This Getting Started Guide gives you an overview of the International GCSE in Bangla qualification and what it means for you and your students. This guidance is intended to help you plan the course in outline and gives you further insight into the principles behind the content to help you and your students succeed.

1. Key features of the qualification

Key Principles

The specification has been developed with the following key principles:

Clear specification

Clear guidance on what students need to learn, providing clarity for planning, teaching and assessment.

Progression, not repetition

The specification allows the development of understanding while at the same time avoiding repetition, ensuring students are engaged and thereby inspired to develop their knowledge. We designed the International GCSE to extend students' knowledge by broadening and deepening skills. For example, students will:

- read and respond to material from a variety of sources
- make comparisons between texts and analyse the ways in which writers achieve their effects
- construct and convey meaning in written language, matching style to audience and purpose.

Engaging and popular topics with real world focus

Broad range of content which is appealing to international students– content has been selected to ensure that the qualification is inclusive and appealing for all international students, with specific reference to Bangladesh and the Bangla speaking regions.

Culturally relevant and engaging texts – we have ensured that our texts are culturally relevant to Bangla, engaging and suitable for international students, and that they will encourage students to develop skills of analysis and synoptic thinking.

Clear assessment criteria

We apply clear and consistent use of command words and rubrics across assessments and between series. Our approach to assessments, definitions for the command words and details of how the command words are explained, can be found in the taxonomy table.

Our question papers are clear and accessible for students of all ability ranges.

The new mark schemes provide consistent understanding of the skills, and connections between these skills, required for each question type. Clear wording reflects how teachers and examiners describe the qualities of student work, so the expectations are clear for teachers and markers. Our mark schemes are straightforward so that the assessment requirements are clear.

Skills for progression – successful progression to higher level study and beyond

The variety of content that will be found in the examination allows the student to demonstrate knowledge as well as its application, which are required elements for further study or progression into employment. International GCSE qualifications enable successful progression to Higher level study and beyond. Through our world-class qualification development process, we have consulted with International A Level teachers, GCE A Level teachers and university teachers to validate the appropriateness of this qualification, including content, skills and assessment structure. The grammar skills needed to complete the discrete grammar section successfully will help students meet university course demands.

- This new qualification (4BA0) greatly differs from the previous qualification (4BE0). Where the previous qualification focused heavily on translation, in response to teacher feedback we have changed the design of the paper to reflect a model more similar to the approach used in European Modern Foreign Language (MFL) subjects. This new paper is more reflective of the range of skills that students are expected to demonstrate at GCSE level. We have retained the translation in the qualification but reduced the number of marks attributed to it.
- Topics have been amended to reflect topics used in European MFL subjects.
- More choice of questions within the exam paper – There are : Multiple Choice Questions, short response questions set on any of the above mentioned themes, two writing tasks, also linked to the themes and translation of short sentences in English Bangla, also linked to a theme.
- The topics and question papers of the new paper ensures contexts within the papers are set within the Bangladesh context.
- The new papers are designed to help all students progress through the assessments confidently.
- Language used in the questions in Bangla are straightforward so as not to place additional hurdles for candidates.
- New 9–1 scale. This allows direct comparability with equal regulated GCSEs, recognises outstanding performance with a new grade 9, and provides better differentiation of students.

3 Topic Guidance and suggested activities

The content of the qualification is relevant and engaging. It covers five themes, all broken down into several topics.

These themes give the opportunity for teaching one theme per term. The five themes are further broken down into topics and sub topics, all of which should be studied in the context of Bangladesh. They are designed to offer a motivating, enriching and up to date context for the study of the Bangla language.

Teachers should be aware of the need to develop their students' awareness and understanding of life in Bangla -speaking communities in their selection of teaching materials during the course of study and in preparation for the final assessment.

