

Edexcel GCSE in Chinese

(2CN01) (3CN0S) (3CN0S)

For first teaching from 2009

Sample Assessment Materials

Welcome to the GCSE 2009 Chinese Sample Assessment Materials.

These sample assessment materials have been developed to give you and your students a flavour of the actual exam papers and mark schemes so they can experience what they will encounter in their live assessments.

They feature:

- Accessible papers using a mixture of questions styles where appropriate – we've worked hard to ensure the papers are easy to follow with an encouraging tone so that the full range of students can show what they know.
- Clear and concise mark schemes for each paper, outlining what examiners will be looking for in the assessments, so you can use the sample papers with students to help them prepare for the real thing.
- Supported controlled assessment, including sample controlled assessment materials to show you the sort of activity students will undertake. Used in conjunction with the guidance in the Teacher's Guide, these samples will help you manage the controlled assessment in your centre and help students achieve their best.

Our GCSE 2009 Chinese qualification will be supported better than ever before.

General Marking Guidance

- All candidates must receive the same treatment. Examiners must mark the first candidate in exactly the same way as they mark the last.
- Mark schemes should be applied positively. Candidates must be rewarded for what they have shown they can do rather than penalised for omissions.
- Examiners should mark according to the mark scheme not according to their perception of where the grade boundaries may lie.
- There is no ceiling on achievement. All marks on the mark scheme should be used appropriately.
- All the marks on the mark scheme are designed to be awarded. Examiners should always award full marks if deserved, i.e. if the answer matches the mark scheme. Examiners should also be prepared to award zero marks if the candidate's response is not worthy of credit according to the mark scheme.
- Where some judgement is required, mark schemes will provide the principles by which marks will be awarded and exemplification may be limited.
- When examiners are in doubt regarding the application of the mark scheme to a candidate's response, the team leader must be consulted.
- Crossed out work should be marked UNLESS the candidate has replaced it with an alternative response.
- Free responses are marked for the effective communication of the correct answer rather than for quality of language but it is possible that, on some occasions, the quality of English or poor presentation can impede communication and lose candidate marks.

Controlled assessments for speaking

The following are samples of controlled assessment materials that you may use with your students. You are able to use these as they appear or you can adapt them to accommodate the specific needs of your students. Alternatively, you are free to create your own stimuli.

Stimuli are provided for each of the four themes identified in the specification:

- Media and culture
- Sport and leisure
- Travel and tourism
- Business, work and employment

Students can focus on one of the above themes for both speaking (and writing) controlled assessments or, if preferred, work across more than one theme.

If your centre wishes to undertake work on a centre-devised theme, you will need to devise your own stimuli for the controlled assessment tasks. Such stimuli do not have to be approved in advance but if you require reassurance on the suitability of a particular approach, topic or theme, you can consult an experienced examiner through the Edexcel Ask the Expert service.

Students must undertake two different types of speaking task from the following:

- presentation with discussion following
- picture-based free flowing discussion
- open interaction

Each task must take place in controlled conditions and last for approximately 4-6 minutes. Students must have access to notes and be afforded adequate preparation for each task as advised in the specification (a maximum of six hours over a period of no longer than two weeks). Tasks can be undertaken individually or 'back to back' if necessary and at any time. However, students' work and marks will need to be submitted to Edexcel in accordance with the submission deadlines (please refer to specification.)

Presentations

The following are possible presentations that students could deliver (up to a maximum of 2-3 minutes within a total assessment time of 4-6 minutes) before responding to related questions. Naturally, there is considerable potential for students to propose different presentations that coincide with their individual interests.

It is expected that students become familiar with preparing for and delivering presentations if they wish to deliver one as a controlled speaking assessment. Teachers may help prepare their students to undertake this test type in general terms but must refrain from offering feedback on any presentation that features in formal assessment and for which marks are claimed.

Many of the titles below are quite open ended to ensure access to a range of candidates. Different students will handle the presentations in different ways. It is anticipated that, whereas some candidates will provide limited information and description possibly with a simple opinion, others will expand on these and introduce more extended language with a variety of more complex vocabulary and language structures, time references etc. It is important that follow-up questions are targeted at individual students to enable them to maximise their performance and, where appropriate, offer opportunities for stretch and challenge.

Picture-based discussions

The following are examples of the types of pictures and questions that students may choose and refer to in their picture-based discussion tasks Unit 2: Speaking in Chinese.

It is intended that the use of a student's picture will give candidates a sense of task ownership and that it will facilitate free discussion. However, teachers should interject with some open ended questions to ensure that students demonstrate an ability to adapt their discussion and to respond appropriately to their questions.

