

Pearson Edexcel International Qualifications

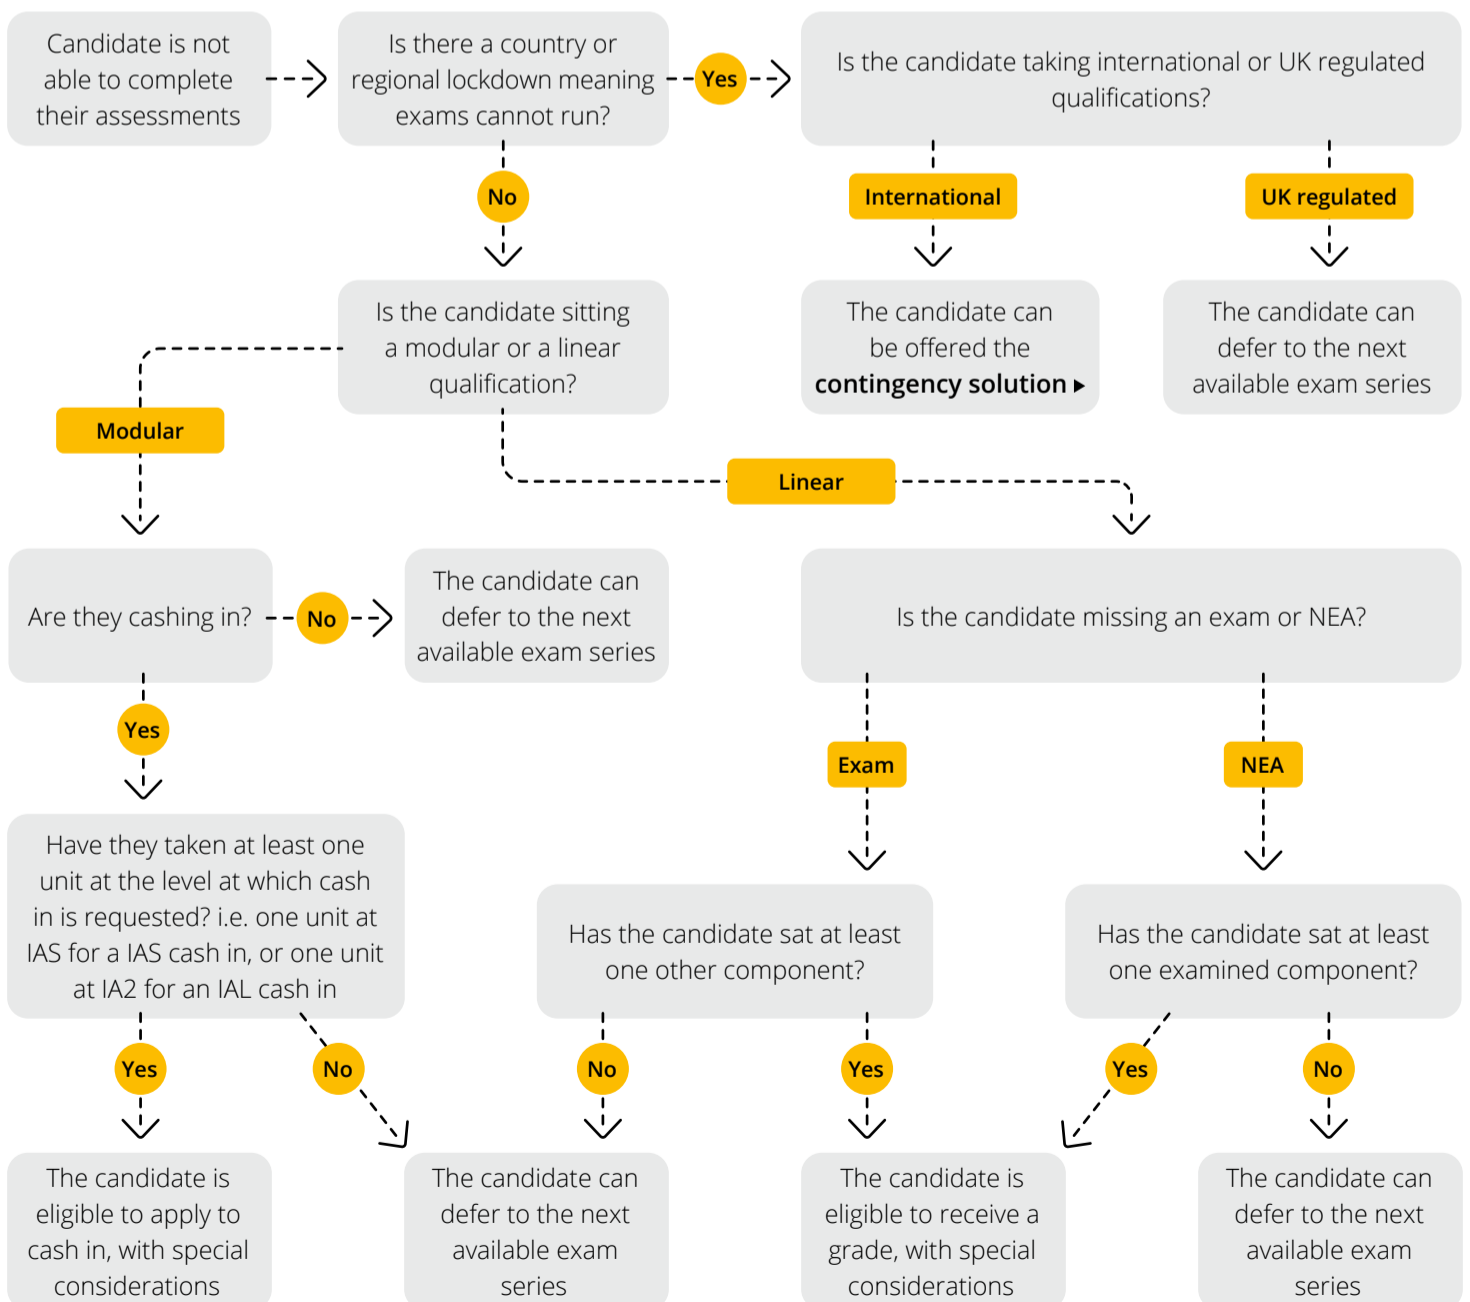

May/June exam series 2022

At Pearson we know how important it is that students are able to move on to the next stage of their learning. We can confirm that the May/June 2022 exam series for International GCSE, International AS level, International A level, iPrimary and iLower Secondary will go ahead where it is possible to do so. We can also confirm that the May/June exam series for UK regulated qualifications for GCSE, AS level and A level will take place, unless the Department for Education makes the unlikely decision to cancel the exams.

However, we also recognise that there may be some circumstances where candidates in international centres may miss their assessments due to country-wide exam cancellations. Or, individual candidates may be unable to complete some, or all, of their assessments; this could be because they have been unable to attend an examination, or restrictions have meant it has not been possible to complete in-centre NEA.

The diagram below shows the different options available to candidates in international centres only, should it not be possible to sit some, or all, assessments.

Please note this information does not apply to any UK centres or UK candidates.

For further information and support please take a look at our frequently asked questions: quals.pearson.com/MayJuneFAQs