1 Introduction

Why choose the Edexcel Level 3 Advanced GCE in Persian?

We believe languages should appeal to all students. Our new Edexcel Level 3 Advanced GCE in Persian (listening, reading and writing) has been developed to inspire all students to appreciate the language, literature, film and culture of Persian-speaking countries.

We have listened to feedback from the languages community – subject associations, academics and advisors, together with teachers and students – and have designed a motivating course of study that will enable your students to develop advanced level knowledge and understanding of the Persian language and the culture of Persian-speaking countries, as well as practical and valuable language and transferable study skills. This qualification will help to prepare students for higher education and enhance their employability profile.

Inspiring and engaging themes – our qualification features familiar and popular themes, as well as some new content that provides clear links to some of the most fundamental and interesting aspects of the culture of Iran and Afghanistan.

Popular literary texts and films – we offer a choice of literary texts and films that includes contemporary and more classic titles.

Rewards creativity – our assessments place an emphasis on communication and grammar, as well as giving students plenty of opportunities to apply their knowledge independently and creatively. Clear mark schemes encourage students to develop ideas, to use language to persuade and analyse, and to give critical responses in their writing.

Clear and coherent structure – our qualification has a straightforward structure with four engaging themes. The four themes are studied alongside two works (either two literary texts or one literary text and one film) and are assessed through three externally-examined papers.

Manageable content – we have worked closely with teachers and students to ensure that our content is manageable and appropriate so that you and your students can be confident that you have enough time to cover what you need to cover at the appropriate depth.

Continuous progression – our content builds on the understanding developed at Key Stage 4 and gives students the opportunity to learn and apply important transferable skills in critical thinking and analysis, enabling them to make a smooth transition to the next level of study. However, students do not need to have studied GCSE Persian to follow this course.

Content and assessment overview

The Pearson Edexcel Level 3 Advanced GCE in Persian (listening, reading and writing) consists of three externally-examined papers that assess listening, reading and writing skills. These assessments will be set and marked by Pearson.

Students must complete all assessments in May/June in any single year.

Paper 1: Translation into English, reading comprehension and writing (research question) in Persian (*Paper code: 9PN0/01)

Written examination: 2 hours 30 minutes

40% of the qualification

80 marks

Content overview

Section A draws on vocabulary and structures from any one of the sub-themes within the four themes listed on pages 8–10.

Section B draws on vocabulary and structures across all sub-themes from within the four themes listed on pages 8–10.

Section C is based on independent research selected and carried out by the student. The research must be based on one of the research subjects listed on pages 8–10. All aspects of the chosen research subject must be studied. Students use information from their research findings and from an unseen written text to answer the question.

Assessment overview

During the examination, students are not allowed access to a dictionary or to any documentation related to their research.

The examination is made up of:

Section A: Translation into English (20 marks)

An unseen passage to be translated from Persian into English.

Section B: Reading (20 marks)

A reading assessment based on a variety of text types and genres. Students must respond to a series of comprehension questions.

Section C: Writing (research question) (40 marks)

A reading and writing question based on an aspect of the chosen research subject. Students read a text and then answer a question, incorporating information and ideas from both the text and their research findings.

Paper 2: Translation into Persian and written response to works

Students select one question from a choice of two for each of their chosen literary text(s). If they answer questions on two literary texts, then they do not complete Section C.

Section C: Written response to works (films) (45 marks)

Students who answer only one question from a literary text in Section B must write an extended response on one of the films listed in Appendix 1: Prescribed literary texts and films.

Written examination: 2 hours and 15 minutes30% of the qualification*60 marks*Content overview

Section A draws on vocabulary and structures across all sub-themes within the four themes listed on pages 8–10.

Section B draws on vocabulary and structures from any one of the sub-themes within the four themes listed on pages 8–10. There is one unseen listening source and one unseen written source to which students must respond.

Assessment overview

This paper includes listening comprehension and a question that assesses listening, reading and writing skills together.

During the examination, students are not allowed access to a dictionary.

Section A: Listening comprehension (30 marks)

A listening assessment based on a recording that features male and female Persian speakers. Students will respond to comprehension questions that are based on a variety of contexts and sources.

The listening audio files for the sample assessment materials are available on the Pearson website.

Themes, sub-themes and research subjects

Papers 1, 2 and 3 will be based on content from the following four themes.

The four themes address a range of content related to society past and present, as well as aspects of the political and artistic culture of Iran and Afghanistan.

For their research, students must cover all three aspects of the research subject. For Themes 1, 3 and 4, students must focus on Iran only; for Theme 2, students must focus on either Iran or Afghanistan. Teachers should consider cultural sensitivities when giving guidance to students on selecting an appropriate research subject. See pages 13–14 for further guidance on independent research.

Paper 1: Translation into English, reading comprehension and writing (research question) in Persian

Content

Students will be assessed on their ability to translate accurately from Persian into English, on their understanding of written Persian from a variety of types of authentic texts, and on their knowledge and understanding of culture and society through research.

Texts vary in length and include an extended passage. All written materials are culturally relevant to Iran and Afghanistan (depending on where they are covered within the themes) and are drawn from the four themes (listed on pages 8–10).

Students should be able to:

- translate from Persian into English
- understand main points and detail from written material
- infer meaning from complex written material
- assimilate and use information from written sources
- develop research skills, demonstrating the ability to initiate and conduct individual research using a range of authentic sources in Persian
- use information from research findings and an unseen text to put forward an argument, draw conclusions and demonstrate knowledge and understanding of the research subject.

Although speaking skills are not directly assessed in the qualification, students should be encouraged to develop their speaking skills in Persian during their course of study.

Translation into English

The content of the translation will be taken from any one of the sub-themes within the four themes.

Reading

The reading section will be made up of texts containing both factual and abstract content and will be authentic or adapted from authentic sources. The texts will include contemporary, historical, literary, fiction and non-fiction sources, written for different purposes and audiences.

Writing (research question)

This section comprises an unseen text based on the research subject and a question related to the text. Students must use their research findings, as well as information in the text, to answer the question.