Media and culture

- 1 這張相片是在哪裡拍的?

- 2 講講你得獎的原因。
- 3 參加這個活動(比賽),你用了多少時間準備?
- 4 你覺得你在這個活動(比賽)中學到些什麼?
- 5 你覺得對你將來的工作有幫助嗎? 為什麼?

Open interactions

The open interactions are designed to enable students to produce target language skills in response to stimuli related to a particular context and theme. The stimuli provide students with an unscripted, open-ended role-play type task, whilst enabling them to take greater ownership of the content. They may be formal and transactional in nature or, alternatively, relate to more informal situations such as a focused dialogue between friends. Students may refer to the stimulus when undertaking their open interaction assessment as well as their own notes.

Media and culture

Information for students

You are helping to promote the Chinese New Year Activities. A Chinese visitor passes by and wishes to get more information.

Task

Explain to the visitor about the celebration on the day. The programme will give you details to answer the questions which he / she will ask.

Media and culture

Information for teachers

You play the part of the Chinese visitor. Ask questions to elicit:

- the activities
- the times
- how to get there
- cost
- his / her opinion on the activities

The list below is for suggestion only. It is intended to be neither prescriptive nor exhaustive. Teachers are expected to ask questions which will lead to genuine conversations with the students. Ask appropriate questions to keep the flow of conversation natural. Any “Yes / No” answers or brief answers should be followed up by further questions (e.g. Why? How?) to elicit more details. Students should also be encouraged to take initiative in the conversations, and voice their opinions as far as possible.

Open interactions

The open interactions are designed to enable students to produce target language skills in response to stimuli related to a particular context and theme. The stimuli provide students with an unscripted, open-ended role-play type task, whilst enabling them to take greater ownership of the content. They may be formal and transactional in nature or, alternatively, relate to more informal situations such as a focused dialogue between friends. Students may refer to the stimulus when undertaking their open interaction assessment as well as their own notes.

Media and culture

Information for students

You are helping to promote the Chinese New Year Activities. A Chinese visitor passes by and wishes to get more information.

Task

Explain to the visitor about the celebration on the day. The programme will give you details to answer the questions which he / she will ask.

Media and culture

Information for teachers

You play the part of the Chinese visitor. Ask questions to elicit:

- the activities
- the times
- how to get there
- cost
- his / her opinion on the activities

The list below is for suggestion only. It is intended to be neither prescriptive nor exhaustive. Teachers are expected to ask questions which will lead to genuine conversations with the students. Ask appropriate questions to keep the flow of conversation natural. Any “Yes / No” answers or brief answers should be followed up by further questions (e.g. Why? How?) to elicit more details. Students should also be encouraged to take initiative in the conversations, and voice their opinions as far as possible.

advancing learning, changing lives

Adaptation of tasks

As stated in the specification, teachers may use or adapt Edexcel provided tasks and are free to create their own. Centre-devised tasks may result from students' ideas and suggestions or could be linked to other areas of the curriculum.

Teachers may amend and edit the Edexcel tasks in a number of ways:

- to introduce a different context that is more appropriate to the needs and/or interests of particular students. (A simple account of a concert could be changed to a simple account of a film.)
- to alter the type of 'support' for individual students. Some students are reliant on bullet points that clearly spell out task requirements and provide some structure whereas others (possibly more confident or creative) prefer more open-ended tasks. To accommodate these different types of learner, teachers could, for example, remove or add bullets and alter the wording of the task rubrics (eg change 'must refer to' to 'may refer to' or vice versa).
- to change the nature of the task, teachers may rewrite a task so that it takes on a different nature. For example, it may be more appropriate for certain students to produce a poster or complete a form rather than write an article or letter. Similarly, teachers may introduce a guide on the length of the task (eg. number of characters) either to ensure that the task is feasible or, for more able students, to promote extended writing. Teachers may also wish to change the content of the bullets so that a learner is able to focus on providing simple information rather than description and opinion. With revised simpler content and less and/or different bullets to cover, the nature and size of the task brief can change radically.

Clearly, the facility to modify task stimuli enables teachers to target activities to the level and needs of individual students. However, as all changes to tasks can impact significantly on their overall level of demand, it is imperative that teachers do not constrain or compromise the performance of their students through an inappropriate task stimulus. Please refer to the examples on page 163.

Possible writing tasks (Media and culture)

Task 1

You are writing an article for a Chinese-language website about what it is like to be a teenager in Britain today.

