan
Students may refer to the following in their answers.
Edith’s life is a mixture of highs and lows; great success and acclaim, personal sorrow and pain caused by self-inflicted difficulties and unavoidable influences.
- Addiction slowly took hold, e.g. alcohol featured from the start, then increasing drug dependency took over.
- Her wild lifestyle led to money difficulties, e.g. at times she had to push herself into more work to survive.
- Interaction with others is a feature, e.g. she treats some people badly and is in turn exploited by others.
- There are other influences she cannot control, e.g. feckless parents and an unorthodox upbringing, the accidental death of Marcel, the one great love of her life.
- Other possible factors are revealed quite late, e.g. that she had lost a young child to meningitis. |
| 22(b)       | La Vie en Rose – Olivier Dahan
Students may refer to the following in their answers.
Moving around in time and place is a noticeable and at first slightly confusing feature of the film.
- The film opens in New York in 1939 and quickly changes to Paris in 1918.
- There are constant similar switches, e.g. scenes of concerts in various places are interspersed with flashbacks to times before she was famous.
- Such movement is done for a purpose, e.g. it reflects Edith’s disjointed, chaotic lifestyle and suggests reasons for her unpredictable behaviour.
- Some threads are discernible, e.g. her habit of praying to St Theresa in times of adversity links back to when she was very ill in childhood.
- Juxtapositions of scenes of differing time and place can be very poignant, e.g. shots of her broken and ill towards the end of her days clash with times when she was full of energy and life. |

Students may refer to the following in their answers.

  Truffaut tries to bring authenticity to his film, e.g. contemporary newsreel is incorporated.

  - A commentary technique is used, e.g. a voice over describes conditions in Paris during the Occupation.
  - The title is significant, e.g. people go to the theatre to keep warm, to beat the curfew they have to catch the last underground train.
  - Lucas’s situation evokes the war, e.g. a Jew, he is forced to live in the bowels of the theatre to avoid detection.
  - Collaboration and Resistance are suggested by two opposed characters, e.g. Bernard and Daxiat.
  - Small touches recreate the age of the Occupation, e.g. blackouts, transport problems, buying ham on the black market, shortages. |
| 23(b)       | Le Dernier Métro – François Truffaut
Students may refer to the following in their answers.

  The answer will depend on which techniques are selected.

  - The extent to which the film is a product of la Nouvelle Vague, e.g. late, so there are some features but not as many as in other films.
  - Authentic material used, e.g. newsreel is interspersed.
  - Possible techniques to be mentioned, e.g. camera angles and close-ups, hand-held cameras, use of light and dark.
  - The ending might be seen as a technique and could be mentioned relevantly. |

| 24(a) | Les Choristes – Christophe Barratier
Students may refer to the following in their answers.
Matthieu is sacked after fire has destroyed part of the school. He leaves the establishment, much to the dismay of the boys he has nurtured and transformed.
- On a superficial level, he is sacked for negligence and incompetence. He has taken the boys off for a walk and left the school unattended, allowing the fire to be started.
- Matthieu’s methods and philosophy are at variance with those of M. Rachin and this is a contributing factor in his dismissal.
- It is obvious that the school is run harshly by M. Rachin, e.g. there is a regimented routine with frequent punishment, including solitary confinement and corporal punishment.
- The philosophy is ‘action – réaction’.
- Although the pupils appear unruly, Matthieu shows that the boys are not all hardened, e.g. the boys learn to respect each other and value learning.
- Matthieu treats the boys with respect, he improves their self-esteem and helps them reach their potential. M. Rachin does not approve and removes him.
- It is later learned that M. Rachin is himself dismissed. |

Students may refer to the following in their answers.
The parents are portrayed as a couple with a difficult past, e.g. the wife already had a child (Antoine), whom she had unsuccessfully tried to get rid of.
- They have an unsatisfactory present relationship, e.g. they spend little time together, they argue, the wife is unfaithful. Antoine is a witness to this and, left to his own devices, he begins to misbehave.
- They do not share interests, e.g. the man is obsessed with rallying and the wife is not interested in it. They share no interests with Antoine and are seen sharing experiences together on only one occasion (a visit to the cinema).
- They are bad parents for Antoine, e.g. they treat him like a servant and are unpleasant with him.
- They are not caring towards Antoine, e.g. they wonder how they can get rid of him, and as soon as he gets into trouble they hand him over to others for punishment.
- Their attitude shows their hypocrisy, e.g. to people in authority when they claim to be good parents.
- Much of Antoine’s bad behaviour can be attributed to the lack of interest shown in him by his parents and the poor example they show him. |