Assessment information

- First assessment: May/June 2020.
- The total assessment time is 2 hours and 30 minutes. Recommended timings for each section are given below.
- The assessment is out of 80 marks.
- There are three sections in the paper. They cover the assessment of translation, reading, and writing skills in Persian, as well as knowledge and understanding of culture and society.
- Students must answer all questions in Section A and in Section B, and one question on their chosen research subject in Section C.
- During the examination, students are not allowed access to a dictionary or to any documentation related to their research.
- For Section A (translation into English), 20 minutes (recommended timing), 20 marks:
 - students are given one unseen text in Persian and must translate it into English.
- For Section B (reading), 45 minutes (recommended timing), 20 marks:
 - students respond to four questions based on the texts provided
 - questions are multiple choice and open response.
- For Section C (writing), 1 hour and 25 minutes (recommended timing), 40 marks:
 - students are required to select only one research subject prior to the examination and must base their research on one country only.
 - students must research Iran only, if they choose the research subject from Themes 1, 3 or 4. Students who choose the research subject from Theme 2 must base their research on either Iran or Afghanistan
 - in the examination, for their research subject, students read one unseen text in Persian and then respond to a statement based on the research subject; they must use information from the unseen text and their research findings in their response (as students must only research one country, the unseen text for Theme 2 will be general in nature and equally relevant to both countries (Iran and Afghanistan))
 - students are expected to critically analyse the statement and demonstrate knowledge and understanding of the research subject. They do this by presenting ideas, arguments and conclusions that are supported by relevant information, examples and references from their research findings and from the unseen text. They must use a range of language accurately and focus on the question throughout their response
 - students should write approximately 300–350 words in their answer.
- All questions in Sections B and C are set in Persian and must be answered in Persian.

The recommended timings have been set to enable students to complete each section in sufficient time.

Guidance on the independent research

For the purposes of the assessment, independent research means research carried out without the help or instruction of others, including teachers.

The independent research must relate to the Persian-speaking cultural and/or social context. Students must base their research on all aspects of one of the prescribed research subjects listed on pages 8 and 10. Students must base their response on one country only (see pages 8 to 10). Students who choose Themes 1, 3 or 4 must base their response on Iran only. However if students choose Theme 2, they must base their response on either Iran or Afghanistan. Correspondingly, the student's response in the examination must only refer to that country. If students do refer to more than one country, they are likely to disadvantage themselves as they will waste time writing content that will not gain them any marks. Students should therefore be discouraged from doing this (see the mark grid 'Knowledge and understanding of society and culture,').

The independent research must not relate to or make reference to any of the literary works or films studied for Paper 2. The independent research must:

- allow students to gather evidence independently from at least two authentic sources in the assessed language. Authentic sources include newspaper and magazine articles, online written sources, journals, literary texts, films, television, radio, online audio-visual material and interviews. The types of evidence that show knowledge and understanding of society and culture (and research) are outlined in information relating to indicative content on page 16
- enable students to contextualise and evaluate their findings independently.

The table below gives guidance on the process that could be followed.

Stage	Description
1 Pre-independent research	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Teacher instruction on how to conduct research, for example the teacher gives advice on suitable resources and how to analyse information. • Initial conversations with the teacher, explaining the content of the research subject as outlined in this specification. • The teacher should ensure that students focus their research on one country. • The teacher should ensure that if students choose the research subject from Themes 1, 3 or 4, that they focus on Iran only and that if they choose Theme 2, they may focus on either Iran or Afghanistan. • The teacher should consider cultural sensitivities when giving guidance to students on selecting an appropriate research subject and for Theme 2 which of the two countries students should choose.
2 Independent research	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The student conducts research to find and select appropriate sources. • The teacher monitors the research by giving students general feedback. • Students evaluate their findings and prepare for the assessment.

It is recommended that students decide which research subject they wish to research as early as possible in the academic year. However, learning hours for the independent research are not specified because the process of information collation and investigation are undertaken independently.

Teachers can:

- give guidance on how to develop research skills (including methodology and analytical tools)
- give guidance on the content of the research subjects as outlined in this specification
- comment on the availability of resources and time constraints
- advise on and direct students to the Assessment Objectives.

Teachers must:

- explain what 'independence' means (see definition in Guidance on the independent research on page 13)
- confirm that the student's research meets all aspects of the research subject and that it has the potential to meet the requirements of the assessment criteria
- ensure that in their research students do not intend to use any of the literary works or films they have studied for Paper 2
- monitor the different research subjects being undertaken in a centre to ensure that independence is being maintained. If more than one student chooses the same research subject, the teacher must ensure that each student is working independently
- ensure that if the research subject is chosen from Theme 2 that students focus on either Iran or Afghanistan.

Teachers must not:

- teach the content of the research subjects to students or provide sources.

Students must:

- initiate and conduct their own research and develop their research skills when investigating their research subject.

If malpractice is found to have taken place, a penalty may be applied, dependent on the circumstances and severity of the malpractice.

For full details on malpractice, please see the Malpractice section in this specification and the JCQ document Suspected Malpractice in Examinations and Assessments 2017–18.

Synoptic assessment

Synoptic assessment requires students to work across different parts of a qualification and to show their accumulated knowledge and understanding of a topic or subject area.

Synoptic assessment enables students to show their ability to combine their skills, knowledge and understanding with breadth and depth of the subject.

This paper assesses synopticity.

Sample assessment materials

A sample paper and marking criteria (including guidance on how the criteria are applied) can be found in the Pearson Edexcel Level 3 Advanced GCE in Persian (listening, reading and writing) Sample Assessment Materials (SAMs) document.

Marking guidance

Marking guidance has been written to accompany the SAMs document and is included with the SAMs document. Please note that this guidance is for the use of the Pearson-appointed external examiners. It is included in this specification for reference to aid understanding of how the assessment criteria will be applied.

Marking guidance for Paper 1: Translation into English, reading comprehension and writing (research question) in Persian

This marking guidance is for the use of Pearson-appointed external examiners. The guidance has been included for teacher reference to aid understanding of how the assessment criteria will be applied.

Section A – Question 1 (translation into English)

This question is marked using a points-based mark scheme in which 1 mark is given for each correct individual section of language. Please see the Pearson Edexcel Level 3 Advanced GCE in Persian (listening, reading and writing) Sample Assessment Materials (SAMs) document for an example of how the translation will be marked.

Section B – Questions 2 to 5 (reading comprehension)

A sample paper and mark scheme for this section can be found in the Pearson Edexcel Level 3 Advanced GCE in Persian (listening, reading and writing) Sample Assessment Materials (SAMs) document.

Section C – Writing (research question)

There are three levels-based mark grids to be applied to this question. These are:

- knowledge and understanding of society and culture (via research) (AO4)
- understand and respond to written language in writing (AO2)
- accuracy and range of language (AO3).

General guidance on using levels-based mark schemes

Step 1: Decide on a marking level

- First of all, the examiner will consider the answer as a whole and then decide which descriptors most closely match the answer and place it in that level. The descriptors for each level indicate the different features that will be seen in the student's answer for that level.
- When assigning a level, the examiner will look at the overall quality of the answer and not focus disproportionately on small and specific parts of the answer where the student has not performed quite as well as the rest. If the answer covers different aspects of different levels of the mark scheme, the examiner will use a 'best fit' approach for defining the level. They will then use the variability of the response to help decide the mark within the level. For example, if the response is predominantly level 13–16 with a small amount of level 17–20 material, it would be placed in level 13–16 but be awarded a mark at the top of the level because of the level 17–20 content.