Classroom topics should be engaging and should include a real world focus. These would not be exhaustive to: customs and everyday life for example 'Bangalir Bea Utshob' food and drink for example 'Bangali Khabar dabar'; shopping; social media and technology for example 'Adhunik projuktir Bebohar'; celebrations and festivals for example 'Pohela Boishakh'; reading and music for example 'Bangladesher shangeet'; holiday experiences and destinations for example 'Cox Bazar, Shundarban, Rangamati, Moinamoti, Paharpur, Sylhet er Cha Bagan, Kuakata, Bandarban, Bangladesh Towns, region and countries; places to see; things to do; school activities; events and exchanges; employment; further study; Bringing the world together; sports events; music events; campaigns and good causes for example 'Band shangeet Utshob'; Environmental issues; access to natural resources and many other topics which are exemplified in the Sample Assessment Materials.

The final assessments at the end of the course will draw on the full range of these themes and topics. Teachers are encouraged to refer to the Sample Assessment Materials to see this exemplified.

Theme 1: Home and abroad

- 1 Life in the town and rural life
- 2 Holidays, tourist information and directions
- 3 Services (e.g. bank, post office)
- 4 Customs
- 5 Everyday life, traditions and communities.

Topics can include:

- Daily life: customs and everyday life; food and drink; shopping; accessing different services including the postal services, hospital and asking for directions; social media and technology (uses of, advantages and disadvantages).
- Cultural life: celebrations and festivals; reading; music; sport; film and television
- Holidays: preferences; experiences and destinations.
- Travel and tourist transactions: travel and accommodation; asking for help and dealing with problems; directions; eating out; shopping.

When approaching this theme, students should be able to draw on language already learnt. To enable them to develop the language met previously, the teacher could approach this theme through literature or music in Bangla. Research can be conducted into traditional celebrations in the Bangla-speaking world.

Also, as well as students describing their own past holidays or future holidays they plan, teachers could approach this theme as a group task where students have to research the type of holiday they would like to do. This could be confined to a Bangla-speaking country which would then allow them to report back on travel costs, accommodation available, activities on offer in the chosen resort and the type of weather to be expected. Another approach regarding accommodation and eating out could be to use authentic resources from websites such as Trip Advisor to read about hotels and restaurants. These can be used as reading comprehensions to extract vocabulary and phrases, and finally students could write their own reports on a restaurant or hotel. Complaint letters to a hotel also allow students to use a great deal of imagination as to what has gone wrong on a holiday with their accommodation. Students could also collect literature about their own area and from that produce a website or brochure for Bangla-speaking tourists to encourage them to visit. This topic is a key area for role-play work.

Activity ideas:

- Practising role play situations with the scenario of arranging to go out in the city or rural setting.
- Comparing a foreign shopping centre with a local one; or any in the Bangla speaking situation.
- Debating the advantages and disadvantages of social media to encourage spontaneous speaking.
- Students allocated a traditional custom or festival to research in groups, presenting their findings to the class.
- Discussion about preferred TV programmes or music through a diamond nine activity to encourage spontaneous talk.
- Photographs of traditional festivals can be used to learn about the differences between cultures and traditions in the writing tasks.
- Read reports on Trip Advisor, etc. and students write their own report.

- Write a complaint letter to a hotel or restaurant.
- Using authentic hotel website information to work out the best accommodation for different groups of people, e.g. a family with three children, a couple looking for a holiday, a single traveller, etc.
- Set up role-play scenarios around the classroom for group/pair work activities.
- Spontaneous discussion about preferred types of holiday/accommodation.
- Advantages/disadvantages chart for holidaying abroad or in their own country.
- Survey about holiday requirements/preferences.
- Watch videos from Bangla-speaking areas or cities to extend vocabulary and listening skills (there are a lot such videos on YouTube) Students could then produce their own voiceover commentary to photos of a Bangla -speaking area/city or their own area.
- Watching/reading weather forecasts online.
- Photographs of holiday destinations can be used to practise the picture-based oral task.

Theme 2: Education and employment

- 1 School life and routine
- 2 School rules and pressures
- 3 School trips, events and exchanges

- What school is like: school types; school day; subjects; rules and pressures; celebrating success.
- School activities: school trips; events and exchanges.
- Ambitions: further study; volunteering; training.
- Work: jobs, careers and professions.