Students may refer to the following in their answers.
Minor acts of delinquency abound in the film, e.g. Antoine and his co-miscreant play truant; they play on pinball machines and go to the cinema instead of being in school.
- When Antoine leaves home their behaviour gets worse, e.g. they roam the streets smoking and stealing.
- They embark on a life of deceit, e.g. Antoine’s excuses for not being in school.
- Some possible causes of delinquency are suggested, e.g. a harsh regime at school, lack of love or interest from parents. Antoine’s friend’s parents are just the same.
- No-one tries to understand delinquents, they are treated harshly, e.g. there is no support from parents, unfeeling regimes at school and in the observation centre, they are treated like criminals. |

Mathilde’s parents were killed in an accident, the aunt and uncle bring her up. The positive message of the film is mostly conveyed by the fact that Mathilde’s perseverance is finally rewarded. |
|                 | - Her conviction that Manech is not dead is eventually rewarded but the portrayal of the aunt and uncle as a very sympathetic couple also adds to the feel-good factor.
- They provide her with a stable home life in which she can enjoy a carefree childhood.
- They offer contrast, e.g. their pleasant, peaceful home in Brittany offers an utter contrast with the horrors of war.
- Against their better judgement they support her in her search, e.g. they would prefer Mathilde to accept Manech is dead and marry someone else.
- The uncle offers practical help, e.g. he accompanies her on some of the journeys needed for the search.
- They provide gentle humour, e.g. the uncle’s dealings with the postman, the aunt’s obsession with food.
- They underline the strength of Mathilde’s perseverance, e.g. the Aunt is very upset at the end that she had doubted that Manech had survived. |
| 26(b)       | Un Long Dimanche de Fiançailles – Jean-Pierre Jeunet
Students may refer to the following in their answers.
The director slowly allows the story to unfold, he pieces together what happened bit by bit.
The film jumps around in time, e.g. from Mathilde’s post-war searches back to scenes in the trenches then further back to the young couple’s childhood together.
Many memories of the past help establish what happened, e.g. personal accounts, explanations in letters, commentaries, responses to newspaper appeals for information.
Others are enlisted in the search, e.g. the detective Pire who uncovers many details.
Changes in lighting establish different times, e.g. bright for childhood and at home in Brittany, black and white or sepia for the past, particularly the war scenes. |
Pearson Edexcel Level 3 GCE

French
Advanced
Paper 3: Speaking
General instructions to the teacher-examiner

Sample assessment material for first teaching
September 2016
Time: 21 to 23 minutes (total), which includes
5 minutes’ preparation time

You do not need any other materials.

Instructions
• The examination consists of two tasks.
• The tasks must be conducted in consecutive order.
• Timing for the speaking assessment:
  – Task 1: 6 to 7 minutes (recommended)
  – Task 2: 10 to 11 minutes (recommended)
  – Total assessment time: 21 to 23 minutes, (16 to 18 minutes of speaking plus 5 minutes’ preparation time for Task 1).
Recommended timings have been given for each task to enable the student to complete each one in sufficient time to access the full range of assessment criteria for both tasks.
• The preparation time for Task 1 must be supervised. It must take place outside of the room with an invigilator. The preparation time must be immediately before the examination time.
• Candidates can make notes of up to a maximum of one side of A4 paper for Task 1 only.
• Candidates may refer to their notes during the assessment.
• Candidates must not write on the stimulus.
• Candidates must not have access to a dictionary, or any other resource, including a mobile phone, during the preparation and examination time.
• Candidates must return their notes and the stimulus at the end of the assessment.
• Any notes made during the preparation time must be kept by the centre until the end of October in the year the assessment is completed, after which time they should be securely destroyed.
• It is your responsibility to cover all parts of each task to ensure that the candidate has the opportunity to access all parts of the marking criteria.
• It is the invigilator’s responsibility to inform candidates of the two sub-themes from which they can make their choice, and for giving them the correct stimulus card based on that choice.

Turn over
Task 1 (discussion on a Theme)

- Task 1 is recommended to last approximately 6 to 7 minutes.
- The candidate is provided with a choice of two cards on two different sub-themes following the sequence outlined by Pearson, (see sequencing grid below).
- The choice of sub-themes is told to the candidate in English by the invigilator immediately prior to the start of the preparation time, using the wording for the sub-themes provided on the randomisation grid, e.g. You may choose ‘media’ or ‘education’.
- The candidate must not see the contents of either card until s/he has chosen the sub-theme, after which s/he will be given one of the cards.
- The preparation time must begin immediately after the candidate receives the card.

Task 1 part 1

You must:
- ask the candidate which statement s/he has chosen.
- ask the two compulsory questions relating to the statement (A or B) chosen by the candidate. Questions may be repeated, but rephrasing is not allowed.
- develop the discussion by asking appropriate follow up questions relating to the subject matter on the stimulus card.

