B8 Diversity, rights and equality in Britain, 1914–2010

SECTION A: Historical Investigation

Answer ONE question.

You should spend about 45 minutes on this section.

A1 The origins and course of the First World War, 1905–18

- (a) Describe TWO features of EITHER the role of General Haig OR the Gallipoli campaign.
(6 marks)
- (b) Study Sources A and B and then answer the question that follows.

SOURCE A: From a speech made by Winston Churchill, the First Lord of the Admiralty, in February 1912.

The purpose of Britain's navy is defensive not aggressive. Our Navy is a necessity. This is the difference between Britain and Germany. Britain would be destroyed if our naval supremacy was to be weakened.

5

Therefore, as Germany continues to build more ships, Britain will increase the number we build so that our superiority will become larger. We will make it clear that other naval powers cannot challenge Britain's naval strength.

10

A1 continued.

SOURCE B: From the memoirs of a leading officer in the German Navy, published in 1919. Here he is describing relations with Britain before the First World War.

Germany sought to increase its naval strength simply to protect its colonies and overseas trade. To do this, the German Navy Laws proposed to build a limited number of ships, nowhere near the British total. 5

However, the British believed that Germany was attempting to challenge Britain as the leading world power. Britain viewed Germany as a rival naval power with increasing influence on the world's oceans. Britain thought it was being threatened and sought to destroy us. 10

How far does Source A support the evidence of Source B about the Anglo-German naval race before 1914?

Explain your answer.
(8 marks)

A1 continued.

(c) Study Extract C and then answer the question that follows.

EXTRACT C: From an article on the causes of the First World War, published in 2022.

Great Britain was mainly to blame for the rising European tensions before 1914. The British were over-sensitive about threats to their Empire and viewed Germany's navy with unnecessary suspicion. This led Britain into closer alliance with Germany's enemies, France and Russia, making war more likely. 5

On the other hand, Germany pursued its ambitions for a larger Empire and navy carelessly, even recklessly. The speeches of Kaiser Wilhelm raised fears of German aggression throughout Europe. This is why Britain decided to go to war to protect Belgian neutrality in 1914. 10

A1(c) continued.

Extract C suggests that Great Britain was mainly to blame for the rising European tensions before 1914.

How far do you agree with this interpretation?

Use Extract C, Sources A and B and your own knowledge to explain your answer.
(16 marks)

(Total for Question A1 = 30 marks)

A2 Russia and the Soviet Union, 1905–24

- (a) Describe TWO features of EITHER Tsarist rule in Russia in 1905 OR the Kornilov Revolt.
(6 marks)
- (b) Study Sources A and B and then answer the question that follows.

SOURCE A: From a letter written by Tsarina Alexandra to Tsar Nicholas II, 26 February 1917.

The situation in Petrograd today does not threaten revolution. The people still worship you and only want bread.

5

All the trouble is being caused by a small group of well-dressed people or wounded soldiers. They are also encouraging others to make trouble. According to some of the taxi drivers, students came and threatened the drivers that they would be shot if they appeared in the streets in the morning. What damaged minds!

10

A2 continued.

SOURCE B: From a telegram sent by Mikhail Rodzianko to Tsar Nicholas II, 27 February 1917. Rodzianko was the President of the duma.

Petrograd is in a state of lawlessness. Discontent is widespread and on the increase. The government is paralysed. The transport system has broken down; food and fuel supplies are completely disorganised. There is wild shooting in the streets with troops firing at each other. 5

It is urgent that you now appoint a new government, led by someone who has the support of the whole country. There must be no delay. Further hesitation will be fatal. 10

How far does Source A support the evidence of Source B about the situation in Petrograd in February 1917?

Explain your answer.
(8 marks)

(c) Study Extract C and then answer the question that follows.

A2(c) continued.

EXTRACT C: From an article on the February Revolution, published in 2022.

Nicholas II was overthrown because he underestimated the seriousness of events in Petrograd. When informed about the unrest, he dismissed the demonstrators, calling them a small number of criminals. Even as his regime collapsed, with soldiers refusing to obey their officers, the Tsar would still not accept reality.

5

There were longer-term causes of the February Revolution. For example, failures in agriculture and transport meant that Petrograd was receiving only half the grain needed to feed its people. However, Nicholas could have survived if he had showed real leadership.

10

Extract C suggests that Nicholas II was overthrown because he underestimated the seriousness of events in Petrograd in February 1917.

How far do you agree with this interpretation?

Use Extract C, Sources A and B and your own knowledge to explain your answer.

(16 marks)

(Total for Question A2 = 30 marks)

A3 The USA, 1918–41

- (a) Describe TWO features of EITHER the ‘Monkey Trial’ OR Father Coughlin’s Social Justice campaign.
(6 marks)
- (b) Study Sources A and B and then answer the question that follows.

SOURCE A: From a speech made by Franklin D Roosevelt, the Democrat candidate, during the presidential election campaign in October 1932. Here he is describing what policies he would introduce if elected president.

5

Government has a duty to ensure that no citizen shall starve. We would first deal with this immediate problem and then build up the economy to create permanent jobs.

In addition to emergency support, my government would provide temporary work for people wherever possible. Thousands of unemployed people can be given jobs in the national forests, on flood prevention, or on other public projects that have already been planned but not yet begun.

10

A3 continued.

SOURCE B: From a speech made by President Hoover during the presidential election campaign in October 1932.

