Sources for use with Section A.

Source 1: From the Programme of the Komsomol announced at the Tenth Komsomol Congress, 21 April 1936. The Komsomol was the youth division of the Communist Party. It was established to educate young people about the Communist Party.

The Communist League of Youth [Komsomol] pursues the aim of assisting the Communist Party in the education of youth and children in the spirit of Communism.

Education of Young People

The League aims to:

(a) assist the Government institutions in the strengthening and development of the Soviet schools and in the establishment of universal compulsory education, at first for seven years and then for ten years.

(b) organise, together with the Government, training centres where young people may receive secondary education and technical training.

(c) give every kind of assistance to the development of university education in the USSR.

(d) conduct an active struggle for the ending of illiteracy and insufficient literacy among young people.

Work in Schools and among Children

(a) The Communist League of Youth assists the State institutions and teachers in strengthening the school discipline and in organisation of work in the schools.

(b) It systematically informs school children about the most important daily events and organises various lectures and talks.

(c) It participates actively in the training of teachers and recruits its best teachers for academic work.
Source 2: From a letter written by Nina Vasilevna Shevtsova to Joseph Stalin, 13 January 1937. Nina was a 12-year-old girl from the village of Ivanovo, north-east of Moscow, where the village soviet played a role in the implementation of collectivisation. Here she is telling Stalin about her life.

Dear Comrade Stalin, our beloved leader, teacher and friend of the whole happy Soviet land. I want to tell you about my unhappy life.

Dear Comrade Stalin, me and my brother aren't able to go to school, because we haven't got anything to eat. The village soviet took away our horse and our cow back in 1935. Now we haven't got any livestock at all because the village soviet taxed us when they shouldn't have done. One tax was 900 roubles* and altogether we had to pay more than 2,000. We can't pay such big taxes. There are eight of us in our family.

Dear Comrade Stalin, we didn't join the collective farm because my father is an invalid. He fought in two wars, his health is poor and so he just can't work on the collective farm. Things aren't going too well for us on our own. They're pretty bad really. We get along somehow. At present we don't have any land – that went to the collective farm in 1936.

So, our beloved leader Comrade Stalin, I've told you about my life. I hope that you, beloved leader of a happy land, won't ignore my plea. Please do answer. I'm waiting to hear from you.

Nina Vasilevna Shevtsova