Task 1 part 2

You must broaden the discussion to cover other aspects of the overall Theme. Optional generic questions are provided by Pearson (see below) as a guide to the questions that you should ask in order to enable the candidate to meet the assessment criteria, i.e. to elicit examples and information to demonstrate their knowledge and understanding of the cultural and social context and to analyse aspects of the Theme by developing and justifying arguments and forming conclusions (see section below beginning ‘Optional generic questions…’).

Task 2 (presentation and discussion on candidate’s independent research project)

- Task 2 is recommended to last 10 to 11 minutes.

Task 2 part 1 (independent research presentation)

You must allow the candidate to open with their presentation on written sources used as part of their research. This must not exceed 2 minutes. Candidates are allowed to refer to their RP3 form during the presentation.

Task 2 part 2 (discussion on independent research)

You must ask follow-up questions about the candidate’s presentation and then begin a wider exploration of the research as a whole in order to elicit the candidate’s understanding and analysis of the cultural and social context. You should use the key findings and list of sources on their copy of the RP3 form to help them formulate their own questions. Optional generic questions are provided by Pearson as a guide to the questions you should ask in order to enable the candidate to meet the assessment criteria, i.e. to elicit examples and information to demonstrate their knowledge and understanding of the cultural and social context and to analyse aspects of the research topic by developing and justifying arguments and forming conclusions.
Optional generic questions to promote discussion and to enable candidates to analyse aspects of the Theme (task 1)/analyse their chosen subject of interest (task 2):

- Pourriez-vous me donner un exemple de… ?
- Pourquoi dites-vous cela ?
- Quelles conclusions peut-on tirer de… ?
- Quels exemples pouvez-vous fournir pour soutenir ce point de vue ?
- Pourquoi est-il important ?
- Que représente… ?

In both tasks, candidates are expected to ask questions that elicit opinions as part of the natural discourse and to confirm that their own points of view have been understood. Examples of questions that candidates may ask to achieve this are as follows:

- Seriez-vous d’accord avec moi?
- N’est-il pas correct de penser que… ?
- Peut-on dire que… ?
- Que pensez-vous de… ?
- Est-ce que vous me comprenez?

Candidates are also expected to take lead in the discussions.

It is your responsibility to cover all parts of each task and ask appropriate questions to ensure that the candidate is able to access the maximum amount of marks available. The speaking assessment should last between 16 to 18 minutes in total and you must ensure that timings are followed. The timing of the assessment begins with the candidate’s first utterance in relation to Task 1. Once the maximum stipulated assessment time has passed, you must bring the assessment to a natural end, allowing the candidate to complete their last sentence.

Students will not receive any marks for any conversation that takes place beyond the maximum time allowed.

Sequence of stimulus cards for speaking examination: Task 1

To avoid duplication of stimuli, candidates must be given the cards in the sequence and combination prescribed below.

If you conduct more than 12 speaking examinations in a day, e.g. in the morning, afternoon and evening sessions, after the 12th candidate start at the beginning of the sequence again.

If you have a break in the examination schedule, e.g. morning break, lunchtime, start the next candidate on next order of the sequence. For example, candidate 4 conducted their examination before morning break, the next candidate after the morning break would be candidate 5.

If you are conducting examinations on more than one day, start each new day at the beginning of the sequence.

A La culture d’un pays francophone se reflète dans sa musique.

Compulsory teacher-examiner questions:
1. Jusqu’à quel point la culture se reflète-t-elle dans la musique d’un pays francophone ?
2. Quelle place la langue française a-t-elle aujourd’hui dans la musique ?

B La musique francophone devient de plus en plus multiculturelle.

Compulsory teacher-examiner questions:
1. Pourquoi la musique francophone devient-elle de plus en plus multiculturelle ?
2. Qu’est-ce qui influence la langue des chansons francophones ?
Instructions

- Task 1 lasts approximately 6 to 7 minutes.
- You must open the examination by asking the candidate which of the statements (A or B) s/he has chosen.
- You must then ask the two compulsory questions relating to the statement that the candidate has chosen (A or B) as they are presented. Questions may be repeated but rephrasing is not allowed.
- Candidates must not read out whole, prepared sentences in answer to questions.
- You must then broaden the discussion to cover other aspects of the overall Theme.
- You should then proceed to task 2, (presentation and discussion on candidate’s independent research project) following the guidelines as outlined in the ‘General instructions to the teacher-examiner’ document.

Task 1

Thème: La culture politique et artistique dans les pays francophones

Les médias

Posez les DEUX questions qui correspondent à la déclaration (A ou B) choisie par l’élève, dans l’ordre indiqué.

A  Les médias bénéficient de la liberté d’expression dans les pays francophones.

Compulsory teacher-examiner questions:

1. Comment savez-vous que le monde francophone tient à la liberté d’expression ?
2. Quel est l’avantage d’une presse libre dans le monde francophone ?

B  Dans les pays francophones, les médias se concentrent plus sur les actualités que sur la vie privée de certaines personnalités connues du grand public.