Again, students will have met many of the basic ideas from this topic and should be happy to converse about the different school subjects and their likes and dislikes. When approaching this topic, teachers could use partner schools to enable students to compare and contrast the school experience in each country. Many Bangla – speaking schools do have websites on the internet and this could provide an excellent resource for authentic material. Some particular features of schools in Bangladesh are their preference for uniforms. Also, the strong work based ethics in state schools compared to private schools, where for instance in state schools students farm and sell the school farm produce. The different boarding schools and how strict these can be. There are a number of useful websites about training, which teachers may find of use to source work for reading purposes as well as suitable photographs, and to extend students' vocabulary and comprehension skills.

Activity ideas:

- Research impact of differences in the medium of instruction in Bangladesh, students in schools learn in Bangla and English in primary schools. As the base of students get stronger in the middle and secondary schools, the medium of instruction may change to English. Where such a topic could be used as reading comprehension and stimuli for discussion purposes. Even though English is the primary method of teaching. The teachers also engage in Bangla in the secondary schools, where Bangla is divided into Literature and Language, to diversify and extend the mother language into education. Furthermore, various events based on the cultures of Bengal, is also stretched in forms of singing, poetry and dancing etc.
- Authentic resources in the form of blogs or letters discussing aspects of the school system in Bangladesh.
- There are a number of blogs on school exchanges on the internet which can be accessed to provide authentic resources for reading comprehension.
- Writing an imaginative blog/report about volunteering.
- Debating is also a good form of outreaching and practice Bangla as well. Every cycle, the Bangladesh Television (BTV) organizes debating competition on current affairs and other topics, in Bangla. This is a good way of communication building.
- Setting up links with Bangla-speaking schools for students to pose questions to their peers and report back on their answers, e.g. their opinion of a different school day, sport at school, etc.
- Using this topic as an opportunity to introduce and practise the conditional tense forms so that students can say what they would like to do.

Teachers may again wish to access material on the internet to support their teaching of this theme. Posters and adverts for events could be useful resources, as could blogs and newspaper reports about such events. School websites also contain reports on school sports events. A lot of the international organisations have sites in Bangla, which can contain useful authentic material. This also includes social media sites such as Face book. Also, there is a large amount of information and numerous publications about being 'green' available from a number of poems about the climate online.

- Role play buying tickets for sporting or music events.
- Group activity discussing the cost of attending music events.
- Writing a report on a sporting event.

Teachers may want to approach the topic through students' own aspirations but could also look at relevant web pages to find resources describing others' experiences, which will provide models for students to use in their own work.

Activity ideas:

- Teachers could introduce one of the engaging topics, for example 'sport and exercise' and then involve students in interactive tasks, e.g. an oral question and answer activity in response to video clips of Bangladesh Cricket performance in last world cup. This can also be an image or short text appropriate to this topic.
- Students could carry out research to familiarise themselves with a topic, for example different foods prior to this being introduced in class.
- Pair work and collaboration in group to discuss youth culture.
- Students could also self-assess on a number of tasks.

4 Assessment Guidance

4.1 Reading, Writing and Translation

Section A

- 100 marks in total for Bangla qualification through Reading, Writing and Translation.
- The Paper assessment is a total of two hours, 30 minutes.
- Section A, Reading has a total of 40 marks, made up of short answer questions and multiple choice questions. Section A assesses AO1: Understand and respond to written language.

Section A Mark Scheme Guidance

- For open-response questions, the candidate does not have to write in full sentences, they may respond using single words or phrases.
- This paper does not offer extra marks for quality of language. And although errors in spelling and grammar will be tolerated, they should not be ambiguous.
- Written responses in a language other than Bangla will not receive any mark.

Section B

- Section B, Writing has a total of 40 marks. In the first task, students are required to write a short essay, based on four short prompts in the past, present and future. In the second task, students are required to write a longer essay, based on a choice of three stimuli. Section B assesses AO2: Communicate in writing, using a register appropriate to the situation, showing knowledge of a range of vocabulary in common usage and of the grammar and structures prescribed in the specification, and using them accurately.

