

(c) Explain one benefit to a business of on-the-job training.

one benefit of on-the-job training is that it is more heavily tailored to a specific business. This means the training is more effective, and each worker has increased productivity. As a result, labour costs per unit go down, and average total costs per unit go down. Therefore, profit margins per unit go up, and a business is able to make an increased profit.