Compulsory teacher-examiner questions:

1. Pourquoi pensez-vous que les médias en langue française ne critiquent pas les personnalités célèbres ?
2. Est-ce que la vie privée des politiciens intéresse les citoyens des pays francophones ?
   Pourquoi/Pourquoi pas ?

GCE A Level French

Paper 3 mark scheme
For this paper, there are a number of levels-based mark schemes to be applied to each task.

General guidance on using levels-based mark schemes

Step 1 Decide on a band
- You should first of all consider the answer as a whole and then decide which descriptors most closely match the answer and place it in that band. The descriptors for each band indicate the different features that will be seen in the student’s answer for that band.
- When assigning a level you should look at the overall quality of the answer and not focus disproportionately on small and specific parts of the answer where the student has not performed quite as well as the rest. If the answer covers different aspects of different bands of the mark scheme you should use a ‘best fit’ approach for defining the level and then use the variability of the response to help decide the mark within the level, for example if the response is predominantly band 5–8 with a small amount of band 9–12 material, it would be placed in band 5–8 but be awarded a mark near the top of the band because of the band 9–12 content.

Step 2 Decide on a mark
- Once you have decided on a band you will then need to decide on a mark within the band.
- You will decide on the mark to award based on the quality of the answer; you will award a mark towards the top or bottom of that band depending on how students have evidenced each of the descriptor bullet points.
- You will modify the mark based on how securely the trait descriptors are met at that band.
- You will need to go back through the answer as you apply the mark scheme to clarify points and assure yourself that the band and the mark are appropriate.

Guidance on timing of the speaking assessment
The speaking assessment should last between 16 to 18 minutes. The timing of the assessment begins with the candidate’s first utterance in relation to Task 1. Once the maximum stipulated assessment time has passed, the teacher-examiner must bring the assessment to a natural end, allowing the candidate to complete their last sentence.
You must stop marking at the end of the sentence once the maximum assessment time has passed, even if the recorded conversation has gone beyond the maximum time.
Task 1 – Discussion on a theme

Three mark grids are applied to task 1:

- knowledge and understanding of society and culture (AO4)
- accuracy and range of language (AO3)
- interaction (AO1).

The knowledge and understanding of society and culture mark grid assesses the students’ ability to communicate information about and demonstrate appreciation of different aspects of culture and society related to the countries/communities where the language is spoken. They are also assessed on their ability to respond critically and analytically to different aspects of the culture and society by selecting relevant material, presenting and justifying points of view, developing arguments, drawing conclusions based on understanding and evaluating issues, themes and cultural and social contexts.

When deciding how to reward an answer, examiners should consult both this mark grid as well as the AL speaking task 1: indicative content at the end of the mark scheme, which is associated with each question. Indicative content contains points that students are likely to use to construct their answer. It is possible for an answer to be constructed without mentioning some or all of these points, as long as students provide alternative responses that fulfil the requirements of the question.

Additional guidance

Perceptive: demonstrates an in-depth understanding by making connections between ideas and information; goes beyond the standard, predictable response; shows insight/originality.

Ideas include thoughts, feelings, impressions, opinions.

Straightforward ideas, arguments, conclusions, are deemed to be those that give the standard, predictable response.

Accuracy and range of language mark grid

This mark grid assesses students’ ability to use a range of grammatical structures and vocabulary in order to produce articulate communication with a range of expression. It also assesses students’ ability to apply grammar and syntax accurately and accuracy of pronunciation.

| 1–3   | ● Limited variation in the use of grammatical structures and vocabulary, limited or repetitive use of complex and idiomatic language, occasional variation of expression; communication is sometimes restricted/stilted.
  ● Limited sequences of accurate language; often errors occur that hinder clarity of communication and occasionally prevent meaning being conveyed.
  ● Pronunciation and intonation are inconsistent, leading to occasional impairment in communication. |
| 4–6   | ● Some variation in the use of grammatical structures and vocabulary, with use of some repetitive complex and idiomatic language, resulting in some variation of expression; some sequences of articulate communication.
  ● Accurate sequences of language, resulting in some coherent speech; sometimes errors occur that hinder clarity of communication.
  ● Pronunciation and intonation are intelligible though sometimes inaccurate. |
| 7–9   | ● Frequent variation in use of grammatical structures and vocabulary, including examples of complex and idiomatic language, resulting in frequent variation of expression and frequent sequences of articulate communication.
  ● Accurate language throughout most of the conversation, resulting in generally coherent speech; errors occur but rarely hinder clarity of communication.
  ● Pronunciation and intonation are intelligible and mostly accurate. |
| 10–12 | ● Consistent variation in use of grammatical structures and vocabulary, including different types of complex structures and idiomatic language, expressing ideas in a variety of ways, resulting in articulate communication.
  ● Accurate language throughout resulting in coherent speech that is immediately understandable; any errors do not hinder clarity of the communication.
  ● Pronunciation and intonation are accurate, intelligible and authentic sounding. |