You could include information about the following:

- some details about your life and interests
- what you have done with friends recently
- what young people are interested in
- the difficulties of being a teenager in Britain
- how adults perceive teenagers
- your hopes for the future

Task 2

You have been asked to write an article in Chinese about your favourite TV programme.

You should include details on the following:

- name and type of programme
- when and on which channel it is on
- who appears in the programme
- why you like it
- what changes you would like to see
- which other programmes you watch

Task 3

Your town is preparing for a special Youth Festival and you have been asked to produce a publicity leaflet for Chinese-speaking visitors.

You could include the following:

- information about key events
- comments from a young people participating in the festival
- details about tickets, times and venues

Possible writing tasks (Sport and leisure)

Task 1

You have a week off school. You decide to write a blog for some Chinese e-pals, telling them about each day. Make each day different!

For example:

- Day 1: why you have a week off school
- Day 2: what you did at home
- Day 3: what you did in town
- Day 4: a quiet day, when you didn't see any friends (maybe you found it boring?)
- Day 5: your plans for the weekend

Task 2

You are on work experience at a health and fitness centre. You have been asked to produce a web page to promote the centre to Chinese-speaking visitors.

It can include details on the following:

- place, day and time of the classes
- list of available activities
- benefits of regular exercise
- why it is important to keep fit
- what a healthy lifestyle is

Task 3

Write an imaginary magazine interview with a Chinese-speaking sports personality.

You will need to briefly introduce the personality and include questions and answers about him or her. You may refer to some of the following:

- early life and passion for sport
- main achievements
- leisure interests and activities
- family life – marriage, children etc
- views on fashion, politics etc
- future intentions

Possible writing tasks (Travel and tourism)

Task 1

You are on work experience at your local tourist information office. You have been asked to create a web page in Chinese to promote increased tourism.

Include details about the following:

- location
- travel
- shopping
- restaurants
- accommodation
- places of interest
- why people should visit your area

Task 2

You have recently spent a week on a school trip abroad. Write an article about your visit. You should mention the following details:

- how you travelled there
- description of a major city that you visited
- what you saw and did there
- whether you enjoyed your trip or not, and why
- where you would like to visit next

Task 3

You have been asked to produce a web page for an international travel company wishing to promote its service to potential Chinese-speaking clients.

You will need to include the following:

- dates and days of the trip
- travel arrangements
- hotel rooms and other facilities
- catering arrangements
- leisure activities

Possible writing tasks (Business, work and employment)

Task 1

While on a work placement, you are asked to email a hotel in Chinese with details of a conference that your company is organising.

You need to include the following details:

- the number and name of delegates and their job titles
- the dates of the conference at the hotel
- give details of the company and what the conference is about

You need to ask for the following information:

- details of transport links to and from the airport and train station
- a map of the town
- what other facilities are available at the hotel

Task 2

You have recently finished some work experience. Write an article in Chinese about it.

You will need to include the details on:

- what kind of job you did
- how long you did the job
- the people you worked with
- what you liked and/or disliked, and why
- what you are planning for your future career

Task 3

Your Chinese link school has asked you to write about the place of work where you spent your recent work experience for their school website.

It should include the following:

- location of the store
- opening hours
- range of products available
- special offers
- facilities e.g. free parking, play area, restaurant etc.

Example 1: Competition

A Chinese magazine is offering a prize for the best account of a dream holiday. You enter the competition.

You must mention:

- where you went
- who you went with
- what happened
- your opinion as to why the holiday was so enjoyable
- how you would like to spend the prize money

The above task is structured so that students know exactly what they have to do. Although this is appreciated by many students, some may find this a constraint. Apart from the language that they produce, students will be also be assessed on content and, therefore, their ability to complete the task (and related bullet requirements). This task is best suited to those seeking grades C-A.*

Example 2: Competition

A Chinese magazine is offering a prize for the best postcard received. You write a postcard.

You must mention:

- where you are on holiday
- who you are with
- two holiday activities

The above illustrates how the first task has been adapted to produce a much shorter task (postcard) that is accessible to those encountering most difficulties when writing in Chinese. The bullets still provide structure but call for less complex language, opinion and description.

Example 3: Competition

A Chinese magazine is offering a prize for the best account of a dream holiday.

You could mention:

- where you went
- who you went with
- what happened
- your opinion as to why the holiday was so enjoyable
- how you would like to spend the prize money

At first glance, this task differs only slightly from the first task but the use of the word could makes this task more open ended. Students would be less constrained in terms of creativity and fulfilling specific task requirements.

