Qualifications for globally minded learners

Introducing Pearson Edexcel International AS/A Levels

Pearson Edexcel International AS/A Levels, also known as Advanced Subsidiary Level/Advanced Levels, have been developed in consultation with the international school community specifically for international learners.

They take the popular and flexible modular approach* where exams are taken at the end of each unit of study, throughout the programme of study when a student feels prepared and ready, or all together at the end of the course. This flexibility, together with exam series in January, June and October, for most subjects, means that students have more opportunities to get feedback to improve their performance and get the grade they need to progress.

Available in 21 popular subjects, they offer progression from International GCSEs, and are comparable to the linear UK A Level, equipping students for progression to university and employment.

*for all subjects except Law

World class assessment design for international students

Pearson Edexcel qualifications go through a rigorous world class assessment design process, which ensures that the content is relevant for international learners, and that there is a clear and consistent relationship between command words, marks and skills. With logical progression of difficulty throughout and consistency in template and design, our question papers are clear and provide suitable challenge and support for students of all abilities.

“I wanted to study subjects that were relevant to a future career. Pearson Edexcel iAL provides learners with a firm knowledge base.”

Nasim Mirzajani, now studying Chemical Engineering at Yale University, USA

Modular assessment

Why is the modular approach so popular?

The modular assessment structure offers students the flexibility to sit examinations when they feel fully prepared and ready. Once they have sat a unit exam and received a unit grade, that result is banked until they have completed all units. Students then 'cash-in' the completed unit exam results to receive an overall qualification grade.

The structure of Pearson Edexcel IAL qualifications allows teachers to construct a course of study that can be taught and assessed as either distinct modular units or a linear course assessed in its entirety at the end.

How the modular approach works

Bank robust and ongoing evidence of performance

This 'building blocks' approach means that students can 'bank' their unit exam results throughout their period of study. This provides robust evidence of their studies and performance, providing more options to obtain the grade they need to progress.

Multiple exam opportunities throughout the year

Students can take and re-sit individual unit assessments in any series, with examination opportunities in January, June and October in most subjects. This means students have more opportunities to get feedback to improve their performance and get the grades they need to progress.

Students 'cash in' unit results when ready

Once a student has all their unit results for the qualification they are taking, they exchange those for a grade – this is called 'cashing in'. To cash in, all units must have been entered. International AS qualifications can be taken as a separate, standalone qualification, as well as contributing to an Advanced Level qualification.

The benefits of a modular route

A modular approach allows students to take their exams when they feel ready and prepared. They benefit from more exam practice and familiarity. Unit exam results provide formal feedback earlier on in their studies, so students understand the standard required to reach the final level of achievement they are aiming for. This understanding motivates them to improve and builds a sense of ownership through bite-size, short-term goals.

The modular approach can help reduce the mental load and stress at exam time by allowing learners to focus on one year of curriculum content at a time and spread out their high stakes exams over two years and multiple exam series. Learners can also take advantage of multiple re-sit opportunities if needed.

A modular route provides teachers with rich mid-cycle data on learner performance. It offers international schools greater flexibility for exam administration across the school year. And where parents pay exam fees, it helps with budgeting by enabling families to spread their child's exam fees over two years.

The benefits of a linear route

Whilst the modular approach works well for students who want to spread the exam load and bank their performance throughout their studies, doing the exam all in one go at the end of the period of study suits others better.

This approach means assessments for all units are taken together in one exam series so students study all the content and then prepare for all the assessments at the end of their period of study, rather than a more continuous pattern of study and assessment.

What this means for you

Pearson Edexcel were the first awarding organisation to introduce the modular International AS/A Levels, so can offer a wealth of experience and support for international schools. The modular approach is so popular with schools, teachers, parents, and students, that we now offer a modular approach for International GCSE which is great preparation for Pearson Edexcel International AS/A Level.

The choice is yours though! The structure of the Pearson Edexcel International A Level qualifications means you can choose the right assessment approach to benefit students and help create a compelling competitive advantage for your school.

"I like the modular nature of IAL, the fact that I can choose whichever core units I want to do, whichever applied units I want to do. It's very comprehensive. It opens up many doors to many international universities."

Wang, Pearson Edexcel International Advanced Level student from Sri Lanka, studying Chemistry, Biology, Physics, and Mathematics.

Building transferable skills

The most in demand skills are human skills

In recent years, higher education institutions and employers have consistently flagged the need for students to develop a range of transferable skills to enable them to respond with confidence to the demands of undergraduate study and the world of work.

