Guidance for:
BTEC Nationals and
Level 2 Law and Legal Work

Last updated 1 September 2021

Introduction

As COVID-19 may continue to impact upon teaching, learning and assessment through the academic year, affecting those learners who are part-way through their qualifications and those who are commencing this academic year, we have produced this guidance to support the effective delivery of BTEC course content. We are committed to ensuring that learners continue to benefit from the breadth of content of BTEC qualifications through adaptations in teaching and learning.

This document is intended to provide you with guidance for how you might adapt delivery for the sector's BTEC qualifications in the academic year of 2021-2022.

We will continue to work with our regulators and relevant sector bodies on any possible adaptations or accommodations in line with the relevant policy and regulatory considerations.

Key aspects such as social distancing, safety, lost teaching time, subject content and practical activities have been considered from a sector perspective for your reference. However, it should be noted that all of the guidance provided here must be considered within the context of any relevant guidance issued by your own centre, relevant governing and industry bodies, local and national government.

For further advice and guidance, please refer to the Teaching, Learning and Assessment pages on Pearson's website or contact us via the Customer Support portal.

We look forward to continuing to support you and your learners throughout this challenging time and wish you well for the coming year.

Overview: Applied Law

Adaptations to Assessments in 2021/2022

Please refer to the assessment section on the 2021/2022 Teaching and Assessment page, for adaptations to assessments and qualifications for the 2021-2022 Academic Year. Here you will find:

- Tech Award Assessment Evidence Adaptations
- Work Experience and Employer Engagement
- Links to Exam timetables
- FAQs

Please note that not all qualifications can or will be adapted, and it is important that you refer to the relevant adaptation guidance for 2021-2022.

Some qualifications will not be adapted for one of the following reasons:

- An adaptation would impact the reliability and validity of the qualification
- The qualification is a licence to practice or primary purpose is progression to the workplace.

Learner eligibility

There are currently no plans to have these adaptations extend to learners who take assessments in 2022/23, regardless of when they are due to certificate.

Adaptations are only available in this academic year, for assessment due to take place between 1 September 2021-31 August 2022.

Social Distance and Safety

The delivery of teaching and learning of Applied Law will not be affected by COVID-19 in the main, however social distance and safety considerations will impact the ability of centres to engage learners in practical activities such as court visits, and ability to engage professionals in classroom discussion. This could be mitigated, however, through the use of online resources and video conferencing.

Lost time teaching

As a highly content driven subject, lost teaching time may continue to impact on learning. The use of blended learning, online teaching and face to face teaching would mitigate this, however this would be reliant on provision of suitable access for all learners in order to prevent disadvantage. In terms of skill development, there will be crossover of all units as the skillset is applied to a variety of contexts.

Flexibility of delivery and assessment

Content and topics should continue to be taught as found in the specification. Centres may wish to revisit schemes of work in light of any adapted timetabling to ensure that the learning of key concepts are supported through face to face teaching wherever possible. The scheduling of unit delivery can be reviewed as necessary in the Assessment Plan for the programme. This is a working document that can flex to reflect the opportunities available and any challenges that may be present within the centre.
