Magritte is a artist of surrealist style. He is good at using the other images to hide parts of human bodies. I am fond of his use of sky and leaves. So I found the pattern how to apply the hands which hide people's face. After I use paper to create a sky and leaf background with his style. I have painted acrylic painting during the time.

Agnes Cook is a surrealist style artist. She usually shows a section of face or parts of the whole face. Digging down the prints makes the cloudy roof below the hole or over the eyes. It seems like the skin burst out. The abstract style creates not only the natural things of face, but also the effects of hidden. In addition, I try the mixed media by using white rough paper to illustrate the dripping style.

Nick Thomas is an artist who uses the collage style. I learned the composition of his work style by studying the different section of patterns. First to compose an interesting face. If it is great element to demonstrate the topic. Hidden. I use the blending items to collage a hidden face and painted by acrylic painting for the other parts. I tear the paper from books, magazines and charts. The complementary color to create the background. Also, I use the abstract style by some great background from my study book.