Section B Mark Scheme Guidance

The mark schemes for Paper 1, Questions 5 and 6 contain several marking grids and guidance on how to apply them.

- Question 5 uses bands for communication and content and also language. The differences in these bands are found in the mark scheme. Teachers should familiarise themselves with the bands. Examiners will always consider the answer as a whole and then decide which band most closely matches the answer. They will look at the overall quality of the answer and not focus disproportionately on small and specific parts of the answer where the student has not performed quite as well as the rest. If the answer covers different aspects of different bands of the mark scheme they will use a 'best fit' approach. This means if it is predominantly in a lower band but has aspects of a higher band, the awarded mark will be a mark near the top of the 'predominant band' as they will consider the high content.

Example from the Sample Assessment Materials, Question 5

Additional guidance

Creative language use – using language in a way designed to create effect and interest. Goes beyond the standard or predictable response.

Register and style definition – language used is at a suitable level of formality for the purpose of the task and, where appropriate, the target audience.

Question 6: linguistic knowledge and accuracy mark grid

| Mark | Descriptor |
|-------|--|
| 0 | No rewardable material |
| 1–3 | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Uses mainly straightforward grammatical structures • Occasional sequences of fluent writing, with occasional extended, linked sentences • Occasionally accurate straightforward language and grammatical structures; occasionally successful references to past, present and future events; errors occur that sometimes hinder clarity of communication |
| 4–7 | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Some variation of grammatical structures, including some repetitive instances of complex language • Prolonged sequences of fluent writing, with some extended, well-linked sentences • Generally accurate language and structures; some successful references to past, present and future events; errors occur that occasionally hinder clarity of communication |
| 8–10 | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Uses a variety of grammatical structures including some different examples of complex language • Mostly fluent response, with frequent extended sentences, mostly well linked • Mostly accurate language and structures; mostly successful references to past, present and future events; errors rarely hinder clarity of communication |
| 11–13 | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Uses a wide variety of grammatical structures, including complex language • Fluent response throughout with extended, well-linked sentences • Consistently accurate language and structures; consistently successful references to past, present and future events; few or no errors that hinder the clarity of the communication |

Complex language is considered to be:

- varied and complex word order
- extended sentences that include a range of structures that help to justify ideas
- conceptually more challenging language.

Straightforward grammatical structures are considered to be:

- repetitive, simple word order
- short, simple sentences that use a repetitive range of common, high-frequency structures.

Errors: students are not expected to produce perfect, error-free writing in order to access the top band. The mark grid describes the frequency of errors and the impact that errors have on coherence.

Errors that do not hinder clarity:

- errors that do not affect the meaning, for example incorrect use of a pronoun where there is no confusion as to whom the pronoun refers; incorrect arrangement of words that does not hinder clarity; occasional use of spoken language that does not affect the meaning; incomplete sentences that convey the intended message. The following spelling errors would fall in this category: বাড়ী, খলম, ছাছা, বন্দু instead of the correct বাড়ি, কলম, চাচা, and বন্ধু
- infrequent errors that do not distract the reader from the content and which result in coherent writing.

Errors that hinder clarity:

- errors that make writing difficult to understand immediately (even if the meaning is eventually understood)/errors that force readers to re-read in order to understand what is meant
- frequent errors hinder clarity as they will distract the reader from the content of the writing.

NB: these are examples only and do not constitute a finite list.

Section C

- Section C, Translation has 10 marks. Students will translate four statements in English into Bangla. Section C assesses AO3: Understand contemporary written texts in English and translate them into Bangla.

Section C Mark Scheme Guidance

- Paper 1 – Question 7 is successful if a Bangla speaker can understand it without seeing the original.
Mis-spelling is tolerated as long as it doesn't lead to ambiguity.