Additional guidance

Complex language is considered to include the following:

- conceptually challenging tenses such as the pluperfect, future perfect
- passive voice
- subjunctive mood
- use of relative pronouns
- using extended sentences to express abstract ideas/convey justified arguments that require a range of lexis and structures, for example conjunctions and pronouns
- using synonyms and a variety of expressions to say things in different ways
- all grammar and structures included in the grammar list that are specific to A Level.
Variation in use of grammatical structures and vocabulary: the traits in the mark grid differentiate between the variation of grammatical structures and vocabulary used by students. Examiners should judge in which mark band to place students and which mark to award, based on the effect that the variety of grammatical structures and vocabulary has on the quality of the communication; the wider the variety, the more articulate the communication will become, (see definition of articulate below).

Examples of a variety of grammatical structures and vocabulary are: a selection of different verbs, tenses, adjectives, vocabulary and complex language (see above for definition of complex language) for a variety of purposes such as to present and justify points of view, develop arguments, draw conclusions based on understanding and evaluating issues.

Articulate: articulate communication is fluent, effective and coherent as students control/manipulate the language to express with some ease what they want to say for a number of different purposes. If students are restricted by their language skills they may not be able to express themselves for all purposes, for example to develop arguments.

Errors: students are not expected to produce perfect, error-free speech in order to access the top band. The mark grid describes the frequency of errors and the impact that errors have on clarity.

Errors that do not hinder clarity:
- errors that do not affect meaning, for example gender, adjectival agreements
- infrequent errors that do not distract the listener from the content of what is being said.

Errors that hinder clarity:
- errors that make speech difficult to understand immediately (even if the meaning is eventually understood) or errors that force listeners to strain to understand what is meant, for example inappropriate tense formation, mismatch of subject and the possessive adjective
- frequent errors hinder clarity as they will distract the listener from the content of what is being said.

Errors that prevent meaning being conveyed:
- errors that mean the listener cannot understand the message
- errors that convey the wrong message
- errors that make it unclear who is doing the action, i.e. using the incorrect person or the verb
- mother-tongue interference.

NB: these are provided as examples only and do not constitute a finite list.

Interaction mark grid

This mark grid assesses students’ ability to interact with the examiner by giving relevant responses based on what they have heard, by initiating communication and eliciting points of view.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>

</table>
| 1–2   | • Interacts with occasional spontaneity to some questions and statements, but requires frequent prompting; occasionally able to sustain the conversation, using communication strategies if necessary; frequent hesitation.
      • Occasionally initiates communication but development often relies on the examiner's lead; may elicit points of view/check for understanding, though this may appear contrived. |
| 3–4   | • Interacts spontaneously for extended sections of the conversation, responding mostly with assurance but needing occasional prompting; able to sustain most of the conversation, using communication strategies if necessary; occasional hesitation.
      • Initiates communication by frequently taking the lead to develop the conversation; elicits points of view/checks for understanding although occasionally at an inappropriate moment. |
| 5–6   | • Interacts spontaneously throughout, responding with assurance to questions and statements; able to sustain conversation throughout, using communication strategies if necessary; minimal hesitation.
      • Initiates communication by consistently taking the lead to develop the conversation; elicits points of view/checks for understanding naturally and appropriately at different points in the conversation. |

Additional guidance

Interacts spontaneously: responds to questions and statements that arise as a natural part of the conversation; gives a relevant, impromptu response based on what they have heard.

Communication strategies: strategies that aid communication and allow the conversation to be sustained, for example rephrasing, circumlocution, adjusting the message, asking for clarification/repetition, repair strategies such as self-correction; these strategies enable students to deliver the message when exact vocabulary or expressions are not known.

Elicit points of view/check for understanding: as part of the language of genuine discourse, students are required to engage the examiner in the conversation by asking for their points of view and checking that their own point of view has been understood. They are expected to do this throughout the oral assessment at appropriate points during the conversation. This constitutes questions such as:

- ‘Seriez-vous d’accord avec moi?’
- ‘N’est-il pas correct de penser que…?’
- ‘Peut-on dire que…?’
- ‘Que pensez-vous de…?’
- ‘Est-ce que vous me comprenez?’
The constraints of the assessment mean that the teacher/examiner should contribute only brief opinions in response to these types of questions, in order to give students the maximum length of assessment time.
Task 2, Part 1 – Independent research presentation

One mark grid is applied to this part of the task:

- responding to written language in speech (AO2).

Responding to written language in speech mark grid

This grid is used to assess the student’s two-minute presentation only, it is not applied to the discussion that follows the presentation. This mark grid assesses students’ ability to understand and respond in speech to written language that is drawn from a variety of sources and to summarise information from written sources in speech. The written sources will be those that students read as part of their independent research and they must refer to at least two named written sources during their presentation.