Step 2: Decide on a mark

- Once the examiner has decided on a level they will need to decide on a mark within the level.
- They will decide on the mark to award based on the quality of the answer; they will award a mark towards the top or bottom of that level, depending on how the student has evidenced each of the descriptor bullet points.
- The examiner will modify the mark based on how securely the trait descriptors are met at that level.
- They will need to go back through the answer as they apply the mark scheme to clarify points and assure themselves that the level and the mark are appropriate.

Knowledge and understanding of society and culture (AO4 – 20 marks)

This mark grid assesses the content of the student's answer in relation to the knowledge and understanding of culture and society that they have demonstrated based on their research. The mark grid also assesses their ability to critically analyse by sustaining a line of argument and drawing conclusions on aspects of culture and society, based on the question related to the research subject. Students must base their response on one country only, (see pages 8 to 10. Students who choose Themes 1, 3 or 4 must base their response on Iran only. However if students choose Theme 2, they must base their response on either Iran or Afghanistan.

If students refer to more than one country for Themes 1, 3 or 4, examiners will mark content based on Iran only.

If students refer to more than one country for Theme 2, examiners will mark positively by awarding marks for content based on the country that will gain the highest mark.

If students do refer to more than one country in their response, they are likely to disadvantage themselves as they will waste time writing content that will not gain them any marks.

Understand and respond to written language (AO2 – 10 marks)

This grid assesses students' understanding of the unseen text through their ability to use relevant information from it to contribute to the ideas, arguments and conclusions presented on society and culture.

The two mark grids for AO4 and AO2 are presented side by side. This is because of the connection between the information that students are producing based on knowledge and understanding of society and culture, and the information they are using from the unseen text to contribute to it.

Indicative content

- When deciding on how to reward the answer for content, examiners will consult both of these mark grids as well as the indicative content associated with each question, which can be found in the document Pearson Edexcel Level 3 Advanced GCE in Persian (listening, reading and writing) Sample Assessment Materials (SAMs). Indicative content contains points that students are likely to use to construct their answer. It is possible for an answer to be constructed without mentioning some or all of these points, as long as students provide alternative responses that fulfil the requirements of the question.
- The indicative content shows that students are expected to place more emphasis on knowledge and understanding of society and culture (AO4) than on the text (understand and respond in writing to written language – AO2). This emphasis is reflected in the greater number of marks available for AO4 (20 marks) than for AO2 (10 marks).
- Students can demonstrate their knowledge and understanding of society and culture (research) by providing relevant ideas/information/references/examples related to aspects such as:
 - lifestyle/customs/events both current and historical
 - important figures both current and historical
 - public opinion, feelings, reactions and behaviour.

This list is not exhaustive. Other aspects are illustrated in the indicative content in the Pearson Edexcel Level 3 Advanced GCE in Persian (listening, reading and writing) Sample Assessment Materials (SAMs).

Perceptive: demonstrates an in-depth understanding by making connections between ideas and information; goes beyond the standard, predictable response; shows insight/originality.

Ideas include thoughts, feelings, impressions and opinions.

Straightforward ideas, arguments, conclusions are deemed to be those that give the standard, predictable response.

9–10	<ul style="list-style-type: none">Consistent variation in use of grammatical structures and vocabulary, consistent variation in use of complex language; conveys ideas in a variety of ways, consistently articulate writing.Accurate language throughout, resulting in consistently coherent writing; any errors do not hinder clarity of the communication.

Additional guidance

Complex language is considered to include the following:

- all grammar and structures included in the grammar list that are specific to A Level
- conceptually challenging tenses such as the pluperfect, future
- passive voice
- subjunctive mood
- use of subordination
- using extended sentences to express abstract ideas/convey justified arguments that require a range of lexis and structures, for example conjunctions, pronouns, relative clauses
- using synonyms and a variety of expressions to say things in different ways.

Variation in use of grammatical structures/varied use of vocabulary: the traits in the mark grid differentiate between the variation of grammatical structures and vocabulary used by students. You should judge in which mark level to place students and which mark to award, based on the effect that the variety of grammatical structures and vocabulary has on the quality of the communication; the wider the variety, the more articulate the communication will become (see definition of articulate below).

Examples of a variety of grammatical structures and vocabulary are: a selection of different verbs, tenses, adjectives, vocabulary and complex language (see definition above) for a variety of purposes, such as to present and justify points of view, develop arguments, draw conclusions based on understanding and evaluate issues.

Articulate: articulate communication is fluent, effective and coherent as students control/manipulate the language to express themselves with ease for a number of different purposes. The more articulate the writing, the easier and more quickly the reader can progress through the writing without having to re-read to understand the message. If students are restricted to what they can express, they may not be able to use languages for all purposes, for example to justify arguments. The writing will become more difficult to read quickly and with ease as the reader has to stop and re-read to understand the message.

Errors: students are not expected to produce perfect, error-free writing in order to access the top level as errors are also made by native speakers. The mark grid describes the frequency of errors and the impact that errors have on clarity.

Errors that do not hinder clarity:

- errors that do not affect meaning, such as using the indefinite article in the wrong place, for example کتاب خوبی که خواندم instead of خواندم
- infrequent errors that do not distract the reader from the content and which result in coherent writing.

Errors that hinder clarity:

- errors that make writing difficult to understand immediately (even if the meaning is eventually understood)/errors that force readers to re-read in order to understand what is meant, for example inappropriate tense formation, wrong case endings
- frequent errors hinder clarity as they will distract the reader from the content of the writing.

Errors that prevent meaning being conveyed:

- errors that mean the reader cannot understand the message
- errors that convey the wrong message
- mother-tongue interference.

NB: these are provided as examples only and do not constitute a finite list.

Paper 2: Translation into Persian and written response to works

Content

Students should be able to:

- manipulate language accurately through translating an unseen passage from English into Persian
- develop a detailed understanding and appreciation of the works studied, by writing critical and analytical responses in the language of study to the works, taken from the prescribed list provided (see Appendix 1: Prescribed literary texts and films)
- produce responses that relate to features such as the form and the technique of presentation; key themes concepts and issues; characterisation; structure of the plot and the social and cultural setting
- present viewpoints, develop arguments, persuade, analyse and evaluate.

Although speaking skills are not directly assessed in this qualification, students should be encouraged to develop their speaking skills in Persian during their course of study.

Translation into Persian

The content of the translation will be taken from any one the sub-themes within the four themes.