Education systems around the world also refer to transferable skills as:

Core Competencies

Generic skills

Critical skills

Higher order thinking skills

21st century skills

Creativity and innovation

Conceptual learning

Problem solving

The Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) defines skills, or competencies, as “the bundle of knowledge, attributes and capacities that can be learned and that enable individuals to successfully and consistently perform an activity or task and can be built upon and extended through learning.”

“It’s really the more fundamental skills like teamwork and communication that seem to matter the most, that employers demand the most.”

Guy Berger, Chief Economist at LinkedIn

Qualifications mapped to the National Research Council framework

To support the design of our qualifications, the Pearson Research Team selected and evaluated seven global 21st century skills frameworks and identified the National Research Council’s framework as the most evidence-based and robust. The framework includes cognitive, intrapersonal and interpersonal skills.

Cognitive Skills

Core skills that your brain uses to think, learn and reason – used to carry out any task.

Intrapersonal skills

This is emotional intelligence, the ability to know, understand and manage your own emotions and learning.

Interpersonal Skills

The life skills we use every day to communicate and interact with other people, both individually and in groups.

What this means for you

If you follow Pearson Edexcel International Advanced Level specifications, or your students are using our International Advanced Level textbooks, you’ve already started integrating transferable skills into your teaching.

That’s because they are embedded and signposted in the specifications and schemes of work, with accompanying skills mapping and transferable skills definitions for every subject.

Transferable skills are also developed as part of activities in the Student Books. These are clearly labelled, so you and your learners can easily identify the skills they are building.

Pearson Edexcel Extended Level 3 Project Qualification (EPQ)

Give students the edge when applying for university and help them stand out from the crowd

Pearson Edexcel Extended Project Qualification (EPQ) is an optional, standalone Level 3 qualification, taken alongside core International A Level subjects, that develops the independent learning and research skills demanded by universities and employers.

It gives students the opportunity to:

- Explore an area that interests them, aligned to an area of the curriculum or a hobby or interest.
- Research a subject that might not be available through other qualifications, whilst developing valuable independent research and project management skills.
- Become future-ready by developing transferable skills valued by universities and employers.
- Earn additional UCAS points (up to 28 points for an A*, the equivalent of an International AS Level) which makes university applications stand out.

How does it work?

You work with your students to agree the suitable project topic/area of interest. From there, it's very straightforward to deliver EPQ. The teacher provides guidance on planning and research activities but does not need to be a specialist in their students' chosen project topic. The key objective is for students to develop their independent research skills and then apply what they've learnt in the creation of an original piece of work.

Clear assessment criteria

Learners are assessed on their ability to plan, manage, complete and review their project. They complete a project proposal form and activity log which are assessed internally by the EPQ tutor using clear assessment objectives and criteria, and externally moderated. Teachers mark the process, not the content.

Comprehensive support

We provide a wealth of project-based learning resources including teacher and student guides, teacher plans, extensive exemplars, assessment guidance, and on-demand training, making delivery of the qualifications easier for teachers and more accessible and impactful for learners.

Group work option

Pearson Edexcel EPQ offers the option of group work (for example, working as part of a team to create a short film), which helps students develop valuable collaboration skills. In these cases, each learner must have a clearly distinguished role and produce their own individual evidence for the entire project which can be assessed independently of others' contributions.

Extended Project Qualification structure and content summary

Duration	120 Guided Learning Hours. (80 hours project-based and 40 hours teacher-led). Normally completed over 1 or 2 years. Express 3–6-month option available: Learn more .
Content	Learners complete 1 Unit from a choice of 4: 1. Dissertation A theoretical written project on any topic presenting an argument. e.g. research into a biological, historical or environmental issue. 2. Investigation A practical investigatory project involving the collection of data. e.g. a scientific investigation, a geographical study of erosion, a biological study of pollution, a statistical survey. 3. Performance Development of practical skills resulting in an audience-focused performance. e.g. performing music, drama or sport. 4. Artefact Creating a personal response to a client focused brief. e.g. creating a painting or sculpture, designing a piece of furniture or a garment, creating a website, solving an engineering/construction problem, producing a piece of graphic design.
Assessment	100% coursework. Tutor-assessed. No examination. There are four Assessment Objectives: <ul style="list-style-type: none">● AO1 Project Management● AO2 Use of Resources● AO3 Development and Realisation● AO4 Review

EPQ is easy to deliver, results in additional UCAS points and equips students with the skills necessary to excel at the next stage of their learning journey. It's no surprise that entries have doubled in the past year worldwide.

“The skills that students develop through the Extended Project are excellent preparation for university level study.”

The University of Manchester

“We welcome the EPQ and would encourage applicants to take one as it will help to develop independent study and research skills valuable for higher education.”

University of Cambridge, UK