Roosevelt's proposals would destroy our economy, especially his promise to provide jobs for the unemployed at all times. I cannot believe that anyone would be so cruel as to make this impossible promise to people suffering such hardship. 5

If it were possible for the government to create jobs for the 10 million unemployed in the USA, it would cost more than $9 billion a year. The high taxes needed to fund this would destroy many existing jobs. 10

How far does Source A support the evidence of Source B about the problems facing the USA in 1932?

Explain your answer.
(8 marks)

(c) Study Extract C and then answer the question that follows.

A3(c) continued.

EXTRACT C: From an article on the Great Depression in the USA, published in 2020.

Roosevelt won the 1932 presidential election mostly because he offered hope to the American people. Roosevelt travelled around America meeting ordinary people and was a confident public speaker. He promised that the government would play a more active role in the economy. 5

In contrast, Hoover seemed heartless because of his ineffective policies. During his presidency, there was massive poverty with millions living on the streets. Voters disliked Hoover's emphasis on self-reliance and did not believe his promise that 'prosperity is just around the corner.' 10

Extract C suggests that Roosevelt won the support of the American people in 1932 because he offered them hope.

How far do you agree with this interpretation?

Use Extract C, Sources A and B and your own knowledge to explain your answer.

A4 The Vietnam Conflict, 1945–75

- (a) Describe TWO features of EITHER the Domino Theory OR the Battle of Hue (1968).
(6 marks)
- (b) Study Sources A and B and then answer the question that follows.

SOURCE A: From an interview with a US citizen, published in 2003. Here he is recalling campaigning against the Vietnam War during the 1960s, when he was a student.

The first national demonstration took place in 1965 when Vietnam was not yet an issue for many Americans. We would have been happy to see 5000 people there but 25 000 came. I knew then that the anti-war movement was going to be huge. 5

Even though the majority of Americans were against the war by 1968, the anti-war movement was still unpopular. Anti-war protesters were seen by most people as extremists who were anti-America. 10

A4 continued.

SOURCE B: From a newspaper report of an anti-war demonstration held in New York City in April 1966.

The movement against the war is growing bigger and more extreme. On Saturday, over 50 000 people marched to Central Park. This was significantly more than for the previous demonstration last October. Demonstrators called for the immediate withdrawal of US soldiers from Vietnam. 5

Several hundred veterans led the march. They were met with angry insults from small groups of pro-war protesters. But each insult was met with shouts from the veterans, 'Bring Our Boys Home!' 10

How far does Source A support the evidence of Source B about the anti-war movement in the USA during the 1960s?

Explain your answer.
(8 marks)

(c) Study Extract C and then answer the question that follows.

A4(c) continued.

EXTRACT C: From a history of the Vietnam War, published in 2010.

Anti-war opposition had a huge impact on US policy in Vietnam. In 1968, anti-war protests convinced President Johnson not to seek re-election. Richard Nixon won the presidency mainly because he promised to end the war. In 1969, he began the gradual withdrawal of US troops. 5

There were many enthusiastic supporters of the war who wanted to defeat communism. Nixon referred to them as ‘the silent majority’. However, the anti-war movement was louder and more active. It was always in the media and contributed greatly to ending US involvement in Vietnam. 10

Extract C suggests that the anti-war movement contributed greatly to ending US involvement in Vietnam.

How far do you agree with this interpretation?

Use Extract C, Sources A and B and your own knowledge to explain your answer.

A5 East Germany, 1958–90

- (a) Describe TWO features of EITHER the provision of employment in the GDR OR the reunification of East and West Germany (March–October 1990).
(6 marks)
- (b) Study Sources A and B and then answer the question that follows.

SOURCE A: From an application for permission to leave the GDR made by a leading East German musician in 1977. Here he is describing action taken against him after he had supported criticism of the SED.

5

Because I supported freedom of speech, I have been banned from GDR television. Although all my concerts were sold out, most were cancelled without any explanation. I am now publicly described as an ‘enemy of the state’, accused of having savings in a secret foreign bank account.

10

As the Stasi is pressurising my friends to avoid me, and my children are being ignored at school, I wish to live in the FRG.

A5 continued.

SOURCE B: From an interview with a British woman who taught in East Germany during the 1980s. Here she is commenting on information found in her Stasi file, which she requested to see after the collapse of the GDR.

5

My East German boyfriend was under observation because he had the ‘wrong friends’. Two friends had illegally emigrated to the FRG and another had been caught trying to leave. The Stasi were monitoring our letters and phone calls, and someone we trusted was informing on us. The authorities were never going to allow us to marry.

10

Nonetheless, the Stasi were often really incompetent. Once, they reported that I was meeting British Embassy officials in East Berlin, even though I had left the GDR months earlier.

15

How far does Source A support the evidence of Source B about state control in the GDR?

Explain your answer.
(8 marks)

(c) Study Extract C and then answer the question that follows.

Turn over

EXTRACT C: From a book on the history of East Germany, published in 2015.

People in the GDR were controlled through fear and propaganda. It was difficult to ignore the SED's propaganda because it controlled the mass media. Most people believed that Stasi informers were everywhere, and everybody knew of people punished for dissent. 5

However, state control of the population was not fully effective in the GDR. Many people criticised the SED among friends and tuned in, secretly, to news broadcasts from the FRG. By the 1980s, over 100 people were leaving for the West every day. 10

Extract C suggests that state control of the population was not fully effective in the GDR.

How far do you agree with this interpretation?

Use Extract C, Sources A and B and your own knowledge to explain your answer.