For guidance on what might be included in an oral presentation and how it may be structured, see Indicative content for task 2 part 1, independent research presentation at the end of the mark scheme.

| 1–3   | - Summary makes limited reference to named written sources, makes generalised comments rather than being focused on authors’ main points/ideas.
  - Gives a personal response with limited justification, loses focus on the written sources, straying into general opinion.
  Responses that refer to just one single written source can be awarded a maximum of 3 marks only. |
| 4–6   | - Summary refers to named written sources but lacks clarity or is uneven in its coverage of authors’ main points/ideas.
  - Gives a mostly relevant personal response with occasional justification, some loss of focus on the written sources. |
| 7–9   | - Presents a mostly clear summary of named written sources, generally clear outline of authors’ main points/ideas.

| 10–12 | - Presents a clear summary of named written sources, giving a clear outline of authors’ main points/ideas.
  - Gives a convincing personal response to the written sources supported with clear justification. |

Additional guidance

Personal response: this is considered to be giving justified opinions, demonstrating engagement with the written sources by making focused comments, giving a reaction to/expressing feelings and thoughts about the written sources.
Task 2, Part 2 – Discussion on independent research

Three mark grids are applied to this part of the task:

- knowledge and understanding of society and culture (AO4)
- accuracy and range of language (AO3)
- interaction (AO1).

The knowledge and understanding of society and culture mark grid assesses students’ ability to communicate information about and demonstrate appreciation of different aspects of culture and society related to the countries/communities where the language is spoken. They are also assessed on their ability to respond critically and analytically to different aspects of the culture and society by selecting relevant material, presenting and justifying points of view, developing arguments, drawing conclusions based on understanding and evaluating issues.

</table>
Additional guidance

Perceptive: demonstrates an in depth understanding by making connections between ideas and information; goes beyond the standard, predictable response; shows insight/originality.

Ideas include thoughts, feelings, impressions, opinions.

Straightforward ideas, conclusions, arguments are deemed to be those that give the standard, predictable response.
Task 2, Part 2 – Discussion on independent research (continued)

Accuracy and range of language mark grid

This mark grid assesses students’ ability to use a range of grammatical structures and vocabulary in order to produce articulate communication with a range of expression. It also assesses students’ ability to apply grammar and syntax accurately and accuracy of pronunciation.

| 1–3   | ● Limited variation in the use of grammatical structures and vocabulary, limited or repetitive use of complex and idiomatic language, occasional variation of expression; communication is sometimes restricted/stilted.
      ● Limited sequences of accurate language; often errors occur that hinder clarity of communication and occasionally prevent meaning being conveyed.
      ● Pronunciation and intonation are inconsistent, leading to occasional impairment in communication. |
| 4–6   | ● Some variation in the use of grammatical structures and vocabulary, with use of some repetitive complex and idiomatic language, resulting in some variation of expression; some sequences of articulate communication.
      ● Accurate sequences of language, resulting in some coherent speech; sometimes errors occur that hinder clarity of communication.
      ● Pronunciation and intonation are intelligible though sometimes inaccurate. |
| 7–9   | ● Frequent variation in use of grammatical structures and vocabulary, including examples of complex and idiomatic language, resulting in frequent variation of expression and frequent sequences of articulate communication.
      ● Accurate language throughout most of the conversation, resulting in generally coherent speech; errors occur but rarely hinder clarity of communication.
      ● Pronunciation and intonation are intelligible and mostly accurate. |
| 10–12 | ● Consistent variation in use of grammatical structures and vocabulary, including different types of complex structures and idiomatic language, expressing ideas in a variety of ways, resulting in articulate communication.
      ● Accurate language throughout resulting in coherent speech that is immediately understandable; any errors do not hinder clarity of the communication.
      ● Pronunciation and intonation are accurate, intelligible and authentic-sounding. |

Additional guidance

Complex language is considered to include the following:
- conceptually challenging tenses such as the pluperfect, future perfect
- passive voice
- subjunctive mood
- use of relative pronouns
- using extended sentences to express abstract ideas/convey justified arguments that require a range of lexis and structures, for example conjunctions and pronouns
- using synonyms and a variety of expressions to say things in different ways
- all grammar and structures included in the grammar list that are specific to A Level.
Variation in use of grammatical structures/varied use of vocabulary: the traits in the mark grid differentiate between the variation of grammatical structures and vocabulary used by students. Examiners should judge in which mark band to place students and which mark to award, based on the effect that the variety of grammatical structures and vocabulary has on the quality of the communication; the wider the variety, the more articulate the communication will become, (see definition of articulate below).

Examples of a variety of grammatical structures and vocabulary are: a selection of different verbs, tenses, adjectives, vocabulary and complex language (see definition above) for a variety of purposes such as to present and justify points of view, develop arguments, draw conclusions based on understanding and evaluating issues.