Assessment Criteria

Communication and content	Mark
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Very detailed and fully relevant response to the stimulus. • Shows a clear ability to narrate, describe, express opinions and expand, as appropriate to the task. • Communicates with no ambiguity. • Excellent linking of the piece into a whole. • Coherent and pleasant to read. 	13-15
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Detailed response to the stimulus but there may be minor omissions. • Provides evidence of description, opinion and expansion, as appropriate to the task. • Generally communicates clearly, with some lapses. • Reasonable attempt to link the piece into a whole. • Generally coherent. • Pedestrian or, alternatively, somewhat over ambitious. 	10-12
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Most of the task is completed and relevant information is conveyed, although there may be some omissions and/or irrelevancies. • Provides evidence of an ability to go beyond a minimal response. • Begins to expand ideas and express opinions, as appropriate to the task. • Comprehensible overall with some lapses, sometimes leading to ambiguity, especially if more ambitious language is attempted. • Some attempt at linking piece into a whole. 	7-9
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Relevant key information is given but there may be may be major omissions, irrelevance and/or repetition. • The level of response is minimal • There is no evidence of description or opinions (other than simple likes/dislikes). • Some ambiguity. • Just about comprehensible overall. • Sentences mostly written in isolation. • Not easy to read. 	4-6
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Little relevant information is conveyed. • Much ambiguity and omission. • The level of response is very limited. • Substantial degree of irrelevance and incoherence. • Except for isolated items, would not be comprehensible to a native speaker. 	1-3
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • No relevant communication worthy of credit. • A mark of zero for communication and content will mean a mark of zero for knowledge and application of language and for accuracy 	0

Knowledge and application of language	Mark
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Wide range of vocabulary and structures, fully appropriate to the task and used effectively. • Little or no repetition. • Confident use of more complex structures, such as comparatives, negatives and causal clauses, with very few lapses. • Clear ability to manipulate language and to produce longer, fluent sentences with ease. 	9-10
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Quite a wide range of vocabulary and structures appropriate to describe and to express and justify opinions. • Some attempt to use ambitious structures (comparatives, negatives and causal clauses, etc) with a fair measure of success. • Tenses are generally used correctly. • Some ability to manipulate language although not always successful. 	7-8
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Vocabulary and structures are generally appropriate to the task. • Correct syntax when using simple, short sentences. • Some longer sentences where syntax is not always correct. • Attempts different language structures with some success • Attempts to use subordinate clauses/simple linking with some success. 	5-6
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Limited vocabulary and structures, often repetitive and stereotyped. • Language is basic and sometimes inappropriate to the task. • Pre-learnt, set phrases predominate but there are some short simple sentences, which are more or less correct. • There may be some simple subordination. 	3-4
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Very limited vocabulary, with occasional correct words. • Very little understanding of language structures. • There may be the occasional correct phrase or short sentence but they are likely to be pre-learnt or 'lifted'. 	1-2
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • No language worthy of credit. 	0

Accuracy	Mark
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • High level of accuracy, though not necessarily faultless. • Secure when using more complex language with only a few minor errors. 	5
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Generally accurate language. • When more complex structures are attempted, accuracy can be more variable. 	4
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Fairly accurate in straightforward language, but some lapses with more complex language. • The work is clearly more accurate than inaccurate. • Language errors do not significantly hinder communication. • Inaccuracy increases if more complex structures are attempted 	3
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Many basic errors which often impede communication. • Some correct phrases but evidence of mother-tongue influences. • Excessive use of pinyin if handwritten. 	2
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Frequent basic errors and inaccuracies prevent communication. • Isolated examples of correct language. 	1
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • No language worthy of credit. 	0

Why choose Edexcel?

We're delighted to introduce these Sample Assessment Materials for our GCSE in Chinese, which demonstrate all the key features of the qualification and include:

- Accessible papers using a mixture of questions styles where appropriate. We've worked hard to ensure the papers are easy to follow with an encouraging tone so that the full range of students can show what they know.
- Clear and concise mark schemes for each paper outlining what examiners will be looking for in the assessments, so you can use the sample papers with students to help them prepare for the real thing.
- Supported controlled assessment, including sample controlled assessment materials to show you the sort of activity students will undertake. Used in conjunction with the guidance in the Teacher's Guide, these samples will help you manage the controlled assessment in your centre and help students achieve their best.

Consider this your personal guide through the various teaching support services we have on offer. You can also find useful contact information, web addresses and much more. Our GCSE 2009 Chinese qualification will be supported better than ever before.

We look forward to working with you to achieve better results.