4.4 Command word taxonomy

The table below lists the command words that are used in questions in Papers 1 and 2. Command words will be consistent in every paper.

| English translation | Bangla |
|--|--------------------------------|
| Put/Identify | খুঁজে বের কর / সনাক্ত কর |
| Read | পড় / পাঠ কর |
| Complete | সম্পূর্ণ কর |
| Answer | উত্তর |
| You do not need to write in full sentences | তোমাকে পুরো বাক্য লিখতে হবে না |
| Summarise | সংক্ষিপ্ত |
| Write | লেখ |
| Give two details | দুইটি বিবরণ দাও |

It is clear from the table above that every question and command word targets one particular assessment objective. The command words elicit the response required from the candidate to meet the requirements for each AO and the relevant mark grid.

For example, question 1 is marked using a points based mark scheme and only one piece of information is required from the text for one mark therefore, the command word 'Put' or 'Identify' is used.

For more open questions that are marked using a levels based mark schemes, command words that elicit a more comprehensive explanation, for example 'write' are used. The command words also reflect the paper and section of the paper.

5. Delivery of the qualification – transferable skills

Why transferable skills?

Ensuring that International GCSE qualifications will help improve student outcomes through the acquisition of transferable skills, as well as subject content and skills, is a key aim for Pearson.

In recent years, higher education institutions and employers have consistently flagged the need for students to develop a range of transferable skills to enable them to respond with confidence to the demands of undergraduate study and the world of work.

Through our teaching materials and support offered we want to:

1. increase awareness of transferable skills that are already being assessed (for both students and teachers)
2. indicate where, for teachers, there are opportunities to teach additional skills that won't be formally assessed, but that would be of benefit to students.

What are transferable skills?

The Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) defines skills, or competencies, as 'the bundle of knowledge, attributes and capacities that can be learned and that enable individuals to successfully and consistently perform an activity or task and can be built upon and extended through learning¹.

To support the design of our qualifications, the Pearson Research Team selected and evaluated seven global 21st-century skills frameworks. Following on from this process, we identified the National Research Council's (NRC) framework² as the most evidence-based and robust skills framework, and have used this as a basis for our adapted skills framework.

The framework includes cognitive, intrapersonal skills and interpersonal skills.

6. Planning and delivery

Linear course

The International GCSE course in Bangla is linear with 100% external assessment. This specification has been designed so that the content is clear and that it is manageable for centres to deliver within the guided learning hours over a two- or three-year period. Structured across five themes, our flexible programme of study allows time for a focused revision period at the end of the course. There is a range of possible ways of planning the delivery of the specification and centres will need to decide on a delivery model that suits their teaching methods, school timetables and students. The time allocated to each of the elements of the specification may reflect the weighting of that element. Skills do not have an equal weighting, as they have the following weightings: AO1 40%, AO2 40%, AO3 20%. In this respect teachers may decide to allocate more time to tasks reflecting AO1 and AO2 and less time on tasks reflecting AO3.

The five themes are: Home and Abroad, Education and Employment, Personal life and relationship, The world around us and Social activities, fitness and health. All themes must be studied in the context of both the students' home country and that of countries and communities where Bangla is spoken. There will be equal weighting between the themes in the assessment. To prepare students adequately for this assessment, teachers should present and exploit a range of vocabulary relevant to each theme listed and build on the Programme of Study, where appropriate.

7. Course Planner

There is an editable scheme of work that accompanies this guide. Guidance provided within this scheme of work, the list of resources and lesson plans constitute suggested approaches that teachers and centres may adapt to suit their particular context and schedules.

The following course planner and the accompanying scheme of work, is based on a 2 year course. All assessment objectives should be covered when teaching each topic area. International GCSEs have 120 guided learning hours and time spent on in-class revision is included in this total. This is one possible model of delivery and includes considerable revision time (nine weeks). It is configured on the understanding that some topic areas are cognate and may overlap. The first few lesson ideas in the Scheme of Work are somewhat lengthier than the ones that follow, as they establish a pattern, which is to be emulated in the lesson ideas that come later.

The scheme of work is broken down as follows in this course planner. Please refer to the scheme of work for more details.