Articulate: articulate communication is fluent, effective and coherent as students control/manipulate the language to express with some ease what they want to say for a number of different purposes. If students are restricted to what they can say, they may not be able to express themselves for all purposes, for example to develop arguments.

Errors: students are not expected to produce perfect, error-free speech in order to access the top band. The mark grid describes the frequency of errors and the impact that errors have on clarity.

Errors that do not hinder clarity:
- errors that do not affect meaning, for example gender, adjectival agreements
- infrequent errors that do not distract the listener from the content of what is being said.

Errors that hinder clarity:
- errors that make speech difficult to understand immediately (even if the meaning is eventually understood) or errors that force listeners to strain to understand what is meant, for example inappropriate tense formation, mismatch of subject and the possessive adjective
- frequent errors hinder clarity as they will distract the listener from the content of what is being said.

Errors that prevent meaning being conveyed:
- errors that mean the listener cannot understand the message
- errors that convey the wrong message
- errors that make it unclear who is doing the action, i.e. using the incorrect person or the verb
- mother-tongue interference.

NB: these are provided as examples only and do not constitute a finite list.
Task 2, Part 2 – Discussion on independent research (continued)

Interaction mark grid

This mark grid assesses students’ ability to interact with the examiner by giving relevant responses based on what they have heard, by initiating communication and eliciting points of view.

| 1–2   | - Interacts with occasional spontaneity to some questions and statements, but requires frequent prompting; occasionally able to sustain the conversation, using communication strategies if necessary; frequent hesitation.
- Occasionally initiates communication but development often relies on the examiner’s lead; may elicit points of view/check for understanding, though this may appear contrived. |
| 3–4   | - Interacts spontaneously for extended sections of the conversation, responding mostly with assurance but needing occasional prompting; able to sustain most of the conversation, using communication strategies if necessary; occasional hesitation.
- Initiates communication by frequently taking the lead to develop the conversation; elicits points of view/checks for understanding although occasionally at an inappropriate moment. |
| 5–6   | - Interacts spontaneously throughout, responding with assurance to questions and statements; able to sustain conversation throughout, using communication strategies if necessary; minimal hesitation.
- Initiates communication by consistently taking the lead to develop the conversation; elicits points of view/checks for understanding naturally and appropriately at different points in the conversation. |

Additional guidance

Interacts spontaneously: responds to questions and statements that arise as a natural part of the conversation; gives a relevant, impromptu response based on what they have heard.

Communication strategies: strategies that aid communication and allow the conversation to be sustained, for example rephrasing, circumlocution, adjusting the message, asking for clarification/repetition, repair strategies such as self-correction; these strategies enable students to deliver the message when exact vocabulary or expressions are not known.

Elicit points of view/check for understanding: as part of the language of genuine discourse, students are required to engage the examiner in the conversation by asking for their points of view and checking that their own point of view has been understood. They are expected to do this throughout the oral assessment at appropriate points during the conversation. This constitutes questions such as:

- ‘Seriez-vous d’accord avec moi?’
- ‘N’est-il pas correct de penser que...?’
- ‘Peut-on dire que...?’
- ‘Que pensez-vous de...?’
• ‘Est-ce que vous me comprenez?’

The constraints of the assessment mean that the teacher/examiner should contribute only brief opinions in response to these types of questions, in order to give students the maximum length of assessment time.
Speaking task 1 – Indicative content

Indicative content is not exhaustive. Students should be rewarded for any valid response and may draw on a range of relevant ideas or opinions.

| A     | • There has been a more relaxed way of seeing couple relationships for a number of years e.g. the PACS (1999) has allowed homosexual couples to legalise their relationship.
• Young people in particular took part in demonstrations in support of legalisation of gay marriage.
• Gay marriage has been legal in France since 2013 in spite of opposition from e.g. the Roman Catholic Church.
• The introduction of the right to homosexual marriage was supported by a range of people in society, e.g. left wing politicians such as President Hollande. |
| B     | • There were demonstrations against legalisation, e.g. led by the Church, including families and young people.
• Some political factions are calling for repeal of the law, e.g. right wing parties.
• There are a large number of Muslims in France who do not agree with gay marriage and this group forms a significant voice.
• Homophobia still exists among the younger generation as well as among more traditional older people, e.g. reports of homophobic bullying in the press. |

| A     | • The introduction of the 35 hour week has benefitted society, e.g. more jobs have been created.
            • Job creation has a positive impact on the economy, e.g. increased buying power.
            • The work-life balance has improved, e.g. French workers have more free time to spend time with their family.
            • Many workers are happier at work and therefore more efficient and productive. |
| B     | • The right to strike is important for French workers, e.g. frequent strikes and marches keep workers’ rights in the public eye.
            • Many labour laws promote equal rights, e.g. right of women to return to work after maternity leave.
            • Working hours are protected, e.g. by the reduction of the working week (RTT).
            • The unions, e.g. CGT, CFDT and FO, are powerful because they advocate on behalf of all workers, union members or not. |

          | • Songs in the French language hold their place in Francophone countries, e.g. la loi Toubon protects airtime for French-language songs.
          | • There is a strong French urban music scene which reflects some aspects of French society. |
| B         | • Many kinds of music are accessible via the internet.
          | • The music deals with real life issues affecting people from many cultures who may live in hardship, e.g. in the banlieues in France.
          | • Young people are open to new styles, e.g. Slam, la musique Rai.