Written response to works

Students must study two discrete Persian works: either two literary texts, or one literary text and one film. The works must be taken from the list in Appendix 1: Prescribed literary texts and films. The literary texts include novels and non-fiction. All films are feature length.

Assessment information

- First assessment: May/June 2020.
- The total assessment time is 2 hours and 40 minutes. Recommended timings for each section are given below.
- The assessment is out of 110 marks.
- There are three sections to this paper, Section A (translation into Persian), Section B and Section C (written response to works).
- For Section A (translation into Persian), 30 minutes (recommended timing), 20 marks:
 - students are given one unseen text in English and must translate it into Persian.
- For Sections B and C (written response to works), 2 hours and 10 minutes, 90 marks:
 - students must write two essays selected from Section B (literary texts) or one selected from Section B (literary texts) and one from the Section C (films)
 - there will be a choice of two questions for each literary text and film. As a guide, we advise students to write approximately 300–350 words for each essay in order to give a detailed analysis of the works, although the whole essay will be marked regardless of length
 - students should justify their points of view, arguments and conclusions with evidence from the works
 - students are expected to provide a critical and analytical response by selecting relevant material from the works, presenting and justifying points of view, developing arguments, drawing conclusions based on understanding and evaluating different aspects of the works studied
 - no credit will be given for essays on literary texts based on film versions adapted from the literary texts. Evidence given in the essay to justify viewpoints and arguments must be based on the original literary text.
- All questions will be set in Persian and must be answered in Persian.
- The use of dictionaries is not permitted.
- Students must not take any documentation relating to the works into the examination.
- The recommended timings have been given to enable students to complete each section in sufficient time.

Sample assessment materials

A sample paper and marking criteria (including guidance on how these criteria are applied) for this paper can be found in the Pearson Edexcel Level 3 Advanced GCE in Persian (listening, reading and writing) Sample Assessment Materials (SAMs) document.

Marking guidance

Marking guidance has been written to accompany the SAMs document and is included with the SAMs document. Please note that this guidance is for the use of the Pearson-appointed external examiners. It is included in this specification for reference to aid understanding of how the assessment criteria will be applied.

Marking guidance for Paper 2: Translation into Persian and written response to works

This marking guidance is for the use of Pearson-appointed external examiners. The guidance has been included for teacher reference to aid understanding of how the assessment criteria will be applied.

Section A – Question 1 (translation into Persian)

This question is marked using a points-based mark scheme in which 1 mark is given for each correct individual section of language. Please see the Pearson Edexcel Level 3 Advanced GCE in Persian (listening, reading and writing) Sample Assessment Materials (SAMs) document for an example of how the translation will be marked.

Sections B and C – Questions 2 to 7 (written response to works)

Included in Sections B and C, Written response to works, are three levels-based mark grids to be applied to each individual essay. The mark grids are:

- Critical and analytical response (AO4)
- Range of grammatical structures and vocabulary (AO3)
- Accuracy of language (AO3).

General guidance on using levels-based mark schemes

Step 1: Decide on a marking level

- First of all, the examiner will consider the answer as a whole and then decide which descriptors most closely match the answer and place it in that level. The descriptors for each level indicate the different features that will be seen in the student's answer for that level.
- When assigning a level, the examiner will look at the overall quality of the answer and not focus disproportionately on small and specific parts of the answer where the student has not performed quite as well as the rest. If the answer covers different aspects of different levels of the mark scheme, the examiner will use a 'best fit' approach for defining the level. They will then use the variability of the response to help decide the mark within the level. For example, if the response is predominantly level 13–16 with a small amount of level 17–20 material, it would be placed in level 13–16 but be awarded a mark at the top of the level because of the level 17–20 content.

Step 2: Decide on a mark

- Once the examiner has decided on a level they will need to decide on a mark within the level.
- They will decide on the mark to award based on the quality of the answer; they will award a mark towards the top or bottom of that level, depending on how the student has evidenced each of the descriptor bullet points.
- The examiner will modify the mark based on how securely the trait descriptors are met at that level.
- They will need to go back through the answer as they apply the mark scheme to clarify points and assure themselves that the level and the mark are appropriate.

Sections B and C – Questions 2 to 7 (written response to works)

Critical and analytical response (AO4)

- This mark grid assesses students' ability to respond critically and analytically to the aspect of the literary text or film outlined in the question. To provide a critical and analytical response, students should select relevant material, present and justify points of view, develop arguments, draw conclusions based on understanding and evaluate issues, themes and cultural and social contexts.
- This grid should be applied twice, once for each essay individually.
- When deciding how to reward an answer, examiners will consult this mark grid as well as the indicative content associated with each question, which can be found in the document Pearson Edexcel Level 3 Advanced GCE in Persian (listening, reading and writing) Sample Assessment Materials (SAMs). Indicative content contains points that students are likely to use to construct their answer. It is possible for an answer to be constructed without mentioning some or all of these points, as long as students provide alternative responses that fulfil the requirements of the question.
- The recommended word count for each essay is 300–350 words but the whole essay will be marked regardless of length.

Range of grammatical structures and vocabulary (A03)

This mark grid assesses students' ability to use a range of grammatical structures and vocabulary in order to produce articulate written communication with a range of expression.

This grid will be applied twice, once for each essay individually.

Marks	Description
0	No rewardable language.
1–3	<ul style="list-style-type: none">Limited variation of straightforward grammatical structures with much repetition, producing writing that is often restricted and stilted.Limited variation of vocabulary resulting in repetitive expression.Limited use of terminology appropriate to literary and cinematic analysis.

Additional guidance

Variation of vocabulary and grammatical structures: the traits in the mark grid differentiate between the variation of grammatical structures and vocabulary used by students. You must judge in which mark level to place students and which mark to award, based on the effect that the variety of grammatical structures and vocabulary has on the quality of the communication; the wider the variety, the more articulate the communication will become (see definition of articulate below).

Examples of a variety of grammatical structures and vocabulary are: a selection of different verbs, tenses, adjectives, vocabulary (including to express literary and cinematic analysis – (see further detail below), complex language (see definition below) for a variety of purposes, including to present and justify points of view, develop arguments, draw conclusions based on understanding.

Articulate: articulate communication is fluent, effective and coherent as students control/manipulate the language to say what they want to say rather than what they can say, for a number of different purposes. If students are restricted to what they can say, they may not be able to express themselves for all purposes, for example to develop arguments.

Terminology for literary and cinematic analysis: vocabulary for critical analysis according to the work being studied, for example 'plot', 'character'; figures of speech such as 'metaphor', 'similes'; to describe theme and style such as, 'camera technique', 'hand-held camera', 'use of black and white', 'first person narrative.'

