Matched to the latest specifications

These new resources are written specifically to offer a complete match to the content, structure and modular approach of the latest specifications\(^\d\). Offering support to a qualification that is fully comparable to the reformed UK A levels, as confirmed by NARIC\(^*\), and recognised by leading universities worldwide.

4.3.1 GROWING ECONOMIES

LEARNING OBJECTIVES
By the end of this chapter you should be able to understand:
- Key characteristics of developed, developing and emerging economies
- The growing economic power of countries within different parts of the world
- Implications of economic growth for individuals and businesses, trade opportunities for businesses and employment patterns
- Indicators of growth: gross domestic product (GDP) per capita and the human development index (HDI)

GETTING STARTED
True Indulgence is a holiday company based in the Maldives. It offers high-quality luxury accommodation on an island in the Maldives. A two-week holiday would cost two people up to $20,000. Two popular features of the holiday are scuba diving and fine dining.

Which three countries might True Indulgence target with their advertising campaigns? Explain your answer. What other information might be useful for True Indulgence to know before finalising the decision? Suggest three types of business that might be interested in selling goods or services to India. Explain your answers.

CHARACTERISTICS OF ECONOMIES AT DIFFERENT STAGES OF DEVELOPMENT
There is a vast difference between the welfare and quality of life of people around the world. People experience a comforting existence in only a minority of countries. They have access to good healthcare, education, housing and high-quality food. They may also have spare income to spend on non-essential items such as holidays, entertainment and leisure activities.

In contrast, large numbers of people struggle to gain enough food, safe accommodation and clean water. They may have little or no education and very limited access to healthcare. They would rarely take a holiday and often have low life expectancy. Other large groups of people fall in between these two extremes. Economies with different groups of people live are defined as follows.

The company is planning some advertising campaigns. List all the groups of developing countries that could be considered as potential markets for advertising in different countries. Table 1 shows the GDP (income) per capita and the population size in a selection of countries.
INCOME INEQUALITY

Whether income inequality, the relative gap between the rich and poor in an economy, is important or not, is dependent on one’s personal opinion. Some economic journals have said that income inequality is not a problem while others assert that it is. The question of what level of income inequality is acceptable is a difficult one to answer, because it can be seen from a normative or a positive perspective.

In economics, a normative statement is one that is subjective and value-based, while a positive statement is one that is objective and based on facts. From a normative perspective, the numbers are arbitrary (random). Looking at the economic effects of income inequality as a positive perspective, the conclusions are clearer.

From a positive perspective, there are some answers as to what is not an acceptable level of inequality, and there are non-partisan, economic implications of today’s level of income inequality. Recent studies by the International Monetary Fund (IMF) suggest that significant levels of income inequality can affect economic growth as measured by percentage change in gross domestic product (GDP).

If the share of income earned by the top 20 per cent increases, then GDP growth actually declines. In contrast, when the share of income of the bottom 20 increases, then GDP growth actually increases. The analytics from the IMF reveal that significant levels of income inequality cause GDP growth to decline. The normative statement that rising income inequality is bad for the economy becomes a positive statement when reinforced by analysis of data. Thus the statement that rising income inequality cause GDP growth to decline.