| A     | • The freedom of speech is very important throughout the French speaking world as it is a reflection of democratic values, e.g. legacy of the French revolution
• There is total freedom for the satirical press, e.g. Le Canard Enchaîné; Charlie Hebdo.
• The written press is still popular and supplemented by TV debate and magazine programmes on political issues.
• It is easier to exercise the right of freedom of speech in France than in some other francophone countries, e.g. in Mali journalists were kidnapped during the period of unrest in 2012-13 and still suffer some censorship; fearful and dangerous situation. |
| B     | • In France, the private life of politicians is not criticised traditionally, e.g. François Hollande retained his presidency despite the highly publicised revelatory book by his ex-mistress.
• Some French-speaking countries are less democratic, and it is unsafe to criticise public figures, e.g. in Tunisia it was brave to revolt during the Arab Spring.
• Certain forms of media are controlled more than others, e.g. state-run media rather than the internet.
• At times of crisis, people rely on accurate reporting of events, rather than unsubstantiated gossip e.g. the kidnapping of schoolgirls in Mali by Boko Haram. |

  • Some young people are not aware of the original meaning behind festivals related to rural life, e.g. celebrating les vendanges.
  • Young people have less contact with previous generations and therefore old traditions are not passed on.
  • Shifting social attitudes lead to changes in traditions, e.g. fewer young people have a religious marriage ceremony. |
| B     | • Local customs preserve regional identity, e.g. Heiva festival in Tahiti

          | • Restaurants and shops are making cuisine and goods from the wider world accessible and popular, e.g. Vietnamese, North African.
          | • The influence of other cultures is seen on traditional industries such as fashion. |
| B     | • Immigrants have brought many benefits to the French economy, e.g. by setting up businesses thus creating jobs.
          | • Immigrant workers and entrepreneurs contribute through the tax system.
          | • It is often immigrant workers who undertake vital jobs.

In a secular society, the banning of religious symbols affects many immigrants, e.g. Muslims and the headscarf, and the recent debate on pork in school meals.
Right-wing parties make immigrants feel excluded, e.g. Le Front National.
Many immigrants undertake menial jobs, and their backgrounds are not appreciated. |
| B     | Immigrants are given the opportunity to learn French, e.g. children at school and adults in community classes.
There is a move to include choice in school menus to cater for different religious laws.
A certain number of immigrants have risen to prominence in business and government, e.g. Najat Balkacem.
Immigrants feel part of French society as France celebrates cultural diversity, e.g. through TV, radio programmes, and events. |

| A | - People were afraid and conditions were difficult with hunger and shortages, so people were tempted to collaborate.
- People were prepared to betray France for the many benefits of collaboration e.g. cigarettes, food and privileges.
- Some French people betrayed France for ideological reasons: they believed Nazi propaganda and wanted to fight against the Bolsheviks.
- Collaborators were exposed as traitors by the Resistance and others. They were treated very badly e.g. shootings during the occupation; tar and feathering after the war. |
| B | - Resistance would be punished, e.g. by violence.
- Many French people put the physical and financial safety of their families first. They therefore accepted work serving occupiers in different capacities e.g. in bars, hotels, public buildings.
- There was a forceful takeover of homes and public buildings by the occupiers and the curfew was rigorously enforced.

• To support the war effort Germany needed labour, e.g. the Vichy government, through the STO, agreed to send able-bodied young people to work in Germany. The deal, which was never entirely honoured, was to secure the release of prisoners in return.
• Pétain’s regime was largely anti-semitic and pursued the Jews through organised mass round-ups and supported deportations
• The Milice, created in 1943, pursued enemies of the Nazis, e.g. resistance fighters, Jews and other minorities, with great vigour. Members of this body were often more vicious and unrelenting even than the Gestapo. |
| B     | • The importance of the family was underlined, e.g. the regime’s new motto was: Travail, Famille, Patrie.
• Rationing was introduced in an attempt to bring a fair distribution of the limited supplies available. The black market was made illegal to try to ensure that the better off did not have an unfair advantage
• The regime encouraged ingenuity, e.g. le système D helped to make maximum use of limited resources.