Complex language is considered to include the following:

- all grammar and structures included in the grammar list that are specific to A Level
- conceptually challenging tenses such as the pluperfect and future
- passive voice
- subjunctive mood
- use of subordination
- using extended sentences to express abstract ideas/convey justified arguments that require a range of lexis and structures, for example conjunctions, pronouns and relative clauses
- using synonyms and a variety of expressions to say things in different ways.

Straightforward language is considered to be:

- simple sentences with limited linking of sentences and clauses
- high-frequency grammatical structures and vocabulary.

Accuracy of language (A03)

This mark grid assesses students' ability to apply grammar and syntax accurately.

This grid will be applied twice, once for each essay individually.

Marks	Description

5–6	<ul style="list-style-type: none">Frequent sequences of accurate language, resulting in generally coherent writing.Errors occur that occasionally hinder clarity of communication.
7–8	<ul style="list-style-type: none">Accurate language throughout most of the response, resulting in mostly coherent writing.Errors occur that rarely hinder clarity of communication.
9–10	<ul style="list-style-type: none">Accurate language throughout, resulting in consistently coherent writing.Any errors do not hinder clarity of communication.

Additional guidance

Errors: students are not expected to produce perfect, error-free writing in order to access the top level as errors are also made by native speakers. The mark grid describes the frequency of errors and the impact that errors have on clarity.

Errors that do not hinder clarity:

- errors that do not affect meaning, such as using the indefinite article in the wrong place, for example کتاب خوبی که خواندم instead of کتابی خوب که خواندم
- infrequent errors that do not distract the reader from the content and which result in coherent writing.

Errors that hinder clarity:

- errors that make writing difficult to understand immediately (even if the meaning is eventually understood)/errors that force readers to re-read in order to understand what is meant, for example inappropriate tense formation, wrong case endings
- frequent errors hinder clarity as they will distract the reader from the content of the writing.

Errors that prevent meaning being conveyed:

- errors that mean the reader cannot understand the message
- errors that convey the wrong message
- mother-tongue interference.

NB: these are provided as examples only and do not constitute a finite list.

Paper 3: Listening, reading and writing in Persian

Content

Students will be assessed on their understanding of spoken Persian from a variety of authentic listening sources, as well as on their ability to summarise and evaluate viewpoints in spoken and written material.

Recordings vary in length and include an extended passage. All spoken and written materials are culturally relevant to Iran and Afghanistan for Section A are drawn from across the four themes (listed on pages 8–10). Materials for Section B will be drawn from any one of the sub-themes from the four themes.

Students should be able to:

- listen, and respond in writing to spoken passages, including an extended passage from a range of different contexts and sources, understand main points, gist and detail from spoken and written material
- infer meaning from complex spoken material
- assimilate and use information from spoken and written sources
- summarise information from spoken and written sources, reporting key points and subject matter in writing
- identify main ideas, and summarise different points of view, drawn from spoken and written sources
- evaluate points of view and draw conclusions in writing
- apply listening, reading and writing skills in combination.

Although speaking skills are not directly assessed in the qualification, students should be encouraged to develop their speaking skills in Persian during their course of study.

Section A (listening comprehension)

The listening section will be made up of spoken passages covering different registers and types, including authentic communication involving one or more male and female speakers. Sources will include material from online media.

Section B (listening, reading and writing question)

This section comprises a listening source and a reading text. Students must summarise the different points of view in each source. They must then answer a question that requires them to evaluate the viewpoints in both sources and draw conclusions.

Assessment information

- First assessment: May/June 2020.
- The total assessment time is 2 hours and 15 minutes. Recommended timings for each section are given below.
- The assessment is out of 60 marks.
- There are two sections in the paper. They cover the assessment of listening, reading and writing skills in Persian.
- Students must answer all questions in both sections (A and B).
- The use of dictionaries is not permitted.
- For Section A (listening), 45 minutes (recommended timing), 30 marks:
 - there are four questions in this section made up of multiple-choice and open-response questions, including questions testing summary skills
 - students will listen to a recording featuring Persian-language speakers who will speak at a speed appropriate for the expected understanding at this level
 - recordings will be issued as a CD or in MP3 audio format. The MP3 sound files must be accessed via a secure download from the Pearson website. The listening audio files are also available on our website
 - students will have individual control of the recording and may stop, revisit and replay sections of the recording as they wish.
- For Section B (listening, reading and writing question), 1 hour and 30 minutes (recommended timing), 30 marks:
 - students listen to a recording and read a written text
 - students summarise the different points of view in both sources
 - students answer a question in writing, which requires them to evaluate the viewpoints in the recording and in the text and draw conclusions
 - the question is an open-response question
 - Students should write approximately 200–250 words for their response to Question 5(c).
- All questions in Sections A and B are set in Persian and must be answered in Persian.

Recommended timings have been given for each section to enable students to complete each one in sufficient time to access the full range of assessment criteria.

Synoptic assessment

Synoptic assessment requires students to work across different parts of a qualification and to show their accumulated knowledge and understanding of a topic or subject area.

Synoptic assessment enables students to show their ability to combine their skills, knowledge and understanding with breadth and depth of the subject.

This paper assesses synopticity.

Sample assessment materials

A sample paper and marking criteria (including guidance on how the criteria are applied) for this paper can be found in the Pearson Edexcel Level 3 Advanced GCE in Persian (listening, reading and writing) Sample Assessment Materials (SAMs) document.

Marking guidance for Paper 3: Listening, reading and writing in Persian

Marking guidance has been written to accompany the SAMs document and is included with the SAMs document. Please note that this guidance is for the use of the Pearson-appointed external examiners. It is included in this specification to aid understanding of how the assessment criteria will be applied.

Section A – Questions 1 to 4

A points-based mark scheme for this section can be found in the Pearson Edexcel Level 3 Advanced GCE in Persian (listening, reading and writing) Sample Assessment Materials (SAMs) document.

Section B – Listening, reading and writing

A points-based mark scheme for Questions 5(a) and 5(b) can be found in the Pearson Edexcel Level 3 Advanced GCE in Persian (listening, reading and writing) Sample Assessment Materials (SAMs) document.

There are three levels-based mark grids applied to Question 5(c). The mark grids are:

- understand and respond to spoken language (AO1)
- understand and respond to spoken/written language (AO2)
- accuracy and range of language (AO3).

