

Thinking about working in protective services?

Remember – not all life savers wear a uniform!

By studying a BTEC in Uniformed Protective Services, you could work in a range of jobs, including public-facing and behind-the-scenes roles. Take a look at some of the options available.

Police

Careers in the police force require courage, teamwork, and compassion. Whether you're interested in taking on a public-facing role or prefer to work hard behind the scenes to keep your local community safe, there are a range of pathways you can choose.

Roles include: Police Officer, Community Support Officer, Special Constable

Armed Services

BTEC Uniformed Protective Services learners have gone on to work in all branches of the Armed Services, in jobs ranging from frontline soldiers to logistics. Whether you're interested in joining the RAF, the Royal Navy, or the British Army, a BTEC will prepare you both physically and mentally for the challenge.

Roles include: Infantry Soldier, Submariner, Aircraft Technician, Physical Training Instructor, Logistics Mover

Fire and Rescue Service

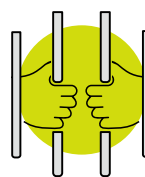

Whether you're up for the physical challenge of fighting fires or you're interested in keeping homes and businesses safe through prevention and education, the Fire and Rescue Service is an exciting organisation to work for. You can also get a Heavy Goods Vehicle (HGV) licence for driving fire engines.

Roles include: Firefighter, Fire Engineer, Inspection Officer, Control Operator, Urban Search and Rescue (USAR) Technicians

Prison Services

Are you interested in helping to educate and rehabilitate people? If you choose to work in the prison service, there are a variety of workplaces you could explore, including prisons and detention centres, women's units, male resettlement prisons, or treatment prisons. You'll need to have excellent communication, teamwork, and people management skills.

Roles include: Prison Officer, Custodial Officer, Detention Officer, Escorting Officer, Youth Justice Officer
