- *24 A woman needs money to help her brother but does not have enough to help him. She steals money from her workplace and gives it to her brother.

Three men from England were asked whether the woman's actions were right or wrong and why.

- Man A said the woman was right to steal the money because everyone in the world is equal and so money should be given to those who need it.
- Man B said the woman was wrong to steal the money because she might get in trouble.
- Man C said the woman was right to steal the money because her family might disapprove of her not helping her brother.

Assess how stages of morality can account for the responses given by the men.

Morality is knowing the difference between what's right and wrong behaviour. Kohlberg ~~did a study~~ made up the Heinz dilemma and it was to do with a situation about a husband was deciding whether he should steal the drug ~~or~~ or not to ~~he~~ give it to her wife who needs the drug to stay alive. He came up with 3 groups: Group 1 was the man should steal the drug and accept the consequences, this links to Man C in the scenario as man believed the woman should steal it, so she wasn't disapproved. Group 2 was steal the drug and the man shouldn't go to prison as it is unfair; this links to Man A as he believes the woman should have the right to steal as everyone needs money. Group 3 was that the man shouldn't steal the drug because it is against the law, this links to Man B as he believes the woman should not have stole the money. Kohlberg then assigned different names for the group. Man C would be seen as conventional, this means that he obeys authority and sees himself as good. Man A would have been seen as post-conventional. This means that he makes ~~is~~ his own ideas about good and bad and believes morals go further than law. Finally, Man B would have been seen as pre-conventional this means that they believe that you should not disobey law ~~as~~ as it can have consequences. This shows that all 3 men have complete different thoughts on morals.