General guidance on using levels-based mark schemes

Step 1: Decide on a marking level

- First of all, the examiner will consider the answer as a whole and then decide which descriptors most closely match the answer and place it in that level. The descriptors for each level indicate the different features that will be seen in the student's answer for that level.
- When assigning a level, the examiner will look at the overall quality of the answer and not focus disproportionately on small and specific parts of the answer where the student has not performed quite as well as the rest or indeed has performed temporarily better. If the answer covers different aspects of different levels of the mark scheme, they will use a 'best fit' approach for defining the level. They will then use the variability of the response to help decide the mark within the level. For example if the response is predominantly level 3–4 with a small amount of level 5–6 material, it would be placed in level 3–4 but be awarded a mark at the top of the level because of the level 5–6 content.

Step 2: Decide on a mark

- Once the examiner has decided on a level they will then need to decide on a mark within the level.
- The examiner will decide the mark to award based on the quality of the answer; they will award a mark towards the top or bottom of that level depending on how the student has evidenced each of the descriptor bullet points.
- The examiner will modify the mark based on how securely the trait descriptors are met at that level.
- The examiner will need to go back through the answer as they apply the mark scheme to clarify points and to assure that the level and the mark are appropriate.

Understand and respond to spoken language (AO1 – 6 marks)

This mark grid assesses students' understanding of spoken language and how well they use information from it to evaluate and draw conclusions.

Understand and respond to written language (AO2 – 6 marks)

This mark grid assesses students' understanding of written language and how well they use information from it to evaluate and draw conclusions.

The two mark grids for AO1 and AO2 are presented side by side. This is because of the interconnection of the task in that students need to compare information that they hear to the information that they read. They need to do this in order to weigh up the views in both sources to be able to write their evaluation and come to cohesive conclusions.

Indicative content

- When deciding how to reward an answer, examiners will consult this mark grid as well as the indicative content associated with the question, which can be found in the document Pearson Edexcel Level 3 Advanced GCE in Persian (listening, reading and writing) Sample Assessment Materials (SAMs). Indicative content contains points that students are likely to use to construct their answer. It is possible for an answer to be constructed without mentioning some or all of these points, as long as students provide alternative responses that fulfil the requirements of the question.
- The recommended word count for Question 5(c) is 200–250 words but the whole response will be marked regardless of length.

Accuracy and range of language mark grid (A03)

This mark grid assesses students' ability to use a range of grammatical structures and vocabulary accurately to produce articulate communication with a range of expression.

Additional guidance

Complex language is considered to include the following:

- all grammar and structures included in the grammar list that are specific to A Level
- conceptually challenging tenses such as the pluperfect and future
- passive voice
- subjunctive mood
- use of subordination
- using extended sentences to express abstract ideas/convey justified arguments that require a range of lexis and structures, for example conjunctions, pronouns and relative clauses
- using synonyms and a variety of expressions to say things in different ways.

Variation in use of grammatical structures/ varied use of vocabulary: the traits in the mark grid differentiate between the variation of grammatical structures and vocabulary used by students. You should judge in which mark level to place students and which mark to award, based on the effect that the variety of grammatical structures and vocabulary has on the quality of the communication; the wider the variety, the more articulate the communication will become, (see definition of articulate below).

Examples of a variety of grammatical structures and vocabulary are: a selection of different verbs, tenses, adjectives, vocabulary and complex language (see definition above) for a variety of purposes such as to present and justify points of view, develop arguments, draw conclusions based on understanding and evaluating issues.

Articulate: articulate communication is fluent, effective and coherent as students control/manipulate the language to express themselves with ease for a number of different purposes. The more articulate the writing, the easier the reader can progress through the writing without having to re-read to understand the message. If students are restricted to what they can express, they may not be able to use languages for all purposes, for example to justify arguments/interest the reader. The writing will become more difficult to read with ease as the reader has to stop and re-read to understand the message.

Errors: students are not expected to produce perfect, error-free writing in order to access the top level as errors are also made by native speakers. The mark grid describes the frequency of errors and the impact that errors have on clarity.

Errors that do not hinder clarity:

- errors that do not affect meaning, such as using the indefinite article in the wrong place, for example کتاب خوبی که خواندم instead of کتابی خوب که خواندم
- infrequent errors that do not distract the reader from the content and which result in coherent writing.

Errors that hinder clarity:

- errors that make writing difficult to understand immediately (even if the meaning is eventually understood)/errors that force readers to re-read in order to understand what is meant, for example inappropriate tense formation, wrong case endings
- frequent errors hinder clarity as they will distract the reader from the content of the writing.

Errors that prevent meaning being conveyed:

- errors that mean the reader cannot understand the message
- errors that convey the wrong message
- mother-tongue interference.

NB: these are provided as examples only and do not constitute a finite list.

Entries

Details of how to enter students for the examinations for this qualification can be found in our UK Information Manual. A copy is made available to all examinations officers and is available on our website.

Discount code and performance tables

Centres should be aware that students who enter for more than one GCE qualification with the same discount code will have only one of the grades they achieve counted for the purpose of the school and college performance tables.

Students should be advised that if they take two GCE qualifications with the same discount code, the colleges, universities and employers to which they wish to progress are likely to take the view that this achievement is equivalent to only one GCE. The same view may be taken if students take two GCE qualifications that have different discount codes but which have significant overlap of content. Before embarking on their programmes, students or their advisers who have any doubts about their subject combinations should check with the institution to which they wish to progress.

Access arrangements, reasonable adjustments, special consideration and malpractice

Equality and fairness are central to our work. Our Equality Policy requires all students to have equal opportunity to access our qualifications and assessments, and our qualifications to be awarded in a way that is fair to every student.

We are committed to making sure that:

- students with a protected characteristic (as defined by the Equality Act 2010) are not, when they are undertaking one of our qualifications, disadvantaged in comparison to students who do not share that characteristic
- all students achieve the recognition they deserve for undertaking a qualification and that this achievement can be compared fairly to the achievement of their peers.

Language of assessment

The language of assessment for this qualification is Persian. All student work must be in Persian, except the translation in Paper 1 (Section A), which requires a response in English.

Access arrangements

Access arrangements are agreed before an assessment. They allow students with special educational needs, disabilities or temporary injuries to:

- access the assessment
- show what they know and can do without changing the demands of the assessment.

The intention behind an access arrangement is to meet the particular needs of an individual student with a disability, without affecting the integrity of the assessment. Access arrangements are the principal way in which awarding bodies comply with the duty under the Equality Act 2010 to make 'reasonable adjustments'.

Access arrangements should always be processed at the start of the course. Students will then know what is available and have the access arrangement(s) in place for assessment.

Reasonable adjustments

The Equality Act 2010 requires an awarding organisation to make reasonable adjustments where a person with a disability would be at a substantial disadvantage in undertaking an assessment. The awarding organisation is required to take reasonable steps to overcome that disadvantage.

A reasonable adjustment for a particular person may be unique to that individual and, therefore, might not be in the list of available access arrangements.

