Sources for use with Section A.

Source 1: From a report in The Guardian newspaper, 14 June 1991. The Guardian was a left-leaning British newspaper. Here its reporter in Moscow comments on the outcome of the presidential election in the Russian Federation in June 1991.

Boris Yeltsin gained a landslide victory yesterday to become the first directly elected leader in Russian history. His dramatic triumph will be completed by a visit next week to meet the US President, George Bush.

Mr Yeltsin won at least 60 per cent of the votes in the Russian Federation, the largest Soviet republic. Mr Yeltsin's popularity was particularly strong in the big cities. Voters in these cities supported his policies of market reforms and the transfer of more power to the Russian republic. 5

President Bush was quick to congratulate Mr Yeltsin. While President Gorbachev remained silent on the result, a spokesman for Bush described the election as confirming the Soviet commitment to 'establishing a democratic system'. 10

Mr Yeltsin's trip to meet President Bush is bound to be uncomfortable for President Gorbachev, who is still waiting for the Moscow summit with President Bush to be confirmed. However, there will be some comfort for Gorbachev in that the United States is sure to advise Mr Yeltsin to collaborate and compromise with Gorbachev. 15

Source 2: From a story by Nikolai Ognev, published in the Soviet Union in 1928. Ognev was an educator before the Bolshevik Revolution and continued to work with children afterwards. He recorded his observations as children's stories. This story was written like a child's diary to describe experiences in early Soviet classrooms.

27 September

A new system is being introduced at our school under which the school-workers* do nothing and the pupils must find everything out for themselves. At least, that's what it looks like to me. There will be no more classes, and the pupils will merely be given 'tasks'. These will be handed out a month in advance 20 and may be completed either at home or in school. There will be laboratories instead of classrooms.

5 October

Our whole school group was outraged today. This is what happened. A new school-worker came to teach natural science. We called her Elnikitka. She 25 handed out our assignments and said to the group: 'Children.'

Then I got up and said: 'We are not children.'

To which she replied: 'Of course you are children, and I won't speak to you any other way.'

I replied: 'Please be more polite or we may send you to the devil.' 30

Elnikitka turned red and said: 'In that case, be so good as to leave the classroom.'

I replied: 'In the first place, this is not a classroom but a laboratory and we are not expelled from it. You are more like a teacher of the old school.'

That was all. The whole group supported me. Elnikitka ran off like she was 35 scalded with boiling water.
