In September 2023, South Korea signed a free trade agreement (FTA) with the Philippines. This removed a 5% import tariff on South Korean cars and a 30% import tariff on South Korean car parts.

The Philippines has the 12th largest population in the world and is one of the biggest car and car parts importers. In 2023, the total number of car sales in the Philippines was 366,000.

South Korean-made cars account for 2.5% of the Philippine car market. It is dominated by Japanese-made cars, which have an 82.5% market share.

- (g) With reference to the data above and your knowledge of economics, assess the possible benefits for the South Korean car industry from the removal of tariffs by the Philippines.

One of the UK Government's macroeconomic objectives is to protect the environment. Wildlife habitats in the UK have been declining at a rapid rate because of human activities such as land use changes, pollution and climate change. The UK Government aims to stop and reverse the loss of wildlife habitats by 2030.

- (b) With reference to the data above and your knowledge of economics, analyse why the UK Government has protection of the environment as a macroeconomic objective.

In July 2023, the UK Government announced that those that pollute the environment will face unlimited fines. Following a government consultation, the current limit of £250 000 for a fine will be removed.

Environment Secretary Thérèse Coffey said, "Polluters must always pay." Official figures showed an average of 825 sewage spills per day into England's waterways in 2022.

The money from the higher fines will be channelled directly back into a Water Restoration fund to improve the rivers, lakes and streams rather than going to the UK Government.

Charles Watson, chairman and founder of River Action, said, "At the moment the current fines do not provide a big enough deterrent."

- (c) With reference to the data above and your knowledge of economics, evaluate the possible advantages of using increased fines to protect the environment for a country such as the UK.