Whether an adjustment will be considered reasonable will depend on a number of factors, including:

- the needs of the student with the disability
- the effectiveness of the adjustment
- the cost of the adjustment; and
- the likely impact of the adjustment on the student with the disability and other students.

An adjustment will not be approved if it involves unreasonable costs to the awarding organisation, or affects timeframes or the security or integrity of the assessment. This is because the adjustment is not 'reasonable'.

Special consideration

Special consideration is a post-examination adjustment to a student's mark or grade to reflect temporary injury, illness or other indisposition at the time of the examination/assessment, which has had, or is reasonably likely to have had, a material effect on a student's ability to take an assessment or demonstrate their level of attainment in an assessment.

Further information

Please see our website for further information about how to apply for access arrangements and special consideration.

For further information about access arrangements, reasonable adjustments and special consideration, please refer to the JCQ website: www.jcq.org.uk

Malpractice

Student malpractice

Student malpractice refers to any act by a student that compromises or seeks to compromise the process of assessment or which undermines the integrity of the qualifications or the validity of results/certificates.

Student malpractice in examinations must be reported to Pearson using a JCQ Form M1 (available at www.jcq.org.uk/exams-office/malpractice). The form can be emailed to pqsmalpractice@pearson.com or posted to Investigations Team, Pearson, 190 High Holborn, London, WC1V 7BH. Please provide as much information and supporting documentation as possible. Note that the final decision regarding appropriate sanctions lies with Pearson.

Failure to report malpractice constitutes staff or centre malpractice.

Staff/centre malpractice

Staff and centre malpractice includes both deliberate malpractice and maladministration of our qualifications. As with student malpractice, staff and centre malpractice is any act that compromises or seeks to compromise the process of assessment or which undermines the integrity of the qualifications or the validity of results/certificates.

All cases of suspected staff malpractice and maladministration must be reported immediately, before any investigation is undertaken by the centre, to Pearson on a JCQ Form M2a (available at www.jcq.org.uk/exams-office/malpractice). The form, supporting documentation and as much information as possible can be emailed to pqsmalpractice@pearson.com or posted to Investigations Team, Pearson, 190 High Holborn, London, WC1V 7BH. Note that the final decision regarding appropriate sanctions lies with Pearson.

Failure to report malpractice itself constitutes malpractice.

More detailed guidance on malpractice can be found in the latest version of the document General and Vocational Qualifications Suspected Malpractice in Examinations and Assessments Policies and Procedures, available at www.jcq.org.uk/exams-office/malpractice.

Awarding and reporting

This qualification will be graded, awarded and certificated to comply with the requirements of Ofqual's General Conditions of Recognition.

The raw marks for all papers in this qualification will be scaled by Pearson to represent the relative weighting of 40% for Paper 1, and 30% for Papers 2 and 3.

Paper	Weighting	Raw marks	Scaling factor	Scaling mark
1	40%	80	1.850	148
2	30%	110	1.009	110.99
3	30%	60	1.850	111

This A Level qualification will be graded and certificated on a six-grade scale from A* to E using the total subject mark. Individual papers are not graded.

Students whose level of achievement is below the minimum judged by Pearson to be of sufficient standard to be recorded on a certificate will receive an unclassified U result.

The first certification opportunity for this qualification will be 2020.

Student recruitment and progression

Pearson follows the JCQ policy concerning recruitment to our qualifications in that:

- they must be available to anyone who is capable of reaching the required standard
- they must be free from barriers that restrict access and progression
- equal opportunities exist for all students.

Prior learning and other requirements

There are no prior learning or other requirements for this qualification.

Students who would benefit most from studying this qualification are likely to have a Level 2 qualification such as a GCSE in Persian. However, students do not need to have studied a GCSE in Persian to follow this course.

Progression

This qualification offers a suitable progression route from GCSE, focusing on the development of three language skills: listening, reading and writing. Grammar and the mastering of linguistic features are key elements of this qualification, as is the inclusion of authentic written and spoken sources, responding through writing to literature and film, and independent research.

Students are expected to be able to develop knowledge and understanding of society past and present, and of the political and artistic culture of Iran and Afghanistan. They should be able to express and justify their own opinions, develop arguments and persuade in writing, building on the fluency developed at Key Stage 4.

The skill of translation will be developed from those skills practised at Key Stages 3 and 4. The range of topics promotes a clear progression in grammar, vocabulary and cultural knowledge and understanding from Key Stage 4 and will increase linguistic and cognitive demand. The grammar list illustrates the level required for this qualification.

This qualification offers a suitable progression route to further study at university level. In addition, the study of one language at GCE can facilitate and help promote the learning of other languages. The qualification may also add to an individual's employability profile, particularly for UK organisations trading overseas as well as with international companies based in the UK and globally. Students can progress to a wide range of careers in areas such as journalism and media, education, science, medicine, the civil service, sales, marketing, retail, and charities.

Students will be able to apply their knowledge, skills and understanding to authentic, real-life contexts. They will develop transferable skills that support the study of other GCE subjects, higher-education study and the transition to employment, together with an understanding and appreciation of Persian-speaking countries and their cultures.

Appendix 3: The context for the development of this qualification

All our qualifications are designed to meet our World Class Qualification Principles^[1] and our ambition to put the student at the heart of everything we do.

We have developed and designed this qualification by:

- reviewing other curricula and qualifications to ensure that it is comparable with those taken in high-performing jurisdictions overseas
- consulting with key stakeholders on content and assessment, including higher-education academics and teachers to ensure this qualification is suitable for a UK context
- reviewing the legacy qualification and building on its positive attributes.

This qualification has also been developed to meet criteria stipulated by Ofqual in their documents GCE Qualification Level Conditions and Requirements and GCSE/GCE Subject Level Conditions and Requirements for Modern Foreign Languages, published in April 2016.

^[1] Pearson's World Class Qualification Principles ensure that our qualifications are:

- demanding, through internationally benchmarked standards, encouraging deep learning and measuring higher-order skills
- rigorous, through setting and maintaining standards over time, developing reliable and valid assessment tasks and processes, and generating confidence in end users of the knowledge, skills and competencies of certified students
- inclusive, through conceptualising learning as continuous, recognising that students develop at different rates and have different learning needs, and focusing on progression
- empowering, through promoting the development of transferable skills, see Appendix 4.

From Pearson's Expert Panel for World Class Qualifications

May 2014

"The reform of the qualifications system in England is a profoundly important change to the education system. Teachers need to know that the new qualifications will assist them in helping their learners make progress in their lives.

When these changes were first proposed we were approached by Pearson to join an 'Expert Panel' that would advise them on the development of the new qualifications.

We were chosen, either because of our expertise in the UK education system, or because of our experience in reforming qualifications in other systems around the world as diverse as Singapore, Hong Kong, Australia and a number of countries across Europe.

We have guided Pearson through what we judge to be a rigorous qualification development process that has included:

- establishing External Subject Advisory Groups, drawing on independent subject-specific expertise to challenge and validate our qualifications
- subjecting the final qualifications to scrutiny against the DfE content and Ofqual accreditation criteria in advance of submission.

Importantly, we have worked to ensure that the content and learning is future oriented. The design has been guided by what is called an 'Efficacy Framework', meaning learner outcomes have been at the heart of this development throughout.

We understand that ultimately it is excellent teaching that is the key factor to a learner's success in education. As a result of our work as a panel we are confident that we have supported the development of qualifications that are outstanding for their coherence, thoroughness and attention to detail and can be regarded as representing world-class best practice."

Appendix 4: Transferable skills

The need for transferable skills

In recent years, higher-education institutions and employers have consistently flagged the need for students to develop a range of transferable skills to enable them to respond with confidence to the demands of undergraduate study and the world of work.

The Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) defines skills, or competencies, as 'the bundle of knowledge, attributes and capacities that can be learned and that enable individuals to successfully and consistently perform an activity or task and can be built upon and extended through learning.'^[1]

To support the design of our qualifications, the Pearson Research Team selected and evaluated seven global 21st-century skills frameworks. Following on from this process, we identified the National Research Council's (NRC) framework as the most evidence-based and robust skills framework. We adapted the framework slightly to include the Program for International Student Assessment (PISA) ICT Literacy and Collaborative Problem Solving (CPS) Skills.

The adapted National Research Council's framework of skills involves the following^[2].

Cognitive skills

- Non-routine problem solving – expert thinking, metacognition, creativity.
- Systems thinking – decision making and reasoning.
- Critical thinking – definitions of critical thinking are broad and usually involve general cognitive skills such as analysing, synthesising and reasoning skills.
- ICT literacy – access, manage, integrate, evaluate, construct and communicate^[3].

Interpersonal skills

- Communication – active listening, speaking communication, written communication, assertive communication and non-verbal communication.
- Relationship-building skills – teamwork, trust, intercultural sensitivity, service orientation, self-presentation, social influence, conflict resolution and negotiation.
- Collaborative problem solving – establishing and maintaining shared understanding, taking appropriate action, establishing and maintaining team organisation.

Intrapersonal skills

- Adaptability – ability and willingness to cope with the uncertain, handling work stress, adapting to different personalities, communication styles and cultures, and physical adaptability to various indoor and outdoor work environments.
- Self-management and self-development – ability to work remotely in virtual teams, work autonomously, be self-motivating and self-monitoring, willing and able to acquire new information and skills related to work.

Transferable skills enable young people to face the demands of further and higher education, as well as the demands of the workplace, and are important in the teaching and learning of this qualification. We will provide teaching and learning materials, developed with stakeholders, to support our qualifications.

Appendix 5: Level 3 Extended Project qualification

What is the Extended Project?

The Extended Project is a standalone qualification that can be taken alongside GCEs. It supports the development of independent learning skills and helps to prepare students for their next step – whether that be higher education or employment. The qualification:

- is recognised by higher education for the skills it develops
- is worth half of an Advanced GCE qualification at grades A*–E
- carries UCAS points for university entry.

The Extended Project encourages students to develop skills in the following areas: research, critical thinking, extended writing and project management. Students identify and agree a topic area of their choice for in-depth study (which may or may not be related to a GCE subject they are already studying), guided by their teacher.

Students can choose from one of four approaches to produce:

- a dissertation (for example an investigation based on predominantly secondary research)
- an investigation/field study (for example a practical experiment)
- a performance (for example in music, drama or sport)
- an artefact (for example creating a sculpture in response to a client brief or solving an engineering problem).

The qualification is coursework based and students are assessed, in English, on the skills of managing, planning and evaluating their project. Students will research their topic, develop skills to review and evaluate the information, and then present the final outcome of their project.

The Extended Project has 120 guided learning hours (GLH) consisting of a 40-GLH taught element that includes teaching the technical skills (for example research skills) and an 80-GLH guided element that includes mentoring students through the project work. The qualification is 100% internally assessed and externally moderated.

How to link the Extended Project with languages

The Extended Project creates the opportunity to develop transferable skills for progression to higher education and to the workplace, through the exploration of either an area of personal interest or a topic of interest from within the language qualification content. The project must be written in English.

Through the Extended Project, students will develop skills that support their study of Persian, including:

- conducting, organising and using research
- independent reading in the subject area
- planning, project management and time management
- defining a hypothesis to be tested in investigations or developing a design brief
- collecting, handling and interpreting data and evidence
- evaluating arguments and processes, including arguments in favour of alternative interpretations of data and evaluation of experimental methodology
- critical thinking.

In the context of the Extended Project, critical thinking refers to the ability to identify and develop arguments for a point of view or hypothesis and to consider and respond to alternative arguments. This supports the development of evaluative skills through evaluating different arguments and using qualitative and quantitative evidence to support informed judgements and propose evidence-based solutions to issues.

Types of Extended Project related to languages

Students may produce a dissertation on any topic that can be researched and debated, for example a controversial issue such as 'equal rights for all', 'the role of the church' or 'hooliganism in sport'.

A dissertation might involve an investigation such as:

- the impact of English language on the Persian music industry
- the success of different types of schools in Iran.

The dissertation uses secondary research sources to provide a reasoned defence or a point of view, with consideration of counter-arguments.

An alternative might be an investigative project or field study involving the collection of data from primary research, for example:

- the impact of the revolution on Persian society
- a statistical survey of changing attitudes towards technology among young people in Iran.

A field study might consider an issue that lends itself to primary research, for example an investigation on the impact of foreign policy in Iranian politics.

Using the Extended Project to support breadth and depth

In the Extended Project, students are assessed on the quality of the work they produce and the skills they develop and demonstrate through completing the project. Students should demonstrate that they have extended themselves in some significant way beyond what they have been studying in Persian. Students can demonstrate extension in one or more dimensions:

- deepening understanding – where a student explores a topic in greater depth than in the specification content. This could be an in-depth exploration of one aspect of the themes
- broadening skills – where a student learns a new skill. This might be learning how to design a website or learning about a new statistical technique that can be used in the analysis of either primary or secondary data collected by the student
- widening perspectives – where the student's project spans different subjects. A student studying Persian with business may wish to research the impact of tourism on a particular region or locality. A student studying Persian with history may wish to analyse the impact of the revolution on today's society.

Information to support the delivery and assessment of the Extended Project, including the specification for it, can be found on our website.
